100,000 DRAWN TO WASHINGTON BY FIRE PARADE

Event Today With 10,000 in Line May Become Record-Breaker.

MARCH TO BE BEGUN UP AVENUE AT 10:30

Judging of Apparatus and Police-Fire Ball Game on Afternoon Slate.

Route of Firemen's Annual Parade Today

The line of march of the Firemen's Annual Labor Day parade starting this mornig at 10:30 o'clock will be:

Formation and start from the Peace Monument, Pennslyvania avenue at the Capitol;

West along Pennslyvania avenue from First to Fifteenth streets northwest;

Across Fifteenth street into Treasury place to East Executive avenue;

From East Executive avenue into the roadway south of the White House, where the parade will disband.

The ninth annual firemen's parade, feature of the Labor Day celebration in the Capital, will start from the Peace Monument at 10:30 this morning. With 10,000 visiting firemen expected to take part and more than 100,000 visitors expected to view it, it is believed that this year's parade will be the greatest in the history of the event.

Delegations of firemen will represent about 250 cities, and more than 100 floats will be exhibited. The parade will take four hours to pass the reviewing stand, it is estimated.

Part of the throng reached the city yesterday and thousands more are expected to arrive this morning, coming by automobile, bus and train excursions from all sections of the East.

Four special trains brought visitors yesterday and three more are due today. Besides this, the regular trains are carrying special cars for excursionists.

Apparatus Judging at 2 P. M.

Fire apparatus will be judged at the Ellipse at 2 o'clock this afternoon. At 3 o'clock a drum and bugle corps contest will be staged at the same place. Prizes will be awarded the winning companies in the parade at 7:30 o'clock this evening on the Ellipse.

At 3:30 p. m. the annual policemen and firemen's baseball game will get under way at Griffith Stadium. The parade, bugle contest and ball game will all be broadcast by Station WJSV.

The Commissioners of the District and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland will review the parade from the stand in front of the District Building. In addition, a board of judges will watch the line of march from a stand and later in the day will announce the prize-winning floats.

The parade column will be headed by a special police escort, followed by the Quantico Marine Band. The official contingent, including the District Commissioners, Gov. Ritchie, Odell S. Smith and Joseph A. Burkart, representing the Board of Trade, will follow. Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, director and marshal of the parade, will accompany a group of the heads of visiting firemen's organizations who are participating in the parade. They will also stop at the reviewing stand.

Marine Reserves to March.

The Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade Band and the brigade itself, 1,500 strong, will follow with the District Firemen's Drum and Bugle Corps.

A token of welcome to visiting firemen will be next, in the form of a float with a large key to the city offered to the visitors. Miss Mildred Bargagni, official hostess and daughter of Sergt. Bargagni, the parade marshal, will ride on this display.

Veteran fire fighters will show the equipment with which they fought fires of a quarter century ago, when 30 of them draw Old Columbia down the avenue. It will be followed

R.W. Child, Author, Reported Engaged

Members of Household Say He Plans to Marry His Housekeeper.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Members of the household of Richard Washburn Child, author and diplomat, said today he was planning to marry his housekeeper, Mrs. Dorothy Gallagher Everson. The wedding is expected to take place late in the fall. Mr. Child and Mrs. Everson were away.

Mrs. Everson will be Child's third wife. He married Maude Parker, an author, in 1916. They were divorced in Paris in 1926. On September 11, 1927, he married Miss Eva Sanderson, then his literary secretary, and they were divorced in Newport in December, 1930.

Mrs. Everson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher, of Newport.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie (left), of Maryland, will ride in the lead of the firemen's parade today to the reviewing stand, where he will stop to view the procession. Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, of the Washington Fire Department, has been in charge of all arrangements for the huge march.

HEADQUARTERS QUIZ IN BEATING POSSIBLE

Grand Jury Is Expected to Take Further Action Later in Week.

The grand jury will resume its work tomorrow, but from all indications, further action on instances of alleged police brutality and third degree tactics will not be taken until late in the week. The Department of Justice continued its investigation in secret yesterday on the score or more of "strong cases" it now has before it.

The grand jury must of necessity await the pleasure of the Department of Justice in turning over new cases for possible indictments. The Department of Justice inquiry, which centered at the First Precinct at first and resulted in the indictment of five policemen on charges of assault, has spread to nearly every precinct in the city, and it is possible that headquarters itself will be drawn into the investigation.

William C. Groome, one of the five policemen from the First Precinct indicted on charges of assault, is expected to surrender today and post bond of $1,000. The other four policemen have already made bonds.

The five men will be arraigned Friday in District Supreme Court. It is believed they will all enter not guilty pleas. An effort will be made to docket their cases at a special term of court, but if this move fails, it is indicated that all will face the court early in the October term.

Capt. W. E. Holmes, commander of the First Precinct, said last night he had not heard of the talk Sergt. W. D. Haislip, also of the First Precinct, made Saturday over radio station WJSV. The captain said that as far as he knew, no action had been taken on the matter.

Sergt. Haislip, who has a contract for time on the air, charged Washington newspapers and newspapermen with publishing inaccurate information about the Police Department, and declared that the papers printed statements which were not true to build up "sensational" stories.

Inspector Louis J. Stoll has refused to confirm or deny reports that Haislip was reprimanded for the speech. Police regulations require members of the force to submit addresses to be

Roumania Cabinet Crisis Held Likely

Gifts From King Carol to Mme. Magda Lupescu Are Blamed.

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—A cabinet crisis was reported likely tonigh, as a result of rumors of controversy between King Carol and Premier Nicholas Jorga.

Entirely unconfirmed reports said the gifts of King Carol to Mme. Magda Lupescu, with whom he lived in exile in France, were responsible for the crisis and that the premier had remonstrated with the monarch, threatening to resign.

Princess Helene, divorced wife of Carol, who has been in Scotland recently, was reported to have started back to Bucharest as a result of recent rumors that the King was seeking marriage with Princess Maria of Italy. Although the reports were emphatically denied by government sources, it was said Helene desired to be in Bucharest to protect the interests of her son, Crown Prince Michael.

TOKYO EARTHQUAKE WAKES LINDBERGHS

Couple Aroused by Shock After Day's Sight-Seeing; Slight Damage Done.

Tokyo, Monday, Sept. 7 (A.P.).—A sharp earthquake was felt in the Tokyo region at 5:25 a. m. today, but no damage was reported beyond the breaking of mantel ornaments in many houses. The shock was of the horizontal type.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who returned to the capital yesterday from Nykko, where they had gone as part of their sight-seeing tour, were aroused from sleep with a start but afterward returned to bed.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were the afternoon tea guests of Baron and Baroness Shidehara. Baron Shidehara is the Japanese foreign minister.

Today the City of Yokohama will tender the famous Americans its official welcome. Tuesday Col. Lindbergh plans to go to Kasumigaura Airport, near here, to inspect his plane, which is being overhauled while he and his wife are sight-seeing. It was possible he would make a test flight Tuesday, preparatory to their start Thursday or Friday for Osaka.

Col. Lindbergh reiterated yesterday that he and Mrs. Lindbergh had not definitely decided upon the route of their homeward flight. He said they probably would not decide until they had spent some time in China, where they plan to go after leaving Japan, probably this week.

Col. Lindbergh said numerous suggestions of routes had been made but he wanted to consult various experts in China, as he had done here.

Friends of the couple say that various interests and individuals have endeavored to persuade them, in view of the nearness to China, that they should visit the Philippines.

22 Persons Saved From Sinking Ship

All Upon Cruiser Rescued and Reach Miami on Another Vessel.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The motor vessel Tamaru docked here tonight with 22 persons rescued when the 52-foot cabin cruiser, Al Wilda, sank after springing a leak 18 miles west of Bimini Island last night. Seven of the passengers rescued were women, and four were crew members. All passengers and crew were saved.

The story of the sinking of the Al Wilda was told here by Capt. L. T. Irwin, of the Tamaru, which effected the rescue.

Capt. Irwin said he saw the cruiser's distress signals at 6:05 o'clock last night while his boat was west of Bimini. He put about immediately, he said, and headed for the Al Wilda, which he reached seven minutes later. Capt. James R. Moore, in charge of the Al Wilda, said his boat had sprung a leak and was rapidly sinking.

Diamond Gang Blamed In Speakeasy Shooting

New York, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The remnants of Jack (Legs) Diamond's beer gang were reported today to have opened operations in Brooklyn after the shooting of Henry (Knockout) Halperin, 32, a speakeasy proprietor.

Halperin was summoned to the door. As he opened it one shot struck him in the chest. He is in a serious condition. According to reports at police headquarters, he had refused to buy beer from a new gang in Brooklyn.

Source of Queen of Sheba's Gems Believed Discovered

London, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Rubies, diamonds, platinum and gold, such as the Queen of Sheba is supposed to have worn when she visited King Solomon, were brought to London today by Frank Hayter, big game hunter, from mines he believes were the sources of the Queen of Sheba's wealth.

Payter found the gems and treasure in a cavern hidden in the unexplored country 320 miles due west of Addis Ababa, Abyssinia. He intends to organize a new expedition within a few months to go back and get what he left behind.

"I am sure it is one of the caverns from which the Queen of Sheba drew her great wealth," Payter said. An old Arab, he said, gave an English mining engineer a map in 1930 which the engineer showed Payter. The two men, he said, worked out the directions and discovered the treasure. There has been frequent mention in literature of the supposedly rich jewel and metal mines in the Abyssinian area.

LONDON CROWD PLANS FIGHT ON COALITION RULE

Leaders Prepare for the Opening of Parliament Tomorrow.

LABORITES OPPOSE PROPOSED DOLE CUT

Cabinet Makes Final Study of Economy Program to Meet Huge Deficit.

London, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—A crowd of several thousand people engaged in a demonstration in Hyde Park today, while political leaders were preparing for the opening of Parliament this week. The crowd announced its intention to attempt to see Prime Minister MacDonald at the House of Commons Tuesday to protest against cuts in the dole and in wages.

The crowd was made up of the Independent Labor party and a contingent from the National Unemployed Workers Movement. It converged on Oxford Circus from all parts of London and, headed by a band of unemployed men, marched to Hyde Park bearing banners inscribed "No Wage Cuts!" "Stop This Starvation!"

A hundred policemen watched the demonstration closely. The speakers included J. Beckett, member of Parliament for Peckham, and F. Wise, member for Leicester, East. The meeting passed resolutions against the "declared intention of the national government to cut down unemployment allowances, social expenditure and the wages of government servants at the dictation of financiers."

Meanwhile, political leaders were tigthening their belts in preparation for what is expected to be one of the most tumultuous weeks in the history of the country's politics.

Labor Also Meeting.

On Tuesday the special session of the Parliament meets to approve or disapprove the new national governments plan for meeting the apparent deficit of approximately $600,000,000 in the budget.

The cabinet program is completed, but it will hold a brief meeting tomorrow to decide the final line-up for the battle in the House of Commons. It expects to have a majority of more than 50 votes at least.

At the same time British labor will also meet tomorrow at the Trade Union Congress at Bristotl to map out the plans of its warfare against the administration, the plans of which, it holds, are antagonistic to the workers.

Prime Minister MacDonald and other principal figures in the present crisis spent the week-end ostensibly resting, but actually most of them were busily engaged at their country homes working out their plans.

Few, if any, absentees are expected when the Commons convenes. Every member has been impressed with the importance of the situation and the necessity for his being present.

Thomas Is Condemned.

J. H. Thomas, minister for the dominions and colonies, again felt the displeasure of his Labor colleagues today when a meeting of the general council of the Derby Labor Party passed a unanimous resolution con-

Seven Are Injured In Maine Tornado

Roof of House Is Carried 300 Yards; Barn Is Destroyed.

Palmero, Me., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—A tornado here this afternoon injured seven persons slightly and did considerable damage to property.

The windstorm tore the roof from a house, twisted the house from its base, destroyed a barn, carried a grist mill shed a short distance, ripped down telephone and electric light wires and uprooted many trees.

The storm, accompanied by rain and hail, blew the roof from a farm house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Russell and their five children.

Mayor Walker Delayed By French Rail Crash

Macon, France, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Mayor Walker's return to the French Riviera was delayed tonight when an express train preceding his collided with a locomotive at the entrance to the station.

Three train hands were hurt and a score of passengers were bruised. Further traffic was delayed by the necessity of clearing the tracks of debris.

Capital Man Drowned Near Virginia Beach

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—W. A. Mulcahy, 49, of Salem, Mass., and Washington, D. C., was drowned while bathing in the Atlantic Ocean between Virginia Beach and Cape Henry this afternoon.

Strong tides which defied the efforts of five men to rescue him, also nearly cost the life of Mrs. H. W. Shafer, of Norfolk, another member of the bathing party. Mulcahy's body had not been recovered late tonight.

HOOVER REPORT ON U. S. WORKS REVEALS SPURT

More Building in August Than in Whole Years Before, He Says.

SEES 100,000 IN JOBS UNDER FEDERAL PLAN

Total of 115 Structures Had Been Completed Sept. 1, Worth $39,869,569.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover estimated yesterday that 100,000 men will be employed directly and indirectly in construction of Federal buildings by January 1.

Summarizing the progress of the public buildings program, the President said more work was done in August than during any previous year up to 1927.

On September 1, the President said, 115 buildings had been completed at a total cost of $39,869,569; 229 were under construction at an estimated total cost of $181,393,100, and 466 projects estimated to cost $247,631,523 were in various stages approaching construction.

750 Projects Authorized.

"That portion of the Federal program of aid to unemployment comprised in the great expansion of public buildings under the Treasury Department," the President said, "shows the following progress since the report of July 15:

"There are a total of 750 projects which have so far been specifically authorized and 164 firms of architects are engaged in plans and supervision."

The President summarized progress of the program as follows:

"First—A total of 115 buildings have been completed at a total cost of $39,869,569. Three buildings have been completed during the past month.

"Second—There were 229 buildings in construction at the first of September by contract, at an estimated cost of $181,393,100, there having been 37 contracts let during the last month, of a total value in excess of $25,000,000.

Projects in Preparation.

"Third—There are 65 projects in which sites have been arranged, drawings are completed, for which construction contracts have been invited, of a total estimated cost of $19,319,600.

"Fourth—There are 202 projects in which sites have been selected and on which plans are now under way of a total estimated cost of $178,766,523.

"Fifth—At the first of this month there were 199 projects in which the sites have been determined upon and are in process of being acquired. The estimated cost of the buildings thereon being $49,545,400.

"It is estimated that the number of men now directly and indirectly employed on this program is 39,000. It is estimated that the number that will be directly and indirectly employed on January 1 is 100,000."

Seven Picnickers Die When Train Hits Bus

Truro, Nova Scotia, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Seven members of a picnicking party were killed and four others injured when the Ocean Limited of the Canadian National Railway struck a large bus near Memramcook today.

The bus was demolished. It was en route to Moncton, where the occupants were to have attended a religious gathering.

Fliers Poised to Span Pacific Without Stop

Sabishiro Beach, Japan, (Monday) Sept. 7 (U.P.).—The storm that has delayed departure of Don Moyle and Cecil A. Allen, Los Angeles fliers, who hope to cross the Pacific Ocean to Seattle without stopping, cleared away suddenly this morning and they indicated they might attempt the take-off this afternoon.

The gasoline tanks of their monoplane were filled.

Spectators in Peril In Gang Gun Fight

Target Fires Back When Fusillade Starts in Brooklyn.

New York, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Gunmen shooting it out in a Brownsville, Brooklyn, street tonight, threw scores of pedestrians into a panic, stopped the progress of a trolley car and fled without hitting anybody, before police arrived.

At about 10 p. m. a sedan stopped at the curb in the densely populated section and guns from within spat bullets at a man standing on the sidewalk.

The intended victim dodged behind a telephone pole and returned the fire. The sedan started away as suddenly as it had stopped. The gunmen's target jumped into another car and pursued it, both machines being lost to view in traffic.

REBEL SHIPS BOMBED BY CHILEAN PLANES; LAND BATTLE FOUGHT

Don Beats Gar Wood In First Heat of Race

Briton Defeats Miss America IX at 90 M. P. H. Clip.

Detroit Yacht Club, Detroit, Mich., Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Flashing the greatest speed ever shown in a Harmsworth race, Kaye Don, in the Miss England II, today defeated Gar Wood in his Miss America IX in the first 30-mile heat of the famous classic.

Wood brought his ninth in second, a good mile behind the flying white-hulled English boat, while his brother, George Wood, in the Miss America VIII, trailed in several hundred yards behind Gar.

Both the Miss England and the Miss America IX surpassed all former speed records for the 30 miles, both in heat and lap time. It was the first time Wood had been defeated since he won the historic plaque off Cowes, England, in 1920.

The second heat will be run tomorrow at 5:30 p. m., E. S. T. The race goes to the winner of two heats.

As Don and his crew flashed over the line to receive the winning gun the crowds went wild. Horns on boats added to the din. Don's happy mechanics, Dick Garner and Roy Platford, waved a greeting, but Don, still traveling at great speed, kept his hands on the wheel.

It was estimated that half a million people saw the race from the river banks.

TAX DANGER IS SEEN IN ENGLAND'S FATE

Bureau Cuts and Excise on Legal Wine and Beer Urged by Beck.

(Associated Press.)

Returning from a visit to Europe, Representative Beck, of Pennsylvania, yesterday cited "the fate of England" as a reminder to the coming Congress of the danger of strangling prosperity by excessive taxation.

The deficit could be wiped out, Beck said, if "all unnecessary and meddlesome Government bureaus were abolished and if Congress would declare light wines and malted liquors nonintoxicating in fact and impose a heavy excise tax upon these luxuries.

"If we adopted this simple expedient we could easily cut the necessities of taxation by $2,000,000,000," the Republican said, adding: "There would then be no deficit, but, on the contrary, a large surplus; business would oe less burdened and take heart, and the wheels of industry, now sunk in the mire of industrial prostration, would again move."

The Pennsylvanian approved the plea of Representative Wood, of Indiana, for reduced governmental expenditures, but he could not see "why the Army and Navy should be singled out as the sole source of such economies."

Many of their functions, like river and harbor work, he said, have belonged to the peace establishment of the United States and are as valuable as almost any work that the Federal Government does.

"It seems to me that in effecting governmental economies more attention should be given to some of the recently created departments of the Government which are honeycombed with bureaus which would never be missed," he said. "If I can judge from my personal contact with one executive department of the Government, every department has many superfluous employes, some of whom do not average one hour's work a day."

"While the causes of the present world-wide depression are many, yet the strangulation of prosperity by the

187 MILES PER HOUR WINS WOMEN'S RACE

Aerol Trophy Captured by Miss Tait; Hall Sets Fastest Closed-Course Pace.

Cleveland, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Outspeeding two former winners, Miss Maud Tait, of Springfield, Mass., averaged 187.574 miles an hour today to win the Aerol trophy, women's speed classic of the 1931 national air races.

Mrs. Mae Haizlip, of Ferguson, Mo., was second, averaging 165.22 miles an hour.

Miss Jean Sharp, of Fort Sill, Okla., was third, averaging 160 miles an hour.

Miss Tait's time was only about 13 miles an hour less than the late "Speed" Holman made in winning the Thompson trophy race at Chicago last year. She shot her red and white GeeBee monoplane into the lead at the start and finished well ahead.

Mrs. Phoebe Omlie, of Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, Calif., who had won the trophy the two preceeding years, also were in the race. Mrs. Omlie won the trophy in 1929 and Mrs. O'Donnell a year ago.

The victory meant $3,750 to Miss Tait. Mrs. Haizlip won $2,500 and Miss Shankle $1,500.

Miss Tait has been flying for about four years, but today's event was the first major contest she has won. She barely missed a pylon at a turn on the first lap, she said. She had the throttle open all the way in the five laps around the 10-mile course.

The fastest closed-course race ever run at any of the national air races was won today by the yellow and Black GeeBee monoplane which Tuesday attained 286 miles an hour. The monoplane at the start of the races today, averaged 222.6 miles an hour.

The race was free for all, for men and women, for five laps over a 10-mile course. It was piloted by Robert Hall, of Springfield, Mass.

Close behind the GeeBee was the red monoplane Wedell-Williams, piloted by W. J. Wedell, of Paterson, La., who attained an average speed of 221.048 miles an hour. More than

Airman Jumps to Safety As Racing Ship Takes Fire

Cleveland Ohio, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Flying 200 miles per hour at an altitude of only 150 feet, Walter Hunter, one of the four Illinois brothers who set an endurance flight record last year, was forced to leap with a parachute today when his ship burst into flames at the national air races.

He is in Berea Hospital, seriously burned, but he will recover.

Eight women fliers were warming up their motors for the start of the Aerol trophy race when Hunter took off in a Travelair. He was making a test flight in preparation for the Thompson trophy race scheduled for tomorrow.

He was roaring across the field at 150 feet when the gas line broke. There was an explosion and the streaking plane was enveloped in flames.

Hunter managed to crawl over the cockpit and jump. His parachute did not open until he was within 50 feet of the earth, but he made a safe landing. The plane crashed in ruins behind the grandstand at the north side of the field.

He lay bandaged in his room at the hospital. Hunter told of his thrilling escape and of the sensations he experienced.

"The gas line broke and the escaping gasoline collected in the fuselage," he said. "I was ignited by the exhaust. The flames swept over the plane and I was burned on the hands and face. I wasn't as worried as you might think, because I knew the motor was all right. I had no thought of death—I was sure I could get out.

"My hands were burned so badly I had to let go of the stick. As soon as I lost my grip the ship nosed over and headed straight for the ground in a vertical dive. I admit it was a thrilling moment.

"The fire was burning my clothes and in another second would have burned my safety belt. So I just bailed out. I went over the side just like falling off a log. It was the first time I ever had to jump, though I've been in accidents before.

"I pulled the rip cord just as soon as I cleared and I just made it."

One Submarine Disabled and Crew Captured; Fliers Cheered.

MACHINE GUN SHOTS RAIN ON MUTINEERS

Second Attack Made After Fruitless Parleys; Navy Yard Is Retaken.

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The Chilean air force delivered a smashing bomb and machine gun attack for 23 minutes this evening upon the country's rebel navy near Coquimbo, in an attempt to end the revolt.

The bombs and machine gun fire were directed chiefly at four submarines which had arrived early today from the southern coast. One of the submarines was disabled, reports reaching here said, and the crew, swimming for their lives to the shore, was arrested by carabineers.

Later the government ordered the airplanes to concentrate for a second general attack. While the concentration was being effected small squadrons of airplanes were maintaining a constant watch from the air over the fleet and dropping an occasional bomb in an endeavor to force a surrender without the necessity of further attack. Between 80 and 100 planes are engaged in the movements.

Populace Watches Battle.

The population of Coquimbo lined the shore to watch the brilliant engagement in the sea and air and cheered wildly as the aviators, with excellent aim, thundered bombs at the navy, the largest in Pacific waters, except for the forces of Japan and the United States.

After 23 minutes Gen. Carlos Vergara, commanding the air squadrons, ordered the bombardment halted until it could be determined, by renewed parleys, whether the crews of the battleship La Torre and the other rebel ships would surrender rather than undergo further bomb attacks.

The bombardment lasted from 5:45 p. m. to 6:08 p. m.

The rebel crews did not return the fire of the airplanes, the government said, and it was believed they were hiding in the lower parts of the ships, seeking shelter from the bombs and hail of machine gun fire directed from above their heads.

Fifty Killed in Fight.

The action in the air followed decisive fighting on land today. Three regiments of soldiers from Concepcion were ordered to capture the rebellious naval yard at Talcahuano and a sharp battle resulted.

The troops succeeded in recapturing the base, and the government estimated the casualties at about 50. It also reported that 1,000 prisoners were taken, together with all the arms and ammunition in the forts.

Coquimbo is about 250 miles north of Santiago, and Talcahuano about the same distance to the south.

The government ordered the arrest of Carlos Froedden, minister of marine under former President Ibanez, and said it would bring him to Santiago on charges that his home near Coquimbo had been the meeting place of leaders of the revolt.

Rebels Surrendering.

An official communique said rebels had surrendered voluntarily at Vergara, Valvidia, Verba, Buenos and Renaca, instead of the army having "overcome" their resistance, as previously announced.

Later advices to the government from Coquimbo said that the battleships O'Higgins and La Torre were also targets of the bombing attack this evening. Superstructures of two of the submarines were severely damaged, it was said, but other damage was believed to be slight and casualties few.

The belief was expressed here that the airplane force sought to frighten the mutineers, doing as little damage as possible, until another chance is given the rebels to capitulate.

The submarine which was most badly damaged, an official bulletin said, was the H-4.

Three destroyers and a second submarine put out to sea after the engagement, the bulletin said, but it added that the government still had sufficient naval forces remaining loyal to pursue the fleeing rebel vessels.

Two additional submarines, the bulletin said, turned southward in obedience to government commands.

LABOR'S PROSPERITY IS VITAL, DOAK SAYS

Relations of Workers and Employers Are on Firm Basis, He Believes.

(Associated Press.)

W. N. Doak, Secretary of Labor, in a formal Labor Day greeting, last night said that "despite the present business recession, which we are all striving to remove, the relations of labor with employers and the public at large are now based upon a better understanding than ever before."

Remarking that this would be his "forty-fourth Labor Day," the Secretary continued:

"Mutuality of respect between workers and employers exists, and the bond of cooperation, unity of effort, and good will prevails more generally than at any prior time.

"This in itself is a great cause for rejoicing, for it marks much progress in tolerance for those whose heads and hands have wrought to supply the needs of mankind and thereby improved the social life of our whole national Commonwealth."

On the basis that the prosperity of labor is essential to the prosperity of the Nation, Secretary Doak said: "We have extended and enlarged the activities of the Federal employment service * * * are paying special attention to the maintenance of wages and working conditions. * * * Immigration is being further restricted in a humane and lawful manner. * * *

"In these and many other ways our Nation is giving expression to its respect for, and interest in, our workers, whose welfare it is a privilege to promote and to whom we are glad to pledge again our whole resources, realizing that the advancement of their well-being is but the advancement of the welfare of the whole country and the millions of people whose lives are so directly interwoven with those of all who labor."

Woll Sees Winter As Test of Faith

Labor Official Urges All to Make a Sacrifice to Provide Employment.

New York, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The approaching winter will serve to test the principles of the American people and the faith they have in each other, Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, said in a Labor Day address in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine today.

"Observing Labor Sunday," Woll said, "at a time when millions of the toilers for whom the day is set apart are in destitution and whose aggregate suffering has stricken the Nation like a major calamity, it is fitting that we observe the situation, for no American can stand apart and say, 'it is none of my concern.'"

Woll suggested that every householder "make a sacrifice to provide work hours—such as repairs, changes, household service," and that every employer and professional person find some way to hire at least one worker.

PARADE TO BE SEEN BY 100,000 VISITORS

by Barney, Gene and Tom, old fire horses now retired to a farm.

Following this will come the main section of the parade which will take more than three hours to pass the stand. It comprises fire engines and men from New York, Ohio, North Carolina, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland and Virginia as well as the District.

No Parking on Avenue.

There will be no parking on Pennsylvania avenue and certain other intersecting streets which will be used in forming the long column. No traffic will be permitted on the Avenue after 10:30 and traffic will only be allowed to cross the Avenue between the Capitol and Fifteenth street when there is an opening in the procession.

One hundred and seventy special policemen will patrol the route of the parade and a dozen ambulances will be stationed at advantageous points.

Assistant Superintendent of Police E. W. Brown will exercise general supervision over all police details and arrangements. Inspector L. J. Stoll will supervise the formation of the parade and the procession of the column to Seventh street and Inspector O. T. Davis will be in charge of the rest of the route.

New Observation Plane Shows 170-Mile Speed

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 6 (A. P.).—A newly developed United States Army observation plane attained a speed of 170 miles per hour in tests conducted here today under the direction of Lieut. A. H. Pierce, a reserve officer. He flew the new plane, a modified Curtiss Falcon, from Buffalo this morning.

It is powered with a 600-horsepower Conqueror geared engine, carries machine guns and is equipped to carry five light bombs.

Colleagues Praise Former Principal

Albemarle County Teachers Commend Reed's Conduct.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 6.—The Albemarle County Education Association has adopted a resolution expressing its confidence in H. G. Reed, former principal of the Earlysville High School, and heartily commending his professional conduct.

The resolution expresses regret at the "undue publicity given by the press to unproved charges brought against Reed," and calls him "one of the most earnest, capable and conscientious men who has had the privilege of serving Albemarle County."

Albemarle teachers believe the charges were brought against Mr. Reed because he did not recommend for admission to the engineering school of the University of Virginia one of the boys who graduated under him last June.

Staunton Fair to Open Today; Ends Saturday

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 6.—While fairs in some communities are not opening their gates this year and others are curtailing programs, Secretary Charles B. Ralston announces that the Staunton Fair, which opens tomorrow, will be "bigger and better" than ever.

The exhibition will run through Saturday, and the program provides for features morning, afternoon and night. The first three nights will see the society horse show events, the management claiming this is the only Southeastern fair holding its horse show at night.

If you have something to sell, a Post Classified Ad will find you a purchaser.

"Millionaire for a Day" Seeking Five Offices

Wilkes-Barre, Pa. (U.P.).—John J. (Butch) McDevitt, famed as the millionaire for a day," is seeking five separate offices simultaneously in the primary elections here. At least, the colorful McDevitt has issued personal publicity telling what he will do if elected mayor, treasurer, school director, and rgister of wills and recorder of deeds in Luzerne County.

McDevitt attracted natibnal attention by hiring a special train to take him to New York, where he spent recklessly along the Great White Way in disposing o an inheritance. Later, he tried to present a bust of himself to Congress. He is a publisher here.

BUTLER URGES PLAN TO STABILIZE JOBS

Control Method for Industry Advocated by Columbia University President.

Southampton, N. Y., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, in an address tonight suggested that a combine of "several great basic industries" should be formed to stabilize employment.

Dr. Butler, speaking in the Parrish Art Museum, declared the industries should be "so organized in the interests of the general public as to control production within the limits of a proper balance with an expanding power of consumption."

He said it would then be practicable "* * * both to stabilize and to regularize employment" within the field of each one of a considerable number of large industries which are easily susceptible of regional or Nation-wide organization.

Make Industries Responsible.

"The next step," Dr. Butler said in elaborating upon the plan, "should be to make each one of these organized industries feel responsible for the employment and care of its great body of workmen.

"When a new enterprise is undertaken and new capital sought, every consideration is given to studying the estimated production of the factory or mine or oil well in order that a satisfactory return upon the money invested may be assured.

"Why should not an equal amount of study be given to the problem of how many work people are statedly needed for the enterprise and as to what provision can be made for their security within the limits of the ordinary fluctuation of the rise and fall of the production of the business.

Approves Five-Day Week.

"Why should not the care and protection of the employed be made as much a part of the policy of any great business undertaking as are the care and protection of the money invested?"

Dr. Butler spoke also on various forms of employment insurance which have been brought to the fore in the present economic depression and approved suggestions for a five-day week and eventually a six-hour day.

New York, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The League for Independent Political Action, of which Dr. John Dewey is the head, addressed to President Hoover a plea for a special session of Congress to deal with unemployment, and for a "hunger loan" of "at least $3,000,000,000."

Cites Suicide Increase.

The letter, forwarded by Howard Y. Williams, executive secretary, urged that the money be appropriated for public buildings, to include housing of workers and construction of roads, river development and electric power lines in agricultural regions.

In part the communication said:

"Hundreds of men and women are taking their lives every month in America because they will not face little families that they can not feed, and so they end their lives. There have been over 1,800 suicides this year in New York City alone largely due to this cause. * * *

"Hundreds of men and women every day in our Nation are turning to robbery and theft to provide for families that otherwise would starve. * * *

Says Issue Is Clear.

"Hundreds of men and women are being committed to our institutions for the insane, driven mad by their insecurity. * * *

"Hundreds of thousands of our fellow-citizens sleep on the bare ground every night in parks and wayside places, or with nothing but the rags on their backs. They stand in our breadlines, eat in our soup kitchens, accept the dole of charity and every day deteriorate in mind and soul. * * *

"The issue is clear. No one in this crisis should have cake until every one has bread. Higher income and inheritance taxes on wealth in the higher brackets will provide the funds. We are the only industrial Nation in the world that does nothing adequate to meet unemployment. * * *."

Briand Cuts Cigarette Quota to 10 Each Day

Paris, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand revealed today that he had reduced his daily average of cigarettes from 60 to 10. Briand, who is known as an almost constant smoker, said he had cut down steadily during his rest at his Cocherel farm, where he was sent by physicians to prevent a breakdown last month.

The foreign minister also said he won three county prizes for fine cattle raised on his farm. He arrived in Paris this morning and departed within a few hours for Geneva to attend the League of Nations sessions there.

NO. 1 TRUCK CENTER OF VISITING GROUPS

More Than 7,000 Register There Early in Evening for Today's Parade.

As headquarters for the visiting firemen, the No. 1 Truck Company house was the liveliest place in Washington last night. More than 7,000 had registered there at an early hour.

Among the arrivals were a delegation of 125 men from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and a large representation from Taremtown, Pa. A special train from Sanbury, Pa., brought 190 members of the Americus Hose Company of that place.

From far off Los Angeles came Fireman James W. Jones to represent California. Chief Walter Ducker, of the fire department of Kinmore, N. Y., near Buffalo, and Mayor Edward Leining, of Kinmore, brought a delegation of 62 men. Chief Ducker said that they came without a band but as "his boys" are determined to have a band lead them down Pennsylvania avenue he will hire a Washington band for the purpose. Chief Ducker said that Kinmore, in 1920, had a population of 3,000 and that the last census gave it a figure of 18,000.

Oldest Present Is 79.

Joseph Jefferson Walling, 79 years old, of Baltimore, and J. M. Berger, 74 years old, of Crisfield, Md., are the oldest firemen to come here for the Labor Day demonstration. Both men are members of the Veterans Fire Department of Baltimore. Firemen Berger, who recently went to Crisfield to make his home, has written several articles on the history of the Baltimore Fire Department.

When registration was at its height at No. 1 Truck Company about 10 o'clock last night an alarm was received from Nineteenth street and Benning road northeast. The local boys had a fine opportunity to show how it is done in Washington, sliding down the poles from their sleeping quarters, donning their uniforms and swinging onto the engines and trucks.

Auxiliary Prepares Luncheon.

Mrs. Grace Weitzel, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fire Department, and many members of the auxiliary, worked most of last night preparing 5,000 lunches for the visiting firemen to eat today.

One of the largest delegations is from Newcastle County, Del. This section is sending fifteen companies. The vanguard arrived early last night in a group of 25 from Holloway Terrace, Del.

Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, marshal of the parade, was so enthusiastic last night over the good representation in evidence that he said plans will be made to invite fire delegations from all over the United States next year. Sergt. Bargagni also said that he would make efforts to have National Firemen's Day celebrated here at the same time.

A.F. of L. Organizer Looks Back to 1881

George Perkins Finds Labor and Capital Closer Than Ever Before.

Chicago, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Labor Day in the Golden Jubilee year of the American Federation of Labor finds labor and capital in closer accord than at any time in the fifty years' existence of the workers' organization, according to George W. Perkins, one of the few organizers of the Federation still living.

Perkins, now 75 years old, voluntarily retired as international president of the Cigarmakers Union after 35 years in that office. He was throughout his career a close associate of the late Samuel Gompers.

In 1881, when the Federation was founded in Pittsburgh, its course was set on economic rather than political action. Despite the urging of other than strong labor groups, the Red Revolutionary Labor Party, the Knights of Labor and later the Socialist Labor Party, the Federation held true to its first counsel, advocating only shorter working hours and better wages.

Mr. Perkins recalled that wages in 1881 were meager, with skilled workers in building trades getting only $1.25 per day. Hours were proportionately long before the Federation's eight-hour day program was generally adopted.

118 Gold Star Mothers End 1931 Pilgrimages

Paris, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The departure of 118 Gold Star mothers and widows of party "Q" today for England ended the 1931 pilgrimages to the battlefields of France.

A total of 5,419 mothers and widows, from every State of the United States, had made the trip as guests of the Government in 1930 and 1931. The pilgrimages will continue during the coming two years.

Fish Fight for Fair Ones Just Like Knights of Old

Siamese Sea Cavaliers Look at Females, Then at Each Other and Finally Start Hostilities for Benefit of Museum Visitors.

New York, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—People who feel strongly about exotic fish gathered today at the American Museum of Natural History to examine one of the strangest aggregations of fauna assembled since Noah's Ark. The two most popular fish on display from the layman's point of view, will fight at the drop of a hat.

There is one small blue fish which, in repose, looks as harmless as Jackie Coogan. This fellow, however, has a disposition like Schopenhauer's. He has already killed three mates, dispatching them neatly and without making much of a mess. And then, having no others to polish off, he turned around real quickly and bit his own tail off.

Next to the blue Dempsey in ferocity are the Siamese fighting fish, which have red fins they wave at friend or enemy, if they ever had a friend. These fish are known to the trade as Betta Cambogdia and in Siam they are trained to battle in the manner of cock-fighting. Natives of Siam are fond of Betta Cambogdia battles.

They take two males and put them in separate bowls of water. Then they bring out a bowl full of females, placing it between the two combatants.

The males stare rather resentfully at each other for a bit. Then they gradually start getting nasty. They begin churning up the water, waiving their red fins and looking daggers at each other. Finally, when their wrath reaches the stage that they've either got to fight or explode, they are tossed into the same tank.

From then on the action is fast. The Betta Cambogdia take their fighting seriously and there are no rest periods nor long counts. They fight until one or the other is dead.

Among the other fish at the exhibit—much more congenial creatures—are the walking fish, with fins which form rudimentary limbs and please the eye of evolutionists; armored catfish, and a sharpshooter fish which can squirt a stream of water several feet and bring down a fly.

RETURN FROM RESEARCH TOUR

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Ben Lightman, of Washington and New York returned here last night after an extended social research tour through Europe. Mr. Lightman, instructor of social theory and practice in the Training School of Social Work of New York, completed a study of social welfare conditions of minority groups in Latvia. Mrs. Lightman, formally a social worker in this city, assisted her husband in this work and they will jointly publish a volume reporting their findings. After a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Michael S. Wecksler, of Washington, they will leave for New York to continue their work in social research.

MOTION IN STAPLES CASE TO BE FOUGHT

Rover's Office Expected to Oppose Hunt's Effort to Expunge Report.

A fight against expunging the report of the grand jury that recommended the reinstatement of former Policeman Orville Staples and the punishment of those responsible for his dismissal is expected to be waged in court tomorrow by the district attorney's office.

Austin F. Canfield, attorney for Staples, was undecided last night whether he would ask leave of the court to join with the district attorney's office in the fight against the announced move of Albert W. Jacobson, attorney for Patrolman Joseph H. Hunt, to have the findings of the jury erased from the records.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover could not be reached last night and will not return here until tomorrow, but it is reliably reported that the district attorney's office, as legal adviser to the grand jury, would vigorously oppose any move for erasure.

In its report to the court, the grand jury recommended the reinstatement of Staples because of an alleged "framing," the dismissal of Patrolman Hunt, and the censuring of all police officials connected with the presentation of the case against the former policemen, which resulted in his dismissal in May, 1928.

Moves toward the consideration of the grand jury's recommendations are expected to be instituted tomorrow morning by the District Commissioners, who probably will take the first steps toward the selection of a civilian board to consider and act upon the report.

delivered over the radio to the superintendent of police.

Sergt. Haislip was away on leave the day the speech was given, was off duty yesterday and will be on leave again today, Capt. Holmes said. The policeman could not be reached at his home by a Post reporter who wished to invite him to present specific cases of "inaccurate statements" printed concerning the Police Department.

Col. Goddard Is Pleased By Police Plans Here

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., Sept. 6.—Following his lecture to student policemen at the Police Training School in Washington, Lieut. Col. Calvin Goddard, professor of police science at Northwestern University, arrived here Saturday to visit friends.

Commenting on the Washington Police Department, Col. Goddard said: "I was very pleased to see the splendid progress Washington police are making with plans for future development. They emphasize the ideals of patriotism, military discipline and faithfulness that are found in the Marine Corps and Army."

Police Act to End New Spanish Strike

Population in Bilbao Is Laying In Supplies; Traffic Hampered.

Bilbao, Spain, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Police were armed with rifles and reinforced for street patrol tonight as a precaution against disorders threatened by a general strike, starting tomorrow.

The population was laying in supplies. About 70 per cent of the city's traffic was halted today by a strike of tramway workers.

Barcelona, Spain, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Although various labor organizations said they would not adhere to an agreement to return to work tomorrow, the general strike which paralyzed Barcelona over the week-end appeared to have been ended tonight. The city was calm. An official announcement said the casualties in fighting since Friday totaled seven dead.

Reds and Arms Seized in Spain.

Madrid, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Twenty-one Communists were arrested and a quantity of arms seized today when police broke up an attempted demonstration.

U.S. FETES AWAITING EXPLORERS OF PERU

Five Youths Returning After Discovering Ruins of Great Wall.

New York, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Five young men, who set out nine months ago on an expedition to the Andean domains of the ancient Peruvian Incas, will return to New York tomorrow loaded with photographs, movie films and veritable mountains of scientific data on the land of a lost civilization.

Members of the expedition are George R. Johnson, 30, photographer; Robert Shippee, 21, coleader with Johnson, of the expedition; Irving G. Hay, 24; Valentine Van Keuren, 30, and Max Distel, 24.

They will arrive on the Grace liner Santa Clara, and an escort of six planes of the New Jersey National Guard will escort the ship up the bay. A large reception committee will greet the youthful explorers at the dock and a long series of luncheons, receptions and banquets have been arranged in their honor.

At one time during their stay in Peru members of the expedition were forced to aid Peruvian revolutionists with their planes. They were cut off for ten days in the "lost" Colca Valley during another military revolt; they were separated and stranded on the Pampas high in the Andes with a crippled airplane; and they wrecked one of their planes at Cuzco so badly that it had to be shipped back to the United States.

They flew a total of 454 hours, 44 of them at such heights that oxygen had to be used. They covered Peru from Tumbez to Tacna.

They took 3,000 oblique and vertical aerial pictures, made 1,000 still photographs and used nearly 30,000 feet of motion picture film both from the air and on the ground.

Of their discoveries during the expedition, the most noteworthy is considered their discovery and authentication of ruins of the great wall of Peru in the Santa Valley. They photographed the crumbled palace-city of the Great Chimu, near Trujillo, obtained picture records of the glacial heights of the maritime cordillera, never before crossed by plane, and surveyed by air the fourteen forgotten villages of the Colca Valley, 10,000 feet in the mountains back of Arequipa.

Bicentennial Paper Is Hit by Mrs. Ross

Democratic Woman Worker Calls It "Like Partisan Campaign Appeal."

(United Press.)

A charge that the George Washington Bicentennial committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs had issued a pamphlet which reads "like a partisan campaign document by the Republican national committee in the interest of the candidacy of President Hoover for reelection" was made yesterday by Nellie Tayloe Ross, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The pamphlet in question, Mrs. Ross said, takes the form of a suggested program for celebration of the admission of individuals to citizenship, favorably comparing the careers of President Hoover and George Washington, and "exalts him (Mr Hoover) rather than the first President."

"I am impelled," Mrs. Ross said, "to express my conviction that it should be withdrawn."

American Church Dedicated in Paris

U. S. Citizens Donate New Edifice; Prominent Persons Present.

Paris, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Paris, rich in religious edifices, was given still another today by members of the congregation of the American Church in Paris and their friends in the United States.

Dedication services were conducted for the new American Church on the Qual d'Orsay, the first large church erected in Paris since the building of the Sacre Coeur Vasilica, in the presence of many prominent Americans, some of whom crossed the Atlantic for the service.

Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, of New York, liberal donors to the church's building fund, and Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, of Washington, D. C. Ambassador and Mrs. Edge, Consul General and Mrs. Leo J. Keena, of the American Embassy staff, and Col. Grandsart, representing President Doumer, also attended.

PRESIDENT URIBURU SCANS YEAR'S WORK

Interest in League of Nations Expressed as Revolution Is Celebrated.

(Associated Press.)

President Uriburu of Argentina yesterday defended his administration in a radio address commemorating the first anniversary of the revolution which overthrew Irigoyen. Extracts from the address were cabled to the embassy here.

Uriburu contrasted his foreign policy with the nationalism of Irigoyen and expressed great interest in the League of Nations, which was referred to as a "greatly beneficial entity."

He said he had reduced the government expenditure from 1,074,000,000 to 873,000,000 pesos, exclusive of certain autonomous branches of the government, meeting punctually the expenditures.

Social order, he said, has been assured and extremist elements suppressed. Communist propaganda, which he said had been carried on by the "so-called Russian commercial organization Amtorg," has been stopped, and members expelled from the country.

Among economies cited was readjustment of the officer personnel of the army, which he said has resulted in a saving of 2,369,000 pesos.

The government, he said, is backing agriculture by extending credit to the farmers. Agriculture cooperative societies, he said, have increased 11 per cent with loans to them from the Banco de la Nacion, increasing 33 per cent in comparison with the previous year.

Buriburu cited impetus given by the government to the construction of public works. He said the existing state of siege is justified by attempted conspiracies by men linked with the Irigoyen administration. He added that the normal activity of the citizens has not been affected.

The president assured the country of general elections throughout Argentina November 8 and said constitutional amendments designed to correct previous political errors would be submitted to the next Congress.

Sandino Says 6 Marines Died in Recent Battle

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—A statement received here today from Augustino Sandino, Nicaraguan insurgent chieftain, said that during the two months prior to August 20, when the statement was dated, the insurgents participated in 23 fights, in one of which six United States Marines and 53 national guardsmen were killed.

This battle, the statement said, took place at Port Wuaspuck, on the Coco river. Sixty thousand cartridges were captured by the insurgents, it was stated.

The statement also said that the rebel chieftain now was preparing a great offensive for November and December, coinciding with the Pan-American conference, and that Sandino "refuses to be fooled by diplomatic ambushes and will fight to the death" unless the Marines leave Nicaragua.

Orders to his army, it was said, are still to burn Nicaraguan cities and he adds that the responsibility must fall on the United States and Latin American governments, especially those of Central America.

Resignation of Cabinet In Bolivia Is Reported

La Paz, Bolivia, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—It was reported unofficially today that the Bolivian cabinet had resigned, but that the ministers were continuing in office until an official realignment is made.

The government declined to confirm the report, but it was understood President Daniel Salamanca would attempt to form a new cabinet before a crisis developed.

Mexican Police Aid Foreigners.

Mexico City, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The Mexico City police department is soon to have a new division devoted exclusively to cases involving foreigners. The new department is felt to be necessary to deal adequately with those who can not speak Spanish.

Corporal Shoots Two, Kills Self.

Balboa, Canal Zone, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Corporal Alvin C. Angwin, of the U. S. Army, went suddenly insane at France Field today and shot Privates Earl Stacks and Carl Lockwood before committing suicide. Stacks was shot in the abdomen and right arm and is not expected to live. Lockwood was hit in the right leg.

Dominican Adviser on Way to U. S.

anto Domingo, Dominican Republic, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—William E. Dunn, financial adviser to the Dominican government, left today in an airplane for Washington. His trip is in connection with the proposed loan to this republic.

abuse of the taxing power is the most fruitful."

"Nowhere, is this more strikingly shown than in England where an empire, once the greatest and wealthiest in recorded history, is now on its knees financially and the pound sterling once the acknowledged standard of financial stability, threatens to go the way of the mark and the franc."

To every labor gathering in the country the Federation of Labor's committee for modification of the Volstead act sent a proclamation promising "modification before another Labor Day," if organized labor and its friends cooperate.

"There are nearly 5,000,000 organized workers," the proclamation said. "This great army, in Labor Day meetings, will consider labor's outstanding problems. Chief among these are unemployment and the denial of freedom through Volsteadism.

"Volsteadism is a basic cause of unemployment and crime. * * * We have the strength, in cooperation with the great numbers friendly to our cause, to overthrow Volsteadism through modification this winter."

MRS. POWERS HELD AS SILVER IS FOUND

Her Sister Also Is Arrested When Property Is Identified as Mrs. Eicher's.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—While the wife and sister-in-law of Harry F. Powers were placed under technical arrest today, officers continued investigation of the slaying of two women and three children here.

The arrests followed discovery of silverware and clothing identified as the property of Mrs. Asta Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill., and Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, of North Bridge, Mass., two of the victims. Mrs. Eicher's three children also were slain.

A quantity of silverware identified as the property of Mrs. Eicher was found in the Powers home today. Clothing marked with the names of both slain women was found last night.

Plans were made to dig beneath the home and the small store occupying part of the structure to trace the source of a foul odor pervading the rooms.

Identification of part of the goods as property of Mrs. Lemke was made by Mrs. Charles Fleming, of Northboro, Mass., a sister of the slain woman. Mrs. Powers and her sister, Eva Belle Strother, denied knowledge of the articles.

French Celebrate First Marne Fight

Demand Is Reiterated That Moral Disarmament Precede Junking.

Paris, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The French demand that "moral disarmament" precede the destruction of battleships was reiterated today by Minister of Air Jacques Louis Dumesnil at a ceremony in commemoration of the first battle of the Marne.

The anniversary of the birth of Lafayette was observed in Paris with the rasing of a flag, presented by the City of Philadelphia, over the Hotel De Ville, simultaneous with the ceremony at Meaux, honoring the memory of Marshal Joffre and the soldiers who fell on the Marne.

Dumesnil observed that since the enforcement of the covenant of the League of Nations, France had reduced her armed forces 42 per cent despite responsibility for a colonial empire 23 times the size of France.

The ceremony was commemorative of the first battle, which was decided on September 6, 1914, when Von Kluck's army was turned back after crossing the Marne. The battle has been described by critics as changing the entire course of the World War.

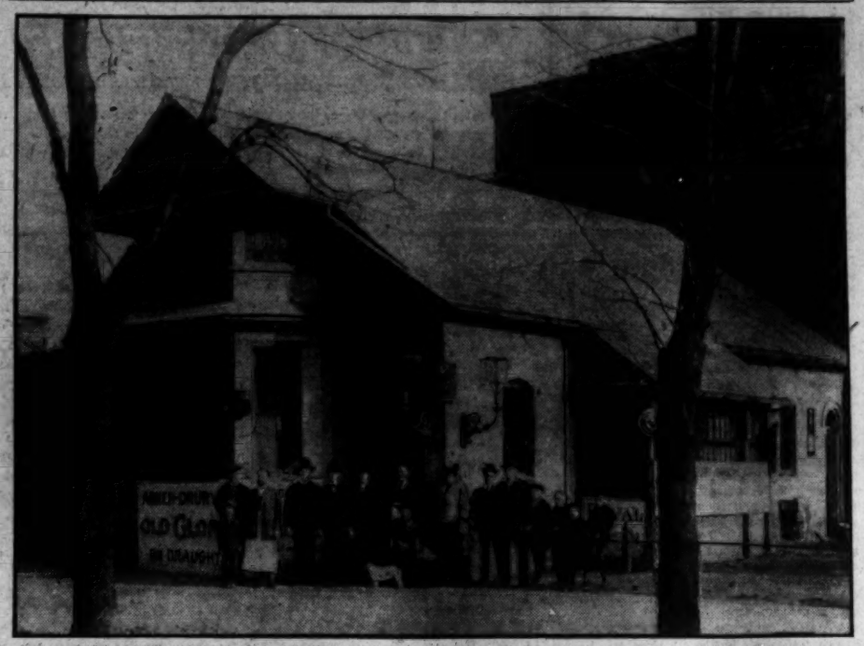
When Washington Was Younger—No. 37



THE days when liquor flowed freely from the corner saloon and every stein was worth a song are brought back in the above picture of H. Albert Buehler's saloon, once a mecca for Washington playgoers, actors, artists and members of the old Washington Light Infantry, now extinct.

The clubby-looking little building with the inviting sign and congenial patrons in front was located on the southeast corner of Fifteenth and E streets northwest, just south of the old Albaugh Opera House, later Chase's, and until recently Poli's.

The picture was taken in the fall of 1906, when prohibition was only a Rechabite's dream. Mr. Buehler, now head of the H. Albert Buehler Provision Co., of Silver Spring, Md., is third from left in the group, and the boy at his right is his son, Albert B. Buehler, now associated with him in business.

The low building on the left was Neumeyer's wholesale liquor house, maintained by the late Edward Neumeyer. The building in the background served as a studio for the late Henry Ulke, well-known portrait painter of his day. Buehler's saloon, under the blight of prohibition, finally deteriorated into a gasoline station before it was razed sometime ago to make way for the new Commerce Department Building.

ORTIZ RUBIO DENIES CHINESE EXPULSION

President of Mexico Writes to Capital Groups Which Entered Protests.

Mexico is not expelling Chinese from the country, but has only restrained Chinese business men who refuse to comply with Mexican laws in conducting their business activities, President Ortiz Rubio last night informed Judge Paul M. Linebarger, of Washington.

The communication from the presidential palace at Chapultepec, Mexico, was in response to a protest against the expulsion of Chinese, sent by the American Friends of China Society and the Chinese Students Club.

The communication from President Rubio read: "I would call your attention to what has been done in some of the states of the Mexican Federation. The action of such states was only to exact from Chinese merchants and manufacturers a compliance with the laws of Mexico, especially as regards the employment of a certain percentage of Mexicans in their respective businesses.

"Those Chinese citizens who did not care to accept the exactions of our laws have been driven out of our country for such reasons. In fact, they have only been prevented from following their business activities and many of them have gone to other states, where they are not molested. Hence, I repeat, that they have not been driven from the country."

League Convenes At Geneva Today

World's Economic Ills and Disarmament Overshadow All Other Issues.

Geneva, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The League of Nations will convene in its annual assembly here tomorrow with economic depression and disarmament overshadowing all other issues.

With a view to dissolving Europe's economic troubles, the assembly will deal with the proposals of the Commission for European Union, which has been meeting concurrently with the league council.

In attacking the world problem of economic dislocation, the assembly will have the advantage of the survey prepared by the league's economic committee upon the causes and circumstances of the prevailing disorders in industry, commerce and finance.

But more immediately in the foreground will be the recommendations of the Wiggin committee of international bankers, headed by Albert H. Wiggin, of New York, which recently urged revision of reparations and war debts.

As for disarmament, the assembly must make definite preparations for the world conference, which is summoned to convene here February 2.

Chicken Eats Lid to Bowl.

Bastian, Va. (U.P.)—Returning from a visit in the neighborhhod, J. H. Breeden missed the lid of the family sugar bowl. His wife was preparing a young chicken for dinner. When the chicken was cut open, the lid was discovered in its gizzard.

The GIRL About Town

EVERBODY is distressed by the news that the Davila family is meeting with misfortune in Chile. Former Ambassador Davila is in prison for attempting to restore the Ibanez regime, and Mme. Davila is said to be in want. Carlos Davila is a true patriot. His wife is beloved by every one in Washington society. We earnestly hope that affairs will turn in their favor.

I'm glad to see in the latest news from the funny page that Skeezix is cleared of the suspicion of starting fires. He is not to be criticized for liking to see big fires. I always go to three-alarm fires, and I would rather see the firemen's parade on Labor Day than any inauguration. If the fine old fire horses, Tom, Gene and Barney, are not in today's parade I shall feel like crying.

I saw David Ingalls reading the news about Jimmy Doolittle's cross-country flight of less than twelve hours from coast to coast. David had determination in his eye. He is now looking for a Navy pilot who can do it in ten hours straight. Good luck, Davie! Mrs. Ingalls and the children will be back in Washington by October. She is as mad about flying as the Assistant Secretary, and, were it not for the Ingalls youngsters would be piloting her own plane.

THOSE Rubio boys, sons of the President of Mexico, gave sensible interviews in the New York papers. If they come to Washington, the girls will be glad to meet them. Of course, there is nothing permanent about being the son of a President of Mexico, but scions of rulers are always scarce, and they will receive a hearty welcome.

I want to see that poem which the bluejacket wrote about Newport. How silly to give him a summary court-martial! Newport, from a bluejacket's point of view, must have been delicious. Are we going to check all genius in the American Navy? That boy should be patted on the back, and asked to produce an epic on Will Wood's plans to "scuttle" the Navy and save the pork barrel.

Gen. Pershing is home from France. I hope he does write another book. I have his first one, and it is just like him, frank, unaffected and modest. He even gives credit for that immortal saying, "Lafayette, we are here!" to another man. But history will insist that Gen. Pershing said it, no matter how much he may expostulate.

This Fellow Really Was Waiting for Car

Buffalo, N. Y. (U.P.).—"I'm not kidding you," twelve policemen were told when they doubted a young man's explanation that he was "waiting for a trolley car," at 3 a. m. The policemen, answering a burglar alarm, had found the young man crawling on his hands and knees over the cellar grating of a store.

"Honest, I'm not kidding you," the young men pleaded. "I dropped my car fare down the grating, and I haven't any more money. I'm only waiting for a trolley car."

COTTON CALL NEAR IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Governor Awaits Only for Notice of Texas' Session to Summon Houses.

(Associated Press.)

Letters calling members of the Texas Legislature into special session Tuesday noon to enact measures of relief for the cotton farmer were mailed yesterday. The Governor of South Carolina said he probably would call its Legislature into session for the same purpose on September 15.

Ibra Blackwood, South Carolina's chief executive, said a special session to consider means of relieving the cotton-price situation was "inevitable," but he would like to have official notification of the call of Gov. Sterling of Texas before taking action.

Gov. Russell of Georgia, commenting on the action of Texas, which holds the balance of power in the cotton acreage reduction movement, said he would have no statement to make as to when the Georgia Legislature would be convened until Tuesday morning. He had previously said he would act when "Texas acts."

Advocates "No Cotton."

Eugene Talmadge, Georgia commissioner of agriculture, who has been "stumping the State," urging farmers to telephone, wire, write or personally request the governor to call the extra session, was elated over Gov. Sterling's action. The commissioner is an advocate of the "no-cotton in 1932" plan of Gov. Long of Louisiana, the prime mover in the present ban proposal.

Talmadge said that he had been invited by J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, to address the Texas Assembly Wednesday, and that he would leave after a radio talk tonight for Austin. Gov. Long, Talmadge said, had also been invited to speak before the Texas Legislature on the same day.

Gov. Long obtained the passage of legislation by the Assembly of Louisiana prohibiting cotton production in 1932, provided 75 per cent of the other cotton-producing States acted likewise. No other State has as yet taken such action.

Await Texas Action.

Talmadge said he had talked to Gov. Long over the telephone yesterday and that the Louisiana executive had expressed the hop that Georgia, South Carolina and Arkansas would call extra sessions of their Legislatures simultaneously, in order that the question of cotton legislation might be settled as early as possible.

Gov. Parnell of Arkansas, in commenting on Gov. Sterling's call, intimated he would call an extra session as soon as the Texas Legislature acted.

The secretary of Gov. Blackwood of South Carolina said he was "reasonably certain" the governor would call an extra session on the cotton problem within a few days.

Irish Free State Editor And Senate Leader Dies

Dublin, Irish Free State, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Senator Patrick Hooper, 58, vice chairman of the Free State Senate, died suddenly today.

He was London editor of the Freeman's Journal from 1912 to 1916 and then editor of the paper until it ceased publication.

10 Terrapins Flash Speed To Enter Final Derby Dash

Ponca City, Okla., Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The Southwest's premier sporting event, the Annual 101 Ranch National Terrapin Derby, will be run here tomorrow with prizes of more than $7,000 at stake.

A big terrapin, entered by Mrs. Elizabeth North, of Sparks, Okla., definitely established itself as the favorite today, winning a preliminary race in almost record time. The turtle crawled the 75 feet in one minute and 12 seconds as a crowd of 5,000 cheered its performance.

Out of the 3,551 entrants, 10 terrapins, winners of trial heats, will be placed at the exact center of a circle 75 feet in radius. At a signal from the timekeeper, they will be released from a wire cage and the derby will be on.

The terrapins will be free to wander wherever fancy dictates, and the first one to cross the circle line will be declared the winner. Its owner will receive first-place prize of $3,551.

"It's not the speed that counts especially," explained Col. Zack I. Miller, owner of the ranch. "You've got to have a terrapin with exceptionally good nerves.

"I've seen many a fleet-footed terrapin sprint almost to the circle line and then turn back to meander around while another was winning."

Each terrapin entered represents a fee of $2. Half the $7,102 goes to the first place and the other $3,551 will be divided among other winners.

MUSICAL PICTURES AGAIN TO BE VOGUE

Hollywood Studios Resume Production in Earnest; Girls Are Reduced.

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Musical picture production has been earnestly resumed in Hollywood studios.

However, there will not be so many musicals as a year ago, nor will there be even half so much music.

The well-known but hardly well-liked custom of showing the star of the picture frequently breaking into song, often without any pretext whatsoever, has been tossed into the Hollywood waste basket of forgotten things, the limbo of many expensive experiments.

With the revival comes announcement of the chorus-girlless musical comedy. William Le Baron, of R. K. O.-Radio, said today that his company will film the stage play, "Girl Crazy," but that while there will be plenty of music, there will be no dancing girl ensembles.

Tibbett Makes New Film.

The other pictures just completed are out-and-out musical comedies, girls and all. They are Eddie Cantor's "Palmy Days" and picturization of Bert Lahr's "Flying High," with Bert still doing the flying. Lawrence Tibbett also has completed another musical film, "The Cuban," in which the Tibbett voice is predominant.

The rest of the industry will watch reaction to the musical comedies closely. If they are successful, there's no telling how many more will be made.

Apparently the public is in a receptive mood for a limited amount of music. Salesmen for Paramount report numerous requests from exhibitors for pictures with music in them. There is a wide difference between films with music and musical films. The studio is planning at least three such films.

The next costarring effort of Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, ("Delicious," by the Brothers Gershwin) will contain a music sequence that takes place in a dream. Hence, if the comeback of music seems premature after the film is completed, the sequence can be jerked without harming the story.

One Song for Star.

Marilyn Miller's next will be a dramatic story, with the musical comedy star singing only one number. Warners-First National also have a Winnie Lightner "comedy with music" scheduled, but these pioneer film musical makers have no others planned.

The musical background seems to be gaining favor. Universal is using it in two pictures, "Frankenstein" and "Heaven on Earth," but this studio's recent release of the singing John Boles is an indication that "backgrounds" will be the extent of its musical endeavors. Pathe is arranging scores for its next Ann Harding and Constance Bennett vehicles. This idea helps greatly to accentuate the action.

The introduction of songs seems to be most acceptable when they further the plot motivation. Last year moviegoers became almost weary listening to the epidemic of unnecessary music.

So Hollywood, ever anxious to give the public anything its heart desires, about-faced and concocted a series of screen characters who couldn't possibly sing. These were the gangsters.

LONDON MOB PLANS FIGHT ON COALITION

demning his action in participating in the new national government.

"Membership in the national government," the resolution declared, "is incompatible with membership in the Labor Party, and in view of Mr Thomas' participation in the national government we withdraw the party's indorsement of his candidacy for Parliamentary representative for this constituency."

The minister was present at the meeting himself and explained his action, and the motives for it, to the council. He said he was not surprised at the result, but added he would not resign his seat, but would "go through, regardless of the consequences, for good or ill."

Henderson to Speak.

A great crowd gathered at Bristol for the annual demonstration in connection with tomorrow's meeting of the trades union congress. Arthur Hayday, chairman of the congress, presided. Twenty-three members of Parliament will attend the opening of the congress tomorrow, but they will return to London tomorrow night. Former Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson is expected to address the congress Thursday.

"The industrial wing of the Labor party," President Hayday said at today's meeting, "has been compelled suddenly to take up an outstanding position in consequence of prolonged and vicious attacks which have been made on the material standards of life and the well-being of the great mass of the people."

The affiliated membership of the congress will be reported to tomorrow's meeting as 3,719,401, which is a decrease of 24,919 under the membership of last year. The loss is mainly in the textile and building trades. There will be 587 delegates, compared with 606 last year.

30 Degrees Below Zero.

The plane, piloted by Curtis Quick, of San Francisco, soared over the field until the elevators on the tail of the plane froze, Capt. White said. It was about 30 degrees below zero. The pilot and jumper breathed with oxygen tanks carried in the plane.

As he jumped Capt. White said, he slipped the oxygen tube from his mouth. The thin air caused him partially to lose consciousness for a minute or two, he said, but he was able to pull the rip cord on his parachute within about two or three seconds.

He fell between 200 and 300 feet before the parachute opened and landed in a corn field about 13 miles south of the airport. He wore an electrically heated suit and carried two parachutes, one for high altitudes and the other for low.

Although Capt. White suffered no ill effects, Quick became ill but managed to land his plane safely.

Before the new altitude record becomes official the barograph which the plane carried must be calibrated at Washington.

MINISTER ACCUSED OF MURDERING SON

Story That He Met Navy Lad in Washington Fails to Satisfy Officers.

Rochelle, Ga., Sept. 6 (U.P.).—A minister was arrested and held without bail today, charged with murder of his own son.

The Rev. J. N. Williams was arrested here and taken to Augusta. Near there the body of his son, Raford Grady Williams, was found near his father's automobile on the night of August 5 with bullet wounds through his heart and head.

Deputy Sheriff W. W. Cobb tonight said the murder charge grew out of evidence that the father had obtained leave for his son from the U. S. naval ship on which he was quartered, on grounds the boy's sister was gravely ill.

It later developed, Cobb said, that the girl was suffering only slight discomfort from boils and was not in a serious condition. She is a student in the Martha Berry schools for mountain children near Rome, Ga., he added.

There had been several contradictions in evidence in the case, the deputy said. Mr. Williams was reported to have told authorities he met his son in Washington, D. C., but that friends had insisted the father and boy had met in North Carolina, authorities said.

The officer further contended that the 45-year-old minister borrowed a pistol from a friend here for protection on the trip to meet his son and that wounds in the boy's body were caused by a gun of the same caliber as the borrowed weapon.

Mr. Williams, Cobb said, collected $2,500 insurance on the boy's life. The sailor was understood to have a wife and child in New England.

A preliminary hearing probably will be held Wednesday, Cobb said.

REBEL SHIPS BOMBED BY CHILEAN AVIATORS

and are expected to be put into puntive service.

The cruiser Riveros, which attacked the base at Talcahuano yesterday and was captured by the loyal troops, has been repaired by navy officers and crews remaining loyal to the government, it said, and was ready to serve as the nucleus which will be launched against the rebel ships at sea.

Details received here some time after the attack said the bow of the battleship O'Higgins was damaged by the bombs, but the vessel was still functioning. The condition of the battleship La Torre was not reported.

Rebel ships have raided the private freighter Flora off Coquimbo before the bombardment and seized provisions.

The O'Higgins was set on fire by a bomb which struck her, but the crew put the blaze out. Another bomb dropped immediately afterward missed the ship, but struck a launch containing a group of the sailors. The launch was sunk and the sailors are believed to have been lost.

When the bombardment became heavy the population of the town began to flee. The government had two special trains on the tracks and these were quickly filled, jammed to the doors. They sped away to the south immediately.

Hundreds of people who were not able to get aboard the trains fled in automobiles, trucks, wagons, carts and on horseback and hundreds more took to their beds inland.

The penalty, if American officers decided conditions warranted, could be death and it is one of the few offenses for which execution can be ordered.

There never has been a time when United States sailors overthrew their officers and seized their ship.

Just at the close of the World War, however, a group of German sailors mutinied. Their punishments were lightened by the end of the conflict.

But never before, so far as State Department and naval officials recall, has a navy mutinied because of reductions in pay.

(Associated Press.)

The mutinous Chilean navy has a status, and problems, of its own.

So far as the State Department is concerned, it does not yet exist as a rebellious force. It has no international standing; diplomacy forbids that any power treat with it. To the rest of the world the Chilean navy is in a private fight with the Santiago government.

But should shipping or any other property of a foreign nation be bothered the picture would change. The mutineers could, and probably would, be called upon for an explanation.

If they declined, they could be regarded as akin to pirates. That would mean that every warship of every other nation would be privileged to attack them.

The State Department, however, is confident that such a situation will not arise. For that reason it and the Navy have not ordered any fighting ships to Chilean waters. Likewise the State Department knows of no such action by any other country.

The punishment for mutiny is regulated by domestic law and consequently varies in different places. In the United States Navy it is ranked with the most serious offenses, such as treason or desertion in time of war.

Gandhi Takes Part In Service on Liner

Indian Leader Drops Spinning for Christian Worship; May Visit U. S.

Aboard S. S. Rajputana, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi dropped his ceaseless spinning to attend a Christian religious service today aboard this liner, which is taking India's Nationalist leader to the London round-table conference.

As a compliment to India's "holy one," Capt. H. Morton Jack had the famous Hindu's favorite Christian hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," sung.

In the solemn stillness of the Red Sea, Gandhi's own tiny, lisping voice was easily distinguishable above the others.

At Suez he was warmly welcomed by Egyptians and Indians, who greeted him with addresses of appreciation. They declared his attempts to liberate India were an inspiration to Egyptians to shake off the foreign yoke.

While he will not commit himself regarding invitations to visit America, it is still possible, friends say, that he will pay a quick visit to New York, provided he succeeds at the London conference.

RECORD HEAT WAVE GRIPS SOUTHWEST

No Relief From Midsummer Weather Seen; Rains Bring Scant Relief.

Kansas City, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Sweltering midsummer temperatures continued in the Southwest today, scattered wind and rain storms offering little relief from what in many cases was unprecedented September heat.

Forecasts for Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Nebraska, and Texas generally predicted more heat tomorrow.

Kansas and Oklahoma thermometer readings for the most part equaled or fell only slightly under yesterday's unexpected record breaking marks. The heat was the most intense in those States.

Kingfisher, Okla., reported 107 degrees, the same as yesterday, a record high for September. One hundred degrees or more was registered throughout Oklahoma. A wind storm swept Atoka, razing a crowded baseball stand and seriously injuring one fan.

At Wichita, Kans., the mercury rose to 104.2 degrees, a September record.

To the north, in Nebraska, a reading of 101.8 degrees in Omaha established a new high for September 6. North Platte, Nebr., sweltered at 102 degrees. Corsicana, Tex., reported 103 degrees.

It was slightly cooler in Missouri. Kansas City's high was 98 degrees, three below yesterday's record. St. Louis reported a maximum of 96.

Man Found Hung After 2 Are Slain

Suspect Accused of Killing Girl's Father and Brother Over Courtship.

Milwaukee, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The body of Nichols Fumek, 35, Detroit, was found hanging in a barn here early today, a few hours after he was accused by police of fatally shooting Steven Hirchak, 57, and his son, William, 25, both of Milwaukee, in a quarrel over one of Hirchak's daughters, Rose, 23.

Mrs. Anna Hirchak, 47, mother of Rose, was wounded seriously by two bullets from the slayer's revolver. She was struck in the lung and in the hand.

She told the police Fumek met Rose in Detroit three years ago and when Rose returned to Milwaukee several weeks ago, because of his unwelcome courtship, he followed her. Hirchak also objected to Fumek's suitorship.

The family, returning from a church festival last night, heard a commotion at the henhouse of their place on the outskirts of the city and William went to investigate. Almost immediately three shots were heard, and he staggered into the house fatally wounded.

The father went to the door with a shotgun, but was met on the doorstep by the assailant and fatally shot. Police, searching for the slayer, found his body hanging in a barn about 300 feet from the Hirchak home.

STORMS IN EUROPE CAUSE DEATH TOLL

Rain, Snow, Floods and High Winds Reported in France, Germany and Italy.

Paris, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Snow, floods, rains and temperatures as low as 37 degrees fahrenheit featured France's week-end weather today and last night.

A seaman was washed overboard and drowned in a storm near St. Nazaire and a farm laborer was drowned near Cherbourg in a rising stream.

The Marne, Rhone, Saone, Mozelle and Meuth Rivers were flooded, inundating neighboring fields.

Snow cut off communications near Little St. Bernard in Savoy and fell abundantly in the Pyrenees.

The temperature dropped to 37 degrees fahrenheit in Savoy and to 50 in Paris. Hail storms brought considerable damage to tobacco crops and vineyards in the Gironde district.

The Seine has never before been so high at this season.

Stettin, Germany, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Heavy gales lashed the Baltic Coast for 36 hours up to tonight, sunk several barges in Stettin Harbor, drove steamers into port and halted navigation generally.

The Hamburg freighter Ulf was stranded between Misdroy and Swinemunde, but the crew was saved.

In Bernhagen, near Naugard, the wind blew a wall down on several workers, killing one and injuring the rest.

Berlin, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Thirty yachts anchored on lakes in the vicinity of Berlin were overturned by winds tonight. Trees were snapped off in the streets and parks of the city.

Spezia, Italy, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Two sailors were missing today from a group of seven who were washed overboard from the Italian destroyer Da Recco in a heavy sea yesterday. The other five were rescued.

'Fill' Baffles Engineers On Lake-to-Gulf Road

Cochranton, Pa., (U.P.).—The Perry highway, part of a proposed Lake Erie-Gulf of Mexico route, has been completed with the exception of the baffling "fill" at Custard's swamp which has defied the efforts of highway engineers.

Thousands of cubic yards of earth have been dumped in the 2,000-foot stretch of highway through the swamp. The first "fill" disappeared almost overnight and only by adding large quantities of earth have the engineers succeeded in filling the stretch.

Loaded Boston Bus Is Reported Stolen

Boston, (U.P.).—A Boston elevated motor bus, loaded with passengers, was reported stolen here.

It seems that Operator Thomas Lane parked the bus in the Back Bay and entered a building. When he came out a few minutes later the vehicle was gone.

Investigation revealed that John Perrin, a relief operator, had driven the bus along its scheduled route by error.

U. S. Men Make Important European Excavation Finds

Half Life-Size Fourteenth Century Statue of Virgin Is Principal Discovery This Year by Princeton Archeological Expedition Now En Route Home.

Paris, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The Princeton archeological expedition headed by George H. Forsythe, of Princeton, and Prof. William A. Campbell, of Wellesley, is en route to the United States on the Europa, after a successful season's excavations in the ancient Church of St. Martin's, at Angers, where they concentrated on Carolingian or pre-Romanesque architecture.

The principal discovery this year was that of a half life-size fourteenth century Virgin in stone, excellently preserved and painted but with the child missing. The Virgin was found sealed in a vault under the south transept of the church, and will take its place among the historic antiquities now placed in the edifice, which is classed as a monument.

The expedition reports a fruitful period of work, especially in the amount of archeological specimens found of the Carolingian period, and of the numbers of stones from painted sections of what was probably a Roman basilica of the first century of the Christian era.

Although one of the most important discoveries was found by the Abbe Pinier, that of the seventh century foundations of the church, the Princeton expedition learned that subsequent architectural restorations and reconstructions had been made to St. Martin's in the eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth and fifteenth centuries.

Among the things found this year were Roman coins of the first century A. D., and coins issued at Constantinople in the fourth century.

One of the notable restorations which the Princeton expedition is credited with is the bringing to light of some twelfth century paintings on the walls of the church which had been covered with whitewash in the eighteenth century.

Although the expedition is mainly interested in the relics of Carolingian centuries, their efforts to establish historic data have carried them through the successive centuries that followed, especially the medieval and prerevolutionary days, of which much remains of the old church.

Both Forsythe and Campbell attribute much of the success of the work to each other's indefatigable industry and patience, and it appears that both archeologists but modestly and reluctantly admit the full extent of their discoveries. In establishing one of its most interesting medieval and post-Roman museums, the French government pays a well-earned tribute to the American scholars, for St. Martin's, as a continuous historic relic throughout pagan and Christian ages, is now considered one of the foremost archeological studies in Europe.

7 MILES PER MINUTE IS BRITISH AIR HOPE

Planes of Radical Design Are Almost Paper-Like in Construction.

Calshot, England, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Hopes of Britain to set a word speed record for human transport are centered in two new seaplanes which will compete in the Schneider Cup races in the Solent September 17.

Althought France and Italy have withdrawn from the races the British fliers will race against each other.

The two planes in which it is hoped to set new marks are similar in appearance to the wasp-like machines in which records of 328 and 331 miles an hour were set in the races two years ago, but radical changes in internal design have been made. It is believed the alterations may bring a speed of between 400 and 420 miles this year.

Design Is Kept Secret.

The changes in design are a closely guarded British air ministry secret, but it is known that among them are adaptations to permit use of the floats for fuel tanks, utilization of most of the wing and upper float surfaces for cooling of oil and water, and better stream lining of the cowl to decrease air resistance.

The two new machines, which have the official designation S6B, weigh only 4,030 pounds, or 5,320 pounds with full petrol load and pilot.

The weight of the Rolls-Royce engine alone is 1,535 pounds.

Somewhat greater wing surface and larger floats have been forced on the designers by the rules of this year's race which require the difficult tests to be held just before the speed trials, with no refueling between them.

Wings Serve as Raditors.

The upper and lower surfaces of the wings of the new planes have been constructed as water radiators, so thin that they can be dented by the mere pressure of a finger nail. The slightest corrosion of the surfaces will cause a leak.

Along each side of the fuselage there are other radiators to cool the engine's oil, which is rushed through them as far back as the tail fin of the plane. They are so thin that they burst if cold oil is forced through them, making it necessary always to fill up with hot oil before starting the engine. Both floats are to carry fuel.

The planes have but one wing, fitted at the bottom of the fuselage. The pilots sit strapped in tightly with hands around their shoulders and waist. The machines sit lightly on the water, and at full speed will rise in between 20 and 30 seconds.

WOMEN'S RACE WON BY MISS MAUD TAIT

a lap and a half behind the Wedell-Williams was James Haizlip, of St. Louis, in a Laird biplane, who averaged approximately 164 miles an hour.

The average speed of the low-wing GeeBee was approximately 20 miles an hour greater than that of the winner of the 100-mile Thompson Trophy Race at the national air races in Chicago last year. The GeeBee continued a favorite to win the Thompson Trophy Race tomorrow, the speed classic for land planes.

After Hall landed his plane, Lowell Bayles, of Springfield, Mass., who attained the 286-mile speed in it Tuesday, postponed an attempt to set a new land plane speed record until tomorrow.

Maj. James H. Doolittle, who Friday set a new transcontinental, coast to coast flying record, announced he would also try for a new world speed record for land planes tomorrow morning. He will take the official three-kilometer course measured out for Bayles.

Maj. Doolittle, the first man to cross the continent in less than 24 hours and the first man to cross in less than 12, installed a new wasp motor in his Laird biplane, to increase the speed. The new motor is geared to a larger and more efficient propeller.

Capt. Frank Hawks, who lost his transcontinental record to Doolittle Friday, arrived from Concord, N. H., and told the crowd he had come to congratulate Doolittle. "It was a wonderful job," Hawks said.

Capt. Von Gronau, of Germany, who twice has flown across the Atlantic, flew his Dornier-Wahl over the stands.

Won Handicap Trophy.

Col. T. J. Herbert, of the Ohio National Guard, won the handicap Douglas Trophy race for National Guard planes, with an average speed of 141.955 miles an hour. Lieut. E. G. Carlisle of the Pennsylvania National Guard, was second with 139.39, and Lieut. Raymond Kutterer, of Missouri, was third with 139.245. The race was five laps around a ten-mile course.

Retractible landing gear on the larger of the two "mystery ships" piloted by Ray Moore, of San Francisco, was seriously damaged just after the ship had won a 25-mile closed course race, with an average speed of 185.097 miles an hour.

Moore said he was landing from the race course when the engine died at about a 40-foot altitude and the plane "pancaked" flat to the ground. Moore was not hurt. He said he would have the plane repaired in time for the Thompson Trophy race tomorrow afternoon.

In a race for planes of 275-cubic-inch piston displacement, Milford Lambert, of Niles, Mich., outaped the rest of the field with an average of 119.974 miles an hour. Bart Stevenson, of Kansas City, Mo., was next with 116.429 miles an hour and Art C. Chester, of Joliet, Ill., was third with 114.617. The race was 30 miles over a closed course.

Made Forced Landing.

Dale Jackson, of St. Louis, one-time coholder of the airplane refueling endurance record, announced he will pilot Lee Schoenhair's entry in the Thompson Trophy race. The plane, a Laird "Solution" type similar to Maj. Doolittle's, won the trophy race last year at Chicago. It was damaged a week ago while on the way to Los Angeles to participate in the Bendix Trophy race.

Capt. Bert White, of Rockhill, S. C., unofficially broke his own world record for high altitude parachute jumping when he bailed out of a Bellanca cabin plane at 27,000 feet. The previous height, from which Capt. White jumped in May, 1930, was 24,800 feet.

MAY TRAVEL 420 MILES AN HOUR

Radical changes in the internal design of its racing seaplanes are expected to result in British fliers speeding at 420 miles an hour in the Schneider Cup races at Calshot, England, September 12. The racers are designated as S6B planes. One is shown closeup below and above taking off on a test flight.

U. S. Pilot Praises German For Chivalry in '18 Battle

Walter B. Wanamaker, Now Judge in Akron, Receives Memento Which Maj. Ernst Udet Took From American's Plane He Shot Down.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Memories of a battle over France thirteen years ago were recalled today at the National Air Races by two men, the victor and the vanquished.

They are Common Pleas Judge Walter B. Wanamaker, Akron, and Maj. Ernst Udet, Germany's ranking living war ace and representing his country on the European stunt team performing at the races.

Between the two, from smiling, short Udet to dark haired and dapper Wanamaker, passed a memento of that battle. It was a picture frame in which was mounted a section of fabric from the tail of Wanamaker's plane which Udet shot down July 2, 1918.

Wanamaker, at that time a lieutenant with the 27th Squadron of the first pursuit group, told the story of the battle.

"I was in one of nine Nieuports under command of Fred Norton," he said, "flying south of Chateau-Thierry at 1,600 meters above a haze. Suddenly we met eleven enemy planes. We didn't know it was the famous Richthofen flying circus then.

"Norton decided to lead us into battle and I turned on a German who was diving on one of the American planes. Just as I was ready to let go a burst from my machine guns, a tracer bullet streaked past by nose. A glance over my shoulder showed a German pilot less than 50 feet away. Bullets riddled my plane and the only thing to do was to dive. I dropped in a spin, hoping he would think my plane out of control and leave me.

"But every time I would straighten out he would be waiting for me. The last time, at about 1,000 feet altitude, his bullets riddled my gas tank. I don't remember all that happened then, but some mechanical sense told me I must not let the plane fall intact behind the German lines.

"I nosed down—and that was the last I remembered until I woke up to find wreckage on my body and a ring of German soldiers forming a 50-foot circle around.

"They did not heed my calls to pull me from the wreckage until a young lieutenant strode through the circle. It was Udet, the man who had shot me down. 'He offered me a cigarette, and, seeing that I liked it, left a whole package with me. After pulling remnants of the plane away, examining the extent of my injuries, and ordering me taken care of, he took a section of the rudder and had me sign my name."

It was the fabric of this section that was returned to Wannamaker today. Below his name he signed his title. Wannamaker explained that he learned Udet's identity through a magazine story which the German war ace had published in which the battle between the two was described.

"Maj. Udet endeared himself to me because of the chivalrous treatment he gave me in the war," the judge said, "and has endeared himself further to all of the national air race crowds, to Clevelatnd, and to America because of the spirit of friendship and sportsma... he has displayed."

Mussolini Urged For New York City

Walker Is Just Clothier's Dummy, Asserts Guest Pastor on Broadway.

New York, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. Cortland Meyers, of Los Angeles, today told the congregation of the First Baptist Church, a Broadway congregation: "Mayor Walker is just a clothier's dummy. A man like Benito Mussolini is needed to clean up New York City."

"When you allow machine guns to roar in the streets," Dr. Meyers asserted, "when you allow crime to spread unchecked, you are living in worse conditions than those in the jungles of Africa.

"To stop it, I would call out the army, the militia. You are not doing anything. The mayor is not doing anything—he's in Europe drinking champagne and having badges pinned on him by the French government. Just another clothier's dummy. Give Mussolini one month and he would clean up New York City."

NEW FLOOD REGIONS REPORTED IN CHINA

Northwestern Anhwei Hit by Rising Rivers, Shanghai Messages Assert.

Shanghai, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Fresh tidings of disaster reached Shanghai tonight from widely separated areas emphasizing the nation-wide character of China's flood calamity, but confirmation was still lacking of the reported holocaust at Kunghsien, Honan Province.

The Kunghsien alarm was found to be based on a message received at Peiping from Honan Relief Association, appealing for immediate aid because "about one million persons were drowned around Kunghsien," by recent floods which were reported to have ruined all houses in the district.

The figure was interpreted as merely another case of Chinese carelessness with ciphers, especially since the total population of the six surrounding counties including Kunghsien barely exceeds 1,000,000.

Will Combat Reds.

Meanwhile reports of further distress were received from the provinces of Shensi, Honan and Kiangsu, while a new dark spot in China's flood may appeared in northwestern Anhwei Province, where seven counties were said to be inundated. Details were lacking.

Dispatches from Nanking said that President Chiang Kai-Shek tomorrow will inspect the Grand Canal area in Kiangsu Province. The President is deeply concerned over the Cor—nist threat in the Wuhan area, including the cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang, and has detailed Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, minister of war and Chiang's right-hand man, to assume direction of the Hupeh Province campaign against the reds. Several units of the Nanking garrison have been assigned to Gen. Ho's command.

Meanwhile conditions at Hankow were steadily improving and train service to Peiping has been restored. Temporary raised sidewalks and pontoon bridges permit dry shod movements in the city streets again.

Panic Hits River Towns.

Many sources report the Yellow River rising menacingly, especially dispatches from Sainfu, which describe the river towns in Shensi and Honan as panic stricken. The scourge of the Yangtze River was felt afresh in the area centered at Sinti, 75 miles southwest of Hankow, where several big dykes burst under pressure of the flood waters.

An expedition of lighters left Hankow today, headed for the Sinti district, carrying food and medicine, hoping to rescue the 80,000 refugees reported huddled on the remaining dykes.

The Grand Canal continues to spread havoc in the Kiangsi Basin, where it was reported still greater areas were inundated.

Graf Is Expected In Germany Today

Changes Course Because of Weather; Is Headed for La Rochelle, France.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin at 9:45 tonight said in a wireless message to its headquarters here that it was heading toward La Rochelle, France, and expected to land here tomorrow at noon.

The giant dirigible, communicating directly with the Wolff Agency here tonight, said it had found weather reports it received from steamers particularly favorable, especially regarding the winds at high altitude.

It changed its course, the message said, after receiving a weather report from the Hamburg Observatory and headed for the western Verde Islands instead of for the African coast. As a result of the change, it was said, the ship was aided by a strong south wind and was able speedily to reach the front of a depression area over the Azores.

FIVE POLICE NEEDED TO SEIZE PRISONER

Man Charged With Driving While Drunk and Assault on Private.

Milton Samuel Redmond, of 1207 Thirty-fourth street northwest, is charged at the Seventh Precinct with driving while drunk and assault on Private F. S. Marshall.

Redmond, who is 31, objected strenuously to being taken to the station house. It took Lieut. J. J. Bourk and four other policemen nearly twenty minutes to argue their prisoner into going to the cell, the policemen say.

Policeman Marshall was at Thirty-fourth and M streets northwest, making a report of an accident, when a taxi driver came to him, saying that a drunken man was driving an automobile on M street. The policeman arrested Redmond and started to drive him to the station.

In front of 1207 Thirty-fourth street the prisoner leaped from the machine, which was being driven by the policeman, according to the official version. Redmond ran into the house at this number, Marshall said.

Marshall attempted to take Redmond out, but the man resisted, he said, clinging to objects in his bedroom. Reinforcements arrived and finally convinced Redmond that it was wiser to go with them to the station.

Redmond denies that he was under the influence of liquor.

Michael of Roumania, 9, Passes Third-Grade Tests

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Crown Prince Michael, heir apparent to the throne of Roumania, passed his third grade examinations with a general average of 98.7 per cent, it was announced today. The crown prince, who formerly was the king before his father, King Carol, returned to reascend the throne, is 9 years old.

During his examinations, it was said, he answered all questions "smartly."

Flier and 2 Girls Die In Crash of Seaplane

Santa Cruz, Calif., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Two schoolgirls and an aviator were killed in the fall of a seaplane into the ocean here today while 10,000 holiday pleasure seekers crowded the beach.

The dead are Annette Keiser, 16, and her sister, Katherine, 11, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Keiser, ranch owners of Sanger, Calif., and George Robinson, 22, Santa Cruz pilot, who had been taking passengers for short flights.

Spectator's Leg Broken In Fatal Plane Crash

Ottumwa, Iowa, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Herbert C. Wells, 33, of Omaha, was killed today when a plane he was flying went into a spin and fell from an altitude of 300 feet.

Floyd Cliff, 18, of Ottumwa, spectator, received a fractured leg when struck by the plane.

Time's Flying Coattails Nobody's Checkerboard

By JOHN J. DALY

TO catch at the mantle of passing Time is the ambition of the age.

Maj. Jimmy Doolittle, having nothing else to do, hops from San Francisco to Newark in less than a dozen hours, traveling the airlanes.

Breakfast in California, lunch in the Corn Belt, supper in Jersey. For a midnight repast there is a short flight from the coast to Cleveland and St. Louis.

In the days of the forty-niners, a covered wagon made the same distance in a season or so—January to July, June to September—when the going was good.

Today, if all is well, the airmen intend to stage the climax of the National Air Derby—an attempt to break the world record for land planes, setting a new mark at 300 miles an hour.

Why the hurry?

* * * *

FAST as they go, they can never overtake Time.

The old gentleman is brisk on his feet. Though they are coming nearer to his flying coat-tails, they'll never be able to reach out and touch them—no matter how fast the planes.

The whole idea is an effort to save Time; but Time, strange as it may seem, doesn't want to be saved. Time would much rather be wasted, spent—and the general run of people are obliging. Time himself is a bit of a wastrel.

To head off Time is like chasing the will-o'-the-wisp.

Even a professional time-saver hasn't anything to show for it. After you have saved time, granting that it is possible, what do you do with it?

Time is going fast—even faster than the record-breaking airplanes—and as he runs from the mad populace dogging his heels he looks over his shoulder and smiles.

Human feet tire so easily, in the long, long chase. Just as finger-tips reach out and almost touch the old man's garments he turns into a side street and vanishes—and there is so much time lost in trying to find him again.

* * * *

IT IS a never ending chase. Soon as one generation plays out, another takes up; but the trouble is they all get tired—and lie down to rest.

There is defeat.

Time never rests.

Time never stops; just keeps on going!

So one fine day, the man who clips all the records in the world will sit down by the roadside to catch his breath. Then he will lift his weary head and see Time fleeting down the long corridor that leads into Eternity.

Time passes them all—the high flyers and the low, the lordly and the humble—and for the simple reason that he needs never stop for refueling, rambling along his relentless route.

There he goes now, around the corner!

Banking Methods Blamed for Slump

Gov. Murray Says That He Has Sure Remedy for Defects.

Chicago, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Gov. William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma today blamed the Nation's system of banking and credits for the economic depression. At tomorrow's Labor Day celebration on Soldier Field Gov. Murray said he will announce a program "to remedy the defects in this system."

"And I will challenge any banker in Chicago, New York or elsewhere to say my program is not sound," the governor said.

Brought to Chicago by labor leaders, Gov. Murray said his visit was not a "presidential fence builder" and that his address, to be extemporaneous, would hinge on labor problems and unemployment.

Nautilus Returns to Open Water.

Copenhagen, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The newspaper Social Democraten published messages from Stockholm today saying the Arctic submarine Nautilus, carrying the Sir Hubert Wilkins expedition, had returned to open water on Friday after having gone as far northward into the ice fields as possible.

Cry Against U. S. In Business Near

National Meeting in Capital to Protest Competition With Private Firms.

New York, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—John Dunham, a Fort Worth, Tex., stockman, announced tonight that representatives of labor, industry and agriculture will meet in Washington in November to press upon members of the next Congress the need of withdrawal of the Government from private enterprise.

"Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania; United States Senator Couzens, of Michigan and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor," he said, "will participate in our effort. We believe that what we will suggest to Congress would materially assist in relieving the business depression.

"The copper, oil and lumber interests also will advance proposals for aid to the workers in their industries, which if adopted should markedly stimulate business. A group of brewers will participate in the conference and offer proposals for congressional legalization of manufacture and sale of modified spirituous beverages."

AUTO-RACER CRASH KILLS 5, HURTS 11

Car Plunges Through Rail Into Crowd at Annual Event in Italy.

Monza, Italy, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—A new model Alfa Romeo racing automobile taking part in the annual grand prix today plunged through the safety rail at a sharp turn and into a crowd of spectators.

An official announcement said one person was killed instantly and that four of fifteen injured died later at a hospital. The driver of the car, Etancelin, a wealthy Rouen, France, textile merchant, was slightly injured but later continued the race.

The accident was similar to the disaster at the track in 1928, when Emilio Metersosi's racing machine left the track and killed 23 persons. Later a safety rail was erected, but it did not prevent smash-ups today.

Earlier Toselli, driving a Bugatti, broke through the side of the field at the same curve. He was not hurt. An Alfa Romeo driven by Pirola turned over at another curve and injured the driver.

Scarow, driving a French Amilcar, won the light car race over 137 kilometers in 1 hour and 47 seconds. Premoli, driving a French Salmson, was second, three minutes behind.

Sixteen light cars from four countries were entered.

The feature race of the day for heavy automobiles was won by Luigi Fagioli, of Italy, driving a Maserati. He also won the grand prix of 250 kilometers in 1 hour 32 minutes 39 2-5 seconds.

Air Line to New York Carries 1,100 in 2 Days

Approximately 50 per cent of all passengers carried by the Ludington Air Lines over the Labor Day holidays were Washingtonians, officials of the air line announced last night.

In all more than 1,100 passengers flew between this city and New York on Saturday and Sunday. Today's total will probably exceed 450, James Moran, district traffic manager, said. On Saturday 503 passengers were carried, a world's record, according to line officials.

Amy Johnson Leaves Latvia for Germany

Riga, Latvia, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Amy Johnson, British woman flier, who is returning by airplane from Tokyo to London, reached Liepaja, Latvia, last night and took off from there at 10 a. m. today for Koenigsberg, Germany, it was reported here late tonight.

Sea Fliers Return to Detroit.

Detroit, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Edward Preston and Robert Collignon, fliers who turned back after an uncompleted survey of a northern route to Europe, landed here at 3:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) today. They flew here from Sudbury, Ontario, where they were held several days by weather conditions.

WE'RE ONLY Second Best

If you are one of those lucky people who have a garden, or a flock of hens, or a good cow, we wouldn't dream of trying to sell you vegetables, or eggs, or milk—or any other food you raise yourself. For food that comes direct from the land is the best possible food.

But, unfortunately, very few of us can raise our own food. We must rely on others to grow it for us, and on others to bring it to us.

Next best to your own land for food is your A&P store. For A&P gets its food direct from the producers. Your A&P store is only one step from the fields where food grows.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK BECOMES BRIGHTER

Traces of Cheer Appear in Wholesale Trade; Lighter Industries Revive.

New York, Sept 6 (A.P.).—If the autumn stimulus to trade has been tardy, business appears to be taking the attitude of better late than never, and traces of cheer appeared in reports of the past week, at least from certain lighter lines of industry and trade.

The mercantile reports have indicated an appreciable expansion in wholesale trade in each of the past two weeks, and cooler weather and the reopening of schools have helped sales at retail. On the whole, clearance sales of recent weeks seem to have moved most of the remainder of summer merchandise, although at little or no profit in many cases.

The recalling of workers in some volume by the leading maker in the low-priced division has been a sign of seasonal stirring in the automotive industry, although it has on the whole been slow in starting work on new models, and production has fallen to extraordinarily low levels. The belated work on new models is in part the result of the agreemtent to defer their introduction until late in the year.

Steel Industry Drags.

The steel industry continues to drag along at close to 30 per cent of ingot capacity, and hopes of anything very satisfactory in the form of an autumn upturn are vanishing. An autumn upturn in the steel industry has not always materialized over the past several years, and the weekly steel trade reviews of the past week were rather gloomy.

The few heavy construction projects under way remain a sustaining factor in steel. Railroads are still restricting purchasing, with few exceptions, to absolute essentials, in view of the low state of their revenues. The steel industry, furthermore, is expecting new production in the motor industry to get under way gradually and is not counting on much immediate business from that quarter.

Despite the several heavy construction projects under way, the volume of building construction remains distressingly low. The report of contracts let in the third week of August shows some improvement over the first two weeks, but the daily average for three weeks is well below that of July. Wall street had heard much of plans afoot for liquidating some of the frozen real estate loans with which banks in some sections are burdened, but has evinced little enthusiasm over measures yet proposed.

Outstanding Bright Spots.

The textile and shoe industries continue to provide the outstanding bright spots in the business picture. It is recalled that an upturn in textiles in the previous major depression was followed by a turn in the heavier industries, notably steel, in about six months. Textiles and shoes have been on the mend for from eight to twelve months for various lines, however, and have not imparted any appreciable stimulus as yet to heavier industries.

The weekly reports of freight car loadings have shown moderate gains for the past two weeks, but the upturn has been so far below the normal seasonal upswing in August as to be altogether discouraging. Electric power production as reported during August has also been a little disheartening, failing to maintain the improved trend of July. The last week of the month saw a less than seasonal gain and was 3 per cent under the like period of last year.

Commodity prices continue to show a fair degree of stability, as they have for the past several weeks, although stabilization at these levels is regarded as anything but satisfactory, especially by the farmer.

Use of Crops Encouraging.

Of some encouragement is the fact that crops used as fodder for live stock, and those available for home use, are generally larger than last year's. It is believed in important financial quarters that this year's crops on the whole have been grown with less bank credit than in previous years, and at very low cost, and that returns have been sufficient in considerable measure to liquidate 1931 indebtedness.

A private survey recently conducted by a large financial concern reports an inclination among business leaders to look for some seasonal upturn in autumn, but says some are skeptical as to whether the seasonal gain will be as large as usual. On the other hand, there is little inclination to expect conditions to get much worse, and fag end of the year is not expected to suffer much, if any, by comparison with the end of last year.

The repercussions of the British and German crises are regarded as having dealt a severe blow to confidence in this country, and probably having delayed recovery.

NATURE IS ALLURING AT WOODLAND BEACH

The Post's Summer Colony Is an Attractive Spot for Year-Round Home.

Business is picking up. Better times are ahead when vacations will not be curtailed or eliminated; times when everybody will have money with which to enjoy themselves.

When next summer rolls around you will want a place in which to spend a glorious vacation season. A place to take your friends overnight or over the week-end. A place where they may play or rest. Where swimming and boating and fishing are available. A place where nature is at its best.

All this you may obtain at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on South River in Maryland. And it need not cost much. The price of the lots at Woodland Beach is reasonable beyond question. Only $93, of which a down payment of $9 is required. The only other regulation is the price of a subscription to The Washington Post. After that the balance may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50.

Think of the fun you and your friends can have at Woodland Beach almost the year around. The climate in this section is so mild that summer homes are attractive through most of the fall and early spring seasons.

Razor Corporation Pays Dividends Despite Loss

A headline above an item published recently in the financial section of The Post stated that the lowered income of American Safety Razor Corporation resulted in decreased dividends. This was an error. While the corporation's income was lowered, its regular quarterly dividend was paid.

The article stated that the corporation and wholly owned subsidiaries reported for the first half net profits of $505,774, equal to $2.53 a share, compared with 702,990, or $3.51 a share, in the first half last year. Consolidated net profit for the June quarter was $287,695, equal to $1.44 a share, against 446,567, or $2.23 a share, in the like quarter of 1930.

BRIEFS FROM WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 6.—Activity will be at a standstill in the financial district tomorrow because of Labor Day. All of the exchanges and the banks will resume activities Tuesday morning.

Offering by the State of New Jersey of 20,000,000 3¾ per cent highway bonds on Thursday accounts for about two-thirds of the 33,531,929 in new financing scheduled by 65 States and municipalities this week, the Bond Buyer reports. The weekly average of new offerings for the year to date is 37,156,517. Kansas City, Mo., is offering $1,304,000 4 per cent airport and auditorium bonds on Tuesday, and Buffalo, N. Y., is offering $2,210,000 general improvement obligations on Tuesday.

Unfavorable dividend changes last week number 27, against 26 in the preceding week, Standard Statistics Co. reports. Dividends were passed in twenty instances and reduced in seven. Favorable actions numbered nine, there being five extras and four initials. Among the more important corporations which passed their dividends during the week were J. I. Case, Lehigh Valley Railroad, National Family Stores, Southern Natural Gas and Ulen & Co.

World Court Protocols Ratification Is Expected

New York, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The American Foundation in a statement today said the country expects early ratification by the Senate of the World Court protocols at the December session of Congress.

The foundation asserted the National Grange had joined with the American Federation of Labor in the stand that ratification "has an essential relation to recovery from the world-wide post-war depression."

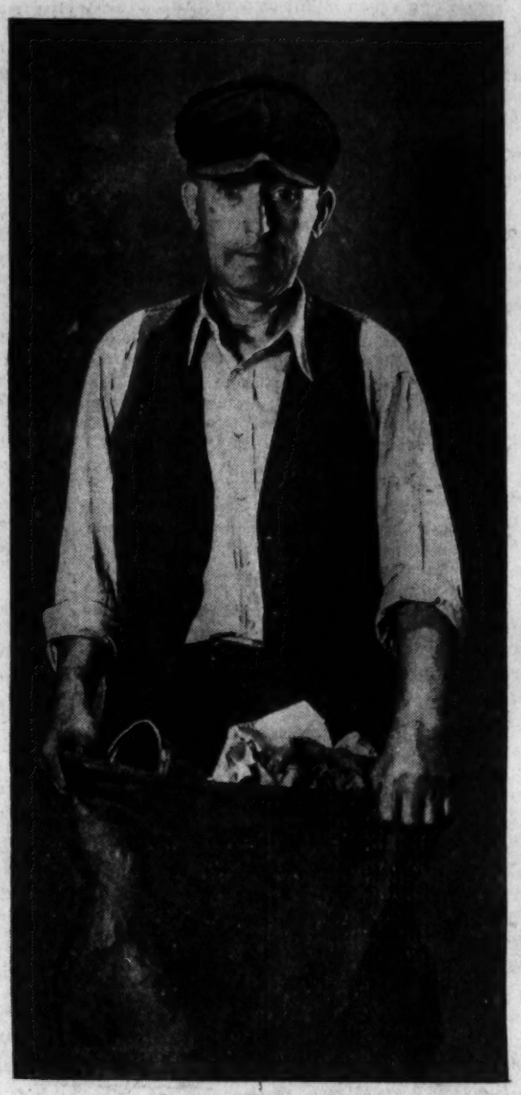
The Rag Bag Man's Out Back



Let Manhattan's Net Bag Laundering Give Your Clothes Extra Life at No Extra Cost . . . 3 Day Service, too!

WHERE are your clothes headed? For Net Bags or Rag Bags? Remember each fabric has only a certain amount of life. If this is used up by rubbing and scrubbing at home—then the rag bag man will make a big haul—frequently.

But who is this other man—this Net Bag Man? He's Manhattan's service man—on time every week to take your clothes where they get proper care. Where everything is washed in soft Net Bags to keep out harmful wear. Washed with Pure Palm Oil Soap . . . no scrubbing. Rinsed clean with floods of soft, filtered water. And returned as fresh and dainty as new . . . in three short days!

How much does this extra care cost? Not a penny! And tests show that you actually save money because your clothes last far longer.

Stop feeding rag bags! Change and get full wear from your clothes. The Net Bag Man will gladly call if you phone Decatur 1120. Let him explain our many money saving services.

He's waiting for your call—now!

MANHATTAN Laundry

Net Bags Save You Money By Saving Your Clothes

VIRGINIA OFFICE: WILSON BOULEVARD AND MILITARY ROAD, ROSSLYN, VIRGINIA

LAUNDRY EXPERT ADVISES CAREFUL "NET BAG" WASHING

Saves You Money By Saving Your Clothes

Present-day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System of washing.

Manhattan Laundry adopted the Net Bag for washing clothes six years ago. Clothes, they agreed, could be washed just as clean in net bags and would wear longer if rubbing and scrubbing were eliminated.

Manhattan's famous Net Bag System of washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material and placed in individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subjected to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrate each garment and loosen every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every trace of dirt from the clothes and leaving the fabrics refreshed and clean. They are then dried, starched where necessary and ironed by the most modern methods.

That clothes wear longer and look better when washed in Net Bags has been proven by test after test. For instance, two shirts, exactly the same, were washed fifty times each, one in a net bag, the other by hand. At the end of the test the net-bag washed shirt showed absolutely no signs of wear, while the hand-washed shirt had become a sad combination of rough edges, torn seams and broken buttons. Other tests on all sorts of wearing apparel are being carried on regularly and in every case show the Net Bag System to be far superior in preserving the original sheen of the cloth. At Manhattan the Nets Get the Wear and the Clothes Get the Wash.

Customer Pleased By Long Wear Praises Net Bag Washing

In a recent letter to the Manhattan Laundry Mrs. E. R. D. writes:

". . . But the one actual fact that pleases me most is that the clothes do not show as much wear as they did when I had my laundry done at home. . . . It is indeed a pleasure to recommend you. . . ."

This letter is typical of the many received by Manhattan from satisfied customers throughout the District of Columbia and Virginia.

Such letters bear out Manhattan's claim that "Net Bag Laundering Saves You Money by Saving Your Clothes."

Everything Delivered in Three Days

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. You know when you'll get your clothes when Manhattan has them. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

Many Money-Saving Services Each Receives Net Bag Care

Manhattan offers the housewife a wide selection of economical services—from Complete Finished Family to individual piece work. There is a service to fit every need and purse, and every service receives Net Bag Care.

Damp Wash is the most inexpensive service of all. It costs only 5 cents a pound, and as small as an 80-cent bundle can be sent. Clothes are returned damp, ready for the line. THRIF-T is another inexpensive service. Flat pieces are all ironed, but the wearing apparel is returned damp. Only 8 cents a pound with a minimum bundle of $1.

In the Rough Dry all the flat pieces are ironed, wearing apparel comes back ready to be ironed at home. Minimum bundle, 75 cents, only 10 cents a pound. In Economy another popular service, everything is machine ironed, including flat work, and returned ready for use. Men's shirts, 10 cents each additional. Few other articles may need retouching. Minimum, $1.25, only 12 cents a pound.

All Ironed Ready to Use. This covers all classes of Family Finished Laundry Service. These Ready-to-Wear services are reasonably priced according to the degree of niceties required. Our telephone operators will be glad to give any information regarding them.

There are many other Manhattan services to serve the housewife's every need. Shirts and Collars, Table and Bed Linens, Blankets, Rugs, Curtains and Dry Cleaning and Dyeing. All are economical. And the Net Bags Save You Money By Saving Your Clothes.

A CRISIS IN THE SOUTH.

Grave danger that the South may be stampeded into rash action in its efforts to stabilize the price of cotton appears from the call of Gov. Ross Sterling for a special session of the Texas Legislature. It is not yet certain whether Gov. Sterling has fallen in line with Gov. Huey Long of Louisiana, in his campaign to prohibit cotton growing in 1932, but once the Legislature is in session it may be induced to support that radical plan. Gov. Sterling does not have the Texas Legislature hypnotized as are the law making bodies at Baton Rouge, but farmers of the South are in a desperate mood. They may snatch at any straw that promises temporary relief without regard for the future of their industry.

Texas is a pivotal State in this issue. It is the largest cotton-producing State in the Union, turning out one-third of the Nation's crop. Georgia, Arkansas, South Carolina and other Southern States are waiting to see what action Texas takes. If Texas should forbid its growers to produce cotton in 1932, the Long plan, which becomes effective when accepted by States producing 75 per cent of the country's cotton crop, might be forced upon the South by mob psychology.

The future of the South as the greatest cotton producing area of the world is at stake. Under ordinary circumstances the farmers and the Legislatures would laugh at Huey Long's nonsense. But these are not ordinary times for the cotton States. The price of this staple has sunk to an extremely low figure. An enormous surplus precludes hope of an early recovery unless decisive steps are taken. Farmers are prone to disregard their future welfare under such conditions. It is up to fearless executives and political leaders to save the Southern States from an act of folly that might leave a blight upon that great agricultural area for many years.

If the South had a monopoly on this crop, it is conceivable that an agreement to grow no cotton in 1932 while the surplus was being disposed of, would bring the industry back to stabilization. But the United States produces only about one-half of the world's cotton supply. The effect of such a radical step could be only to stimulate production in India, China, Egypt and Russia. The land on which good cotton can be produced outside of America is extensive. Russia is making rapid strides as a new cotton-producing country. Nothing would please the Soviet quite so well as to see the United States go out of the business, even temporarily.

Germany and the United Kingdom are the best markets for American cotton. India and Egypt would be in an excellent position to capture the British market and Soviet Russia after supplying its own needs might supplant American cotton in Germany if an artificial price were established on this side of the Atlantic. Current examples of the failure of price-fixing are so numerous that it would be madness for Southern Legislatures to indulge in another such venture with cotton.

What would happen to Southern farmers during the year in which cotton production would be prohibited? Most of them have facilities for producing only cotton. That is the one crop on which they depend. Small areas of land could be devoted to gardens and other crops that are not produced in surplus, but the vast majority of it would lay idle. Farmers would have no income and no work. Huey Long's absurd remedy would be the most effective means of adding millions to the list of the unemployed and placing an enormous new burden upon relief agencies.

No experienced economist is simple enough to believe that if no cotton were grown in the South in 1932 this year's crop would be worth twice as much as at present. Expansion of cotton acreage elsewhere would keep prices down. Farmers would lose not only next year's crop but a considerable part of their market for all future crops. Furthermore, it is not to be supposed that the farmers themselves would reap the benefits of this price-fixing scheme. Most farmers have no facilities for storing their cotton. It must pass into the hands of middle-men because farmers have current debts to pay. Huey Long's plan might do something toward the enrichment of commission houses, but all the farmers could expect from it would be a year of starvation and increased competition from abroad.

It is of the utmost importance that this issue be placed squarely before the South to ward off a stampede by legislators trying to flout economic law.

PROFIT FROM HIGH WAGES.

Amid the tendency to reduce wages one company has undertaken an experiment to increase them. The Monsanto Chemical Works in its St. Louis plant has instituted a plan for advancing the hourly rate paid its employes to 10.4 per cent above the wage scale of 1929. As a result the labor hours consumed per unit of output have declined 23.7 per cent and the labor cost per unit is 15.5 per cent less than when cheaper labor was used.

Formerly the chemical industry did not pay top wages to its workmen, who were mostly unskilled. The large supply of higher type men now available for employment led the Monsanto plant to conclude that an advance in pay would serve to attract more proficient workers. By systematically weeding out the inefficient type and selecting the best from the great number of applicants the company was able to install a superior group of workers.

According to Edgar Queeny, president of the company, the experiment has been distinctly successful. Barring a further slump in the chemical market or downward trend of the cost of living, which he does not anticipate, Mr. Queeny has announced that the present wage scale will be maintained. Here is a case in which increased efficiency and higher wages have brought distinct benefits to both employer and employe.

AN OLD STAR REBURNISHED.

Middle age scored a complete triumph over youth in the national amateur golf championship. Francis Ouimet, former champion and veteran of many summers on the fairways, trounced every young upstart who dared to meet him. In the semifinals he eliminated a young man only half his age, and in the last 36-hole match he buried the youthful Jack Westland, of Chicago, under a score of six up and five to play.

Golf is not a young man's game. Skill, nerve, long and careful training count for more than youthful vigor and occasional brilliance. Ouimet at 38 years of age will be a popular champion, not only because he has been a great golfer for eighteen years, but because victory has fallen to the lot of a finished master of the game. Golfers throughout the country will be cheered by realization that a man who should be far beyond his athletic prime is nevertheless able to outclass any youthful whirlwind that he may encounter on fairway or green.

The length of Ouimet's golf career indicates the practicability of the game for men and women of all ages. It is eighteen years since he triumphed over Vardon and Ray, the British veterans, in the national open at Braeburn. In the meantime he has participated in many international competitions and once before was American amateur champion. Triumph has been elusive, as it always is in golf, yet Ouimet has had his share. The present victory comes as a fitting culmination to a career that has been marked by a high quality of sportsmanship.

As for the youths who went to defeat before the virile strokes and accurate putting of the middle-aged champion, there are no tears, for they still have many years in which to perfect their art and strive for new distinction.

DOOLITTLE'S RECORD.

Maj. James H. Doolittle, formerly of the American Army Air Corps, resumed his record-breaking ways last Friday, traveling from the Pacific to the Atlantic as no man has traveled before and gathering up prizes along the way to show the youngsters that the war birds still know how to use their wings, particularly when they acquire a new set like Jimmie's wasp-powered Laird racer.

The major's day started at Los Angeles. One of eight in the Bendix race to Cleveland, he left his companions behind and with a speed averaging 223 miles an hour. He paused at the scene of the national air races long enough to gather in the $7,500 prize and hopped on to Newark to annex an additional $2,500 by breaking Capt. Frank Hawkes' transcontinental record by a full hour and a few minutes to spare.

Some men would have called it a day, but not Jimmie Doolittle. He turned right around and flew back to Cleveland to assure that metropolis that no discourtesy was intended by his brief call. Leaving his plane to be overhauled and made ready for him to participate in the Thompson trophy race, the major condescended to accept the comfort of a passenger's seat in a plane ride to St. Louis, where he had a business engagement. Across the continent and half-way back again with six stops is quite a journey.

Maj. Doolittle's speed from Burbank Field, Calif., to Newark Airport, averaged 218.7 miles an hour as he spanned the distance in 11 hours and 15 minutes. It is a remarkable record and adds fame to as notable a career as that of Jimmie Doolittle, whose service to aviation can not be measured by races or prizes. He has earned the gratitude of scientists, engineers and fliers alike in his unparalleled experimental work in the air. He has recorded the breaking points for both men and machines in the severest tests that can be made. He has added much to the safety and scientific knowledge of flying as well as to the joy and glory of the game.

OIL FIGHT ABATING.

There is a partial truce in the midcontinent oil fight. More than 1,800 wells of the east Texas fields, that were closed by the State militia under orders from Gov. Sterling, have been allowed to resume operations under restrictions limiting the flow of each well to 225 barrels daily. The total of about 400,000 barrels amounts to less than one-third of the possible daily production and to half the actual production when the wells were closed last month. Reluctant consent to the reopening of the east Texas wells, under regulations of the State Railroad Commission, was given by Gov. Sterling who favored limitation of the total output rather than a limitation for each well.

It is feared that the output from east Texas will be excessive if arrangements also are made to resume operations in Oklahoma and Kansas. Gov. Murray, however, refuses to follow the lead of Texas and now threatens to build State refineries in Oklahoma from taxes on oil incomes, if necessary, to force his demands for higher prices. The result of the shutdown in Texas has been to increase the price of oil there from as low as 5 cents a barrel to 68 cents. The present danger is that an intensive campaign of drilling may again increase the east Texas production to abnormal figures. The present plan of opening up the field is undertaken as a 60-day test, but may be changed at any time.

Closing of the Texas fields reduced the total daily average production of petroleum in the United States to the lowest level recorded since 1922—1,751,550 barrels a day for the last week of August, as compared with 2,608,250 barrels daily during the previous week.

Texas is returning to civil control of the oil fields, but it is evident that the situation still remains fraught with much uncertainty.

Entrances to Washington

From the American Civic Annual.

In the autumn of 1930, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lawton, of the National Council for Protection of Roadside Beauty, made a survey of the highway entrances to Washington for the American Civic Association, and the report was published as a part of the series being issued by the American Nature Association. Mrs. Lawton presented her findings in a lantern-slide talk before a meeting of the Committee of 100 of the American Civic Association at the Cosmos Club on December 9. Sixty-six organizations passed formal resolutions of indorsement of the campaign and offered cooperation. Letters were written to local advertisers, many of whom pledged themselves to discontinue outdoor advertising within the Washington region, an area of some 20 miles outside the District of Columbia. Letters were written by many interested members to the twelve gas and oil companies which use billboards in the Washington district, asking them to discontinue their outdoor advertising in the vicinity of the National Capital. Some encouraging replies have been received.

The conditions which this campaign is seeking to improve have become intolerable along United States Highway No. 1, approach from the north. On the Baltimore turnpike, within a distance of 27.7 miles from the District line, there were 1,099 signs, including signs on places of business, or an average of 39 to the mile. A car at average speed would pass a sign every two seconds, and there is not a full minute, or even half a minute, when the landscape ahead is entirely free from advertising. Traveling along this same route from the south into Washington, the motorist would find 28 signboards to the mile, or one every three seconds. It is impossible to imagine any sort of landscape improvement along these highways unless the billboards can be swept from sight. Many of the charming rural roads, which until recently have been comparatively free from the billboard blight, are now being desecrated with huge "poster panels" which have been placed against picturesque groups of trees. Often, trees have actually been cut down to open "vistas" to these misplaced and mistaken works of art.

The highway approaches to Washington traverse undulating hills, open pastures, and fields, dotted with woodland and cut with tree-bordered streams. The mere removal of billboards and the cluttered welter of signs around filling stations, lunchstands, and country stores would do much to restore the charm of the native landscape. In the end we should find an improvement in all sorts of structures to match the improved landscape. With consistent roadside planting, both on public rights-of-way and on private property, it would not be long before any ugly commercial structure would seem so out of place that it would be banned by common consent.

The Garden Club of America has undertaken to place markers, and the Maryland and Virginia Federations of Garden Clubs will endeavor to provide appropriate landscape treatment to designate the various highway entrances to Washington.

The American Civic Association is accustomed to tackling uphill jobs, and, no doubt, much work remains to be done before even a demonstration area in and around the National Capital is cleared of billboards and roadside beauty fully protected; but the officers of the association have been surprised to find the great number of workers who have an ardent desire to do something about the terrible billboards. Never has the association encountered such enthusiasm and such unanimity of opinion concerning a campaign as has been expressed over the plan to improve the appearance of the highway entrances into the Federal City.

Beauty is contagious. As sections of the highway entrances to Washington are made beautiful, unworthy, ugly structures will become more conspicuous and in the end, will be doomed to innocuous desuetude.

POST HASTE.

Labor Day—when 40,000,000 of us join the unemployed—and like it.

Senator Shipstead and Senator Brookhart agree that Europe could run the United States to suit Europeans much better than it is done by Americans.

The political division of the vote on the "legality" of the Austro-German customs pact looks very much like some of our "nonpartisan" votes in Congress.

There was an unusual crowd of the old boys out on the links yesterday encouraged by reading about Ouimet, Doolittle and Dempsey.

East Texas is again pouring oil on a troubled market. A 20-day military holiday boosted the price several hundred per cent so the Legislature is called in session again to see what it can do for cotton.

Everything that has been said about King Carol for a year has been followed by an official denial. We even begin to doubt the Christian carols.

Virginia growers asked for a decision as to whether they could put their peaches in jars with sugar, let nature pursue a natural sequence and then sell the result "as is." State and Federal officials agreed upon the opinion that "if brandied peaches could be made so that the juice surrounding them was not alcoholic there would be no violation of the law." Ain't the legal mind wonderful?

When you read of that 111-degree weather in the Midwest we trust it remided you that the Capital was stronger than Mahomet, for this summer the mountains came to Washington.

The Chinese catastrophes have reached such magnitude that the figures are quite beyond human comprehension and losses of life of less than 10,000 at a time go unmentioned.

Senator Watson says only "sheer necessity" will justify tax revisions. If Congress uses the shears properly there will be no necessity.

The national convention of Federal employes is considering support of the demand for a six-hour day and a five-day week. If granted, would the employes agree not to take additional part-time jobs and infringe on other workers?

Some new similes will have to be invented to do justice to the stubbornness of both the employers and the miners in the soft coal strike.

British laborites will probably also learn that Arthur Henderson's other name is Hindersome.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

SELF

'Tis tyranny of self' that holds us down.
The little ego seldom lets us free.
When comes the moment we could gracious be
An impish impulse bids us wear a frown.
Why pass a stranger first within the gate?
The place is ours and let it ours remain.
Why do the deed which promises no gain?
And ere we think to answer, 'tis too late.
Self-interest blinds us in those moments rare
When self-forgetfulness would lift us high.
We would be generous and the chance is nigh
But tyrant thought says why give ear or care?
Self winds its chains around us, wrist and knee
Until at best the spirit can but crawl.
Against ourselves the gains we make are small.
We never grow as big as we could be.

A Rough Outline of a Creed for the Young Nation Builder.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

I WILL, first of all, deal honorably with myself. I will think honestly, accepting facts as they are, without effort to color or evade the truth. If I choose to do evil, for pleasure or profit, I will do it frankly and openly, without pretense that it is good and without effort to hide from the world.

I will honor my body. I will not befoul or degrade or poison it, or do anything to lessen its efficiency or shorten its days of usefulness.

I will honor my country. I will regard the people of other lands as fellow men, having rights equal to mine, and I will recognize the obligation to deal fairly with them; but neither by word or act will I benefit them at the expense of my own people, to whom I owe a loyalty that precedes all other claims. If I can serve my country in no other way, I will support all that is decent and condemn all that is evil, and I will let no other obligation outweigh my duty to vote for the better man in every political contest.

I will honor right, regardless of labels. I will not support an evil or harmful cause that declares itself righteous, nor will I oppose a fair and respectable thing because well-meaning and deluded people label it evil. I will approach and study both sides of every moot question with an unbiased mind, and support the one that to me seems right, no matter what name or fame it is given by partisans.

I will recognize my duty to preserve and improve this civilization, which is my heritage, and because the character of mothers determines the worth of a generation, I will honor good women and scorn those who are without virtue and those who cheapen and shame themselves in frank surrender to the lusts of the flesh.

I will honor liberty and prove myself worthy to possess it.

I will remember that my rights end where another's begin, and will claim no privilege that does injury to others.

I will recognize the equal rights of all citizens, and will oppose any cause or group that endeavors to benefit one class at the expense of another.

Finally, though willing to serve in any way I can, I will not endeavor to reform my fellow citizens until I am quite sure that my own character and way of life afford a perfect example.

Not a Medicine Man.

Caledona (Minn.) Journal.

Those who criticize the President, holding him responsible for depression, for unemployment, for the price of wheat are really not impeaching him so much as they are stultifying themselves. It is not a leader they are asking for, it is a medicine man, snake doctor, a magician. They demand of the President that he be a miracle worker, that he stretch forth a wand and suddenly make everybody in America rich and happy while everybody in the rest of the world is poor and miserable; that he maintain the price of wheat in America at twice the figure it sells for in any other market; that he give everybody employment whether there is anything for them to do or not.

President Hoover, again and again, in national and international affairs, has proved himself a leader. He has never claimed to be a worker of wonders. He does not pull rabbits out of plug hats, or produce eggs from silk handkerchiefs, or pour water out of empty buckets.

It is time for common sense to assert itself. Let us leave off demanding impossibilities of our President. Let us see him for what he is—a wise leader, giving himself without stint and with absolute patriotic devotion to the hardest tasks that confront any American. Let us cease quarreling with him because he is not omniscient and omnipotent, and follow him because he is our leader.

Farm Sabotage.

Little Falls (Minn.) Transcript.

Brazil destroys thousands of bags of coffee by making a big bonfire of it. California pulls up grape vines and chops down peach trees. The United States Department of Agriculture, acting under the advice of disinterested experts, asks American cotton growers to plow up one-third of their coton, killing several million bales. Such action represents a current view. So the wave of destruction rolls on. Big crops are an evil. The practical idea in all such cases is that growers will get more money for a smaller crop. So they will, in all probability, as matters stand. But isn't this tackling the problem from the wrong end? Following this policy through, we should burn all our surplus wheat, to raise the price. And why not tear down or burn all surplus empty buildings so that rents can be kept at a high level? And with all this destruction, many thousand are hungry. Would it not be better to divide with the needy ones than to destroy that which is necessary to life?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Free Spending by the Wealthy Would Stimulate Business and Give Jobs to Thousands of the Unemployed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Buy What You Need," suggests the thought that it might be well to follow it by one headed "Spend What You Don't Need," directed to that class of people whose incomes are more than sufficient for the necessities and luxuries to which they have been accustomed and who have been reinvesting their surplus.

In normal times this action is most praiseworthy, as they thus build large fortunes with which new enterprises may be started and huge gifts be made for educational and other purposes. But at the present time for a man with an income amounting to millions of dollars in excess of his ability to spend upon himself and his family, to reinvest these millions, thereby encouraging some new or old enterprise to again overproduce, seems unworthy of the keen business foresight we have attributed to American business men.

I am informed that last year 504 individuals paid taxes on incomes aggregating $1,118,000,000. We have no means of knowing how much more they acquired from their nontaxable securities. If these people alone had decided to spend every cent they could on themselves, their families and friends, charity and so forth, then had determined to give all over that amount to public works, parks, playgrounds, recreation centers, schools for adult education and for evening classes, &c., many thousands of self-respecting people would have been put to work and their wages and salaries would have been put into circulation.

I can not find it in my heart to blame the average man or woman for being reluctant to spend any money at the present time for anything he does not actually need. In fact, if he seems again inclined to lay aside for a rainy day, it looks to me like a healthy sign.

Financial Aid for Britain Is Held to Be Effective Move in the Interests of Peace.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a mere citizen interested in foreign affairs because they reflect upon the welfare of our own country, I express by opinion with regard to the negotiation of credit for Great Britain. I believe this to be a step toward international peace more effective than peace treaties or conferences for disarmament. Just negotiation of financial affairs to the end that the various countries in Europe may have legitimate reasons to hope for prosperity as well as peace will react in securing peace through political good will.

Complete political good will can not come about between France and England nor between France and Germany unless these countries have something in common for which to hope and strive. If ancient grudges can be removed, peace treaties will not be needed.

What I want to say is this: The unselfish work of wise and just financiers is as effective in establishing and maintaining peace as is the diplomatic and political activities of statesmen. Records of their deeds should be written in our histories beside treaties negotiated and battles won by force of arms.

MRS. MARY M. WILLIS.

Manufacture of High Speed Motor Vehicles Should Be Prohibited by Law, Correspondent Says, to Make Highways Safe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I desire, with the greatest respect, to call the attention of the United States Government to the following conditions:

Four-fifths of all motor fatalities are caused by excessive speed. Motor cars are now being manufactured and sold, for use upon the public streets and highways, which are capable of a speed of from 70 to 90 miles an hour, and even more. By such dangerous machines as these human beings are hurled into their graves by tens of thousands every year and hopelessly crippled by hundreds of thousands—two-thirds of the victims being women and children.

It is quite obviously the duty of governments to protect the lives of citizens. This dangerous and insane speed should be limited at its source. The manufacture of motor vehicles capable of dangerous speed should be prohibited by law. The lawful speeds should be, approximately, as follows: For private motor cars and taxis, 30 miles an hour; for motor buses, 20 miles an hour; for motor trucks, 15 miles an hour. The United States postoffices limit the speed of all their motor vehicles upon this principle—the heavier the car, the lower the speed.

BERTRAND SHADWELL.

Vacations Are Suggested as Means of Giving Temporary Work to the Unemployed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the question of two or more salaried persons in one family while other families are without any member employed, and the suggestion that one position be given over to an unemployed person, may there not be a fairer way?

Suppose, instead of giving up a position, one or both take vacation and let places be filled temporarily by capable unemployed applicants. There are hundreds to whom a month's work would prove invaluable.

If one has an income which is barely sufficient to feed him, and he gets to work a little while, it will enable him to buy a suit of clothes and accessories and thus save his self-respect. If he lacks food also, the temporary job is the more valuable. The individual who voluntarily gives place temporarily will after all get the bigger blessing out of the deal.

300,000 IN PARADE OF RUSSIAN YOUTHS

March Before Soviet Heads in Moscow Amid Fire of Many Rockets.

Moscow, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Thousands of Russia's future citizens marched this evening through Red Square in a great demonstration commemorating international youths' day.

With floodlight beating down upon the square and with scattered torchlights carried through the procession casting an eerie glow over the scene, youths ranging from 8 to 25 years trooped slowly past the tomb of Lenin.

They saluted President Kalinin, Maxim Gorki and a score of other Soviet leaders who watched from an observation platform. Bands blared and rockets shot skyward intermittently. Banners waved and in the deepening twilight continuous volleys of cheers echoed from thousands of young throats as the embryo proletarians swept by in columns of four, extending the entire width of the square.

More Than 300,000.

Estimates of the number of marchers ranged from 300,000 to 500,000. There were the pioneers and young Communists, the juvenile branches of the Communist party and also a majority of the youth of Moscow and nearby provinces.

Converging on the square from three different streets, the youths presented an impressive picture of orderliness, marching in varied uniforms.

Large brigades of nattily uniformed boys and girls comprising the Pioneers and Young Communist sections, and the naval and military recruits kept step with children in tattered clothing and in tattered garments who did not have time to go home and change before the procession.

Children so small they were almost swallowed up in the line of march tried proudly and valiantly to keep step with their elder comrades.

Two Hours to Pass.

Prominent among the banners carried and duplicated many times throughout the parade was one which bore the inscription, "Our report to Stalin."

Hours before the march began—it took two hours to pass through Red Square—the youths mobilized on downtown streets, on which all traffic was halted.

International Youths' Day was observed annually on the first Sunday of December. The observance was begun 16 years ago at the Conference of Revolutionary Unions of Youth at Berne, Switzerland. Heralding the day today, newspapers quoted the appeal of the Young Communists Internationale:

"The growth of contradictions between the systems of rotting capitalism and victorious socialism makes the danger of war and intervention against the Soviet Union most possible. It is therefore the revolutionary duty of the proletarian youth of the world to defend the union. Down with imperialist war and intervention against the soviets! Up with the Soviet Union of all the world!"

Cut in British Arms To Be Demanded Today

London, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—A letter demanding a reduction of at least 25 per cent in British expenditures for armaments as a means of reducing the budget, and signed by several of the best known men and women in British public life, will be published tomorrow. Among the signers are Norman Angell, Aldoux Huxley, Henry W. Nevinson, Miss A. Maude Royden, Lord Russell and H. G. Wells.

"Allowing for changes in prices," the letter will say, "we are spending in 1931 as much as we did in 1913, when preparations for the World War were at their height."

3 Bulgarians Killed In Red Day Disorder

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed and several injured during Red Day disorders in the Dalboki district of Zagora and in the Enina district of Kazanleuk today.

Many arrests were made up and down the country because of attempts to place the red flag on public buildings.

France to Teach Wine Benefits to Children

Paris, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—French school children hereafter will be given instruction in "appreciation of wine."

The semiofficial newspaper Le Temps said the government had made the subject part of the required public school curriculum and that pupils of all ages would be given lectures on the healthful qualities of French wines.

The decision was due to a wine industry crisis growing out of overproduction, as well as to a desire to warn French children against drinking the American cocktail.

U. S. TEAM HAS LEAD IN RIFLE CUP MATCH

English Mark Is Passed, but Score by Canada Is Still Awaited.

Camp Perry, Ohio, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The United States small bore rifle today put in a strong bid for a fifth straight annual victory in the international Lord De War Cup match, when it posted a score of 7,846 out of a possible 8,000, only 3 points under the winning mark of last year.

The 20-man team fired on the local course during the national rifle matches.

Only two other teams, from England and Canada, entered this year's competition. The English team posted 7,822, so that Canada, yet to shoot, is the lone remaining threat to a fifth consecutive victory for this country. The teams fire on their home courses, 40 shots per man from 50 and 100 yards.

The American team had a score of 7,876, but 30 points were deducted because two shooters took what were called "warming" shots during the match.

Scores of 398 out of 400 were posted by Eric Johnson, New Haven, Conn.; James E. Miller, Hillsboro, Ohio, and Lawrence A. Wilkens, Norwood, Ohio. Tied at 397 were Virgil A. Moore, Dallas, Tex.; Dr. Emmett O. Swanson, Minneapolis; James A. Wade, Boise, Idaho, and A. J. Yearsley, Piqua, Ohio. Next came Theo Hardel, Washington, and Freeman A. Kent, Arlington, N. J., at 395.

In an international railway men's team match, conducted in the same way as the De War match, the American team today scored 7,764. Scores of the British and Canadian teams will be compared later by cable.

The special Camp Perry skeet team match was won by the Detroit County Club with a score of 201 out of 250. Wyandotte, Mich., was second. L. D. Bolton, of Detroit, won the individual skeet championship, scoring 48 out of possible 50.

Hosiery Workers Accept Cut in Pay

Approve 35 to 50 Per Cent Reduction as Final Convention Act.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers today approved the interim wage agreement as the final act of its international convention. The agreement calls for a reduction of from 35 to 50 per cent in pay of union workers.

The wage scale was worked out at a conference of hosiery manufacturers and union officials last week. It will be made effective to enable manufacturers to "get on their feet," a union leader said.

The manufacturers agree to return wages to their 1929 levels from 10 to 15 per cent above the present scale after the depression is over. Twenty thousand workers in 80 mills now producing 35 per cent of the hosiery of the United States and Canada will be affected.

New Stamping Machine Declared Revolutionary

London (Monday), Sept. 7 (A.P.).—The Daily Mail this morning devoted a great deal of space to an announcement of a new stamping and pressure machine which, it said, would revolutionize British industry.

The Mail said that the machine could be used in stamping of every sort, from watch mechanisms to motor car bodies, and for making nails, bricks, composition materials and the manufacture of furniture from pulverized wood. It said the machine was invented by a Frank Humphries, who had been working on it for seven years and that $250,000 has been spent on world patents.

'Rag, Bone and Hank of Hair' Again Influences Costumes

Manhattan Fashion Displays Show Reversal to Mode of Movie "Vamp" Days; Eugenie Getting Much Credit She Never Earned.

New York, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Some one is protesting that the Empress Eugenie is getting a lot of credit for fashion details which brave though she was, she would not have dared advocate.

The empress was an extravagant, whimsical, child-like creature who adored a lot of laces, ruffles, puffs and plumes. Her leisurely costumes were too fancy for busy American women. Her skirts were too full to be comfortable. Her shoes were so ridiculously fragile she could wear them but once. Her hats—well the kind of hats the Empress Eugenie wore demand an inmobility of posture that freedom-loving women today refuse to adopt.

Manhattan concerns now having their fashion showings are promoting the kind of costume in which "vamps" moved across the silver screen in the days when women were considered the "rag and bone and hank of hair" type of masculine interest.

Skirts are long and sheath-like even in everyday clothes. The word "frock" has no place in modern style parlance. It's the gown now. Gowns are molded tightly to the figure, suits are snug, and even the heaviest of fur coats are so fashioned as to reveal all the curves.

Sleeve details are most charming. There are bishop sleeves, leg o'mutton sleeves, and cape sleeves. There are sleeves with puffs below the elbow and tight fur cuffs. There are sleeves with a shirred fulness at the elbow and an epaulet effect; and there are sleeves, half fur and half cloth.

A new tricorn hat is trimmed with a velvet ruff and has a victorial muff of velvet ruffing to match.

New gloves, for dress wear, have kid-covered bracelets topping them just at the wrist. The bracelet effect is usually made ornate with criss-cross stitching of silver or gold thread. One new glove had white galyak pirate cuffs. It was shown with a black clothsuit trimmed with galyak collar and shoulder incrustations, and a turban banded with galyak.

Army Officers To Wed Sisters Here Sept. 26

The Misses Winifred and Dorothy Ross Will Be Brides of Pair.

A double wedding of interest to Army circles in Washington will take place September 26, when Miss Winifred Nancy Ross and Miss Dorothy S. Ross, daughters of Maj. and Mrs. Frank K. Ross, who arrived in the Capital recently, will become brides of young Army officers.

Miss Winifred Nancy Ross will be married to Lieut. William Clack Forse, U. S. A., and her sister will become the bride of Lieut. George E. Lynch, U. S. A., Field Artillery.

Maj. Ross, who was formerly stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., is now on duty at the Army War College, and with his family is established at 2612 Woodley place. Maj. and Mrs. Ross have a host of friends in the Capital.

The marriages of the Misses Ross will take place in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church at noon, and will be followed by a reception for relatives and a few close friends at the home of their parents.

Miss Betty West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard West, has returned to her home in Chevy Chase after spending the summer at Marthas Vineyard. She also visited Atlantic City.

FIREMEN whose duty will prevent them from seeing the National Firemen's Parade this morning or the Firemen-Policemen ball game this afternoon will be able to hear a description of these events through Station WJSV. It will be on the air with highlights of the parade at 10:30 a. m.

This broadcast will continue until about 1:30 p. m., when the station will resume its regular broadcasting schedule for an hour or so, but will be back on at the ball park at 2:30 o'clock, in time for the presentation of the medals and the game. WMAL will broadcast the medal presentation only.

It is likely that one of the radio-equipped police cars will be stationed at the reviewing stand so that high police and fire officials watching the parade could be notified instantly should any emergency arise.

SO that he may know also what is going on, Fire Chief George S. Watson has had a short-wave receiver installed in his car to pick up police alarms.

Following the lead of Washington and other progress'e cities, short-wave receiving sets were tested at police headquarters in New York City last week with a view to selecting a set best adapted for use in the $100,000 police radio alarm system authorized by New York.

Sets are to be installed in the police squad cars the same as in Washington; also in the police launches and in the two police airplanes to receive alarms of crimes of violence.

THE speech of Sergt. W. D. Haislip, of the First Precinct, over Station WJSV Saturday, in which Washington newspapers and newspapermen were charged with publishing inaccurate information about the police, raises a fine legal point as to the responsibility of a radio station in case a libel should be uttered by a speaker over the station.

The courts have not yet finally thrashed out the question as to whether or not in a slanderous attack over the air the station owners, the speaker, or both are liable. In the meantime the larger stations are watching their step. As a precaution, they oblige speakers, particularly where they have paid for the time, to submit their manuscripts in advance. Station owners, however, can not censor speeches of candidates for public office, provided they are given equal opportunities to speak.

At Station WJSV Saturday since J. S. Vance, president; Dwight Mathis, manager, and even Adolph Turner, announcer, all declare they did not hear Sergt. Haislip's speech it is evident that the speaker was allowed to "run wild."

According to an advance WJSV program Sergt. Haislip is scheduled for another appearance over Station WJSV, on a program with "Old King Tut" at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

PROVING that it can be done, Alois Havrilla conducted the Jack Frost Melody Moments with almost an entire absence of advertising ballyhoo when that program inaugurated the 1931-32 season last Wednesday night.

It was a relief to tired ears and suggested a reform which it would seem other program sponsors would be quick to adopt. In our opinion 50 per cent of the criticism of programs today is aimed at the length of advertising announcements. Either that, or the objectionable manner in which advertising is forced upon listeners.

The fall premiere of "Voice of Firestone" will be heard tonight (WRC, 7:30 p. m.) . . . Ray Tucker, political writer, will tell how the big boys are lining up for the campaign (tomorrow, WRC, 6:45 p. m.) . . . President Hoover will deliver a coast-to-coast tribute to the founding of the American Red Cross 50 years ago by Clara Barton (Wednesday, WRC, WMAL) . . . The world-famous Police Band of Mexico City will be heard from Hollywood Bowl in the Los Angeles fiesta (Wednesday, WJZ network, 11 p. m. to 1 a. m.).

An address by U. S. Ambassador Walter E. Edge and a recital by Marcel Dupre, organist, will be heard during the dedication of the New American Church of Paris this afternoon (WRC, 3 p. m.).

LABOR DAY celebrations bring to the microphone the Secretary of Labor, William N. Doak; William Green and Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor.

A program dedicated to the "Thrift Shop" and the individual women who operate it, has been arranged by Radio Joe for tomorrow night (WMAL, 7 o'clock.).

THUS far the dinner music by the Rose Room Orchestra over WRC from the new Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York, has been nothing to write home about. In fact, the program is quite a let-down from that of the Black and Gold Room Orchestra directed by Ludwig Laurier which it displaces.

Perhaps after the Waldorf Orchestra, which, by the way, is playing from the NBC studios until the hotel is completed, gets shaken down it may improve. When last heard, the music was jerky and entirely without the finish and smoothness of its predecessor.

A Detroit radio repair man writes: "I was repairing a radio set for a wealthy family recently. The Radio Guild program was going on. Believe me, I tested that set until the finish of the program. I hope I get another break like that, for it makes business a pleasure."

Chasing up police signals heard through his auto radio in Chicago is a favorite pastime with Jim Holstein, of the Hawaiian guitarists.

Recently he heard an alarm given that a gunman was loose in one of the North Side sections. He drove there as rapidly as possible, and just as he arrived, so did the police. When the firing ceased, and Jim lifted his head to look, the squad was saying "hands up," not to a gunman, but to him.

TELEVISION is another marvel in an age of wonders, Bishop James E. Freeman declares.

"For mass meetings and important church gatherings, television offers new opportunities," according to Bishop Freeman. "The projection of the personality of the preacher to his unseen congregation through two senses, hearing and seeing, instead of the single one of hearing, is bound to make religion a more potent influence in isolated lives."

"What a thrill will come to Christian folk when they can sit in their homes and see and hear the Archbishop of Canterbury preaching in his historic pulpit overseas or when the voice and figure both of the Bishop of London can be brought to his thousands of friends in the United States!"

Machinists' Lodge Plans Potomac Cruise Tonight

Columbia Lodge No. 174, International Association of Machinists, which is sponsoring a series of entertainments to raise $5,000 for unemployment relief this winter, will hold a moonlight cruise on board the Wilson Line steamer City of Washington tonight, which will close the line's activities for this season.

Arthur Wharton, national president of the organization, is in charge of arrangements.

It has been proven many times that Business opportunities, or merchandise for sale in the Classified Columns of The Post are worth investigating.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Electric blue paillettes form this smart evening gown, much flounced, and in a peg-top silhouette. (Courtesy of Jeanne Lanvin, Paris.)

New York, Sept. 6.

"HOW can we make a CHE-e-e-e hat look like what it aindt?"

"Well, by the way you wear it, my deah."

"Also by the trimming."

"You mean to say that I can take a dollar ninety-five hat, put a seven-dollar aigrette on it, and look like the Empress Eugenie herself?"

"Well, almost. That depends entirely upon the hat in the first place, then the material of it, and then the cut. As to the cut, there is absolutely no reason why a cheap felt can't be cut as well as an expensive felt, you see. But certain materials do not lend themselves much to cheapness, so be careful. Those that do, and have achieved a good cut, are the kind to look for in sale hats. Find a sale hat at no matter what price, of good cut, and of not too cheap looking or feeling material, and make your next step be how you put it on your own sweet little head."

And that, my darlings, is that, and applies to a fifty-dollar hat as well as to a fifty-cent one. How you put any hat on is up to you and to your sense of chic and style. It's all a matter of practice, and failure can't be attributed to the cheapness of the hat.

And last, but not at all least, the trimming. Cheap trimming has a way of looking cheap. You can buy, or haul out of grandmother's trunks, lovely plumes and feather gadgets and what nots, that cost many times what the hat cost, pose them on your cheap hat, and achieve success. Further, if you have only one millyun dollar or franc gadget, you can pose the same one on several hats, and that will be one way of beating Dame Fashion at her own game!

* * * *

Our silhouettes are doing lots of things these days, and one of the most interesting versions is the peg-top one. That seems a prosaic way to describe the charming effect given by the peg-top tunic to the smart evening gown from Jeanne Lanvin. This evening gown is solidly spangled in vivid, electric-blue paillettes. Little capelets cover the shoulder loosely, and the tunic is formed of graduated flounces. The long and narrow underskirt is of spangled flounces, too. This is one of those personality gowns, you know, rather than a style trend.

* * * *

Evening gowns are becoming "differenter and differenter" these days, and when you shop around for yours, the best "difference" you may him for is the unusual silhouette, 'N' with the great variety that there is nowadays, it isn't at all hard to get a becoming silhouette, as well.

* * * *

If you can't make up your mind whether to go straight or curly in your evening coiffures, why not go both ways? Especially if the effect is as lovely as in the evening coiffure I sketched for you today, where the division between the straight hair above the forehead and the tightly curled hair on the back of the head is marked by a round comb.

* * * *

"What shall I do with my fur coat? It makes me look like a mountain! And I paid so much for it, too!" M-m-m, I've heard that wail many times—so many, in fact, that I did something about the matter! It's perfectly easy and not at all expensive, to have your fur coat remodeled so that it flatters and enhances your particular charms, if you know what's what in the fur line. And the way to find out is to hurry and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for this week's leaflet that's overflowing with interesting fur facts and help for old and new fur owners!

And Dare's weekly fashion letter, in The Sunday Post, is of interest to every woman.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

TO INCREASE YOUR PHLOX.

DO you love the phlox family? Then let me show you an easy way to increase any variety at least a hundred fold in a season. This can be done from a single clump in your garden without sacrificing the clump.

Go into your garden, lift the clump which you wish to increase, wash every bit of soil from its roots and cut off the long, hair-like roots to within an inch of the growing crown. Then immediately set the old plant back again in the ground.

The clump will never know that it has been lifted. It may droop for a couple of days, but keep it well watered and next year it will flower as perfectly as it did this year.

Place the roots which have been cut from the old plant on a board and cut them up into pieces 2 inches long. Then prepare your cold-frame, rake and smooth it. Sow the cut-up rootlets thickly upon the surface and cover them with an inch of pure building sand. When freezing weather approaches cover the sand with dry leaves. Pile the leaves in until they reach the top of the sash, then place the sash on frame and forget it until March. At that time remove the leaves, but retain the sash and water the sand every morning.

Some sunny morning, to your surprise, you will find the entire frame alive with young phlox plants which will form a perfect green carpet in a few days. As soon as the sun becomes warm remove the sash in the middle of the day, but always replace it around 4 p. m.

About May 1 (or if the season is late, it is better to wait a few days) lift the young phlox plants and set them out in the garden. Better plant them in straight rows a foot apart. By July, if you follow this method, every phlox plant will be in full bloom, but they will be only about 18 inches high.

These plants will continue to bloom up until fall. They should then be lifted and planted in permanent places in your garden. The second summer these plants will produce large, full heads of bloom and attain their normal height.

Corn Savory, Serving Six.

2 slices bacon
2 tablespoons chopped onions
3 tablespoons chopped green peppers
3 cups corn
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon celery salt

Cut bacon in small pieces. Heat in frying pan and add and brown the onions and peppers. Add rest of ingredients. Cook slowly 5 minutes. Stir frequently.

Peanut Bars.

3 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
1 cup chopped roasted peanuts
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 egg whites, beaten
2 tablespoons confectioner's sugar

Beat the yolks and add the sugar. Mix well. Add the peanuts, vanilla, salt, flour, baking powder and egg whites. Mix lightly. Pour to thickness of 1 inch in shallow pan which has been fitted with waxed paper. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar and cut in bars. These are especially good for children.

Leftover egg yolks should be mixed with a little cold water, beaten with a fork and stored in a cold place. If this is done no crust forms over the top and the yolks can be used several days later.

Use scissors for cutting meats, fish or fowl for salads or creamed mixtures.

FINESSES A LAST RESORT

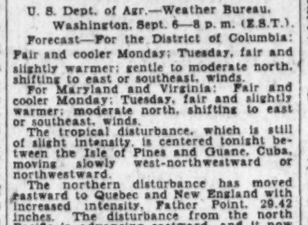
"TOO bad, partner, we're down one, but both the finesses lost."

How often you hear that remark at the Contract table and at least 50 per cent of the time the losing finesse need not have been taken. The play of the hand could have been so planned as to eliminate the element of luck, which is such a tremendous factor in the taking of finesses, and the lead placed in such a way that an opponent would have relieved the Declarer of the necessity of taking a chance.

I do not mean to be understood as saying that finesses are never necessary. Of course they are. But there are many hands in which needless finesses are taken and as a result of what appears to be an unfortunate lay of the cards, the Declarer loses a contract which could have been made by accurate play.

Take the hand below:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	2♠(1)	Pass	3♠(2)
Pass(3)	4♠(4)	Pass	Pass
Pass

(The figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

1—West's hand is a beautiful example of a hand fitted for the Jump Overcall, which shows another bid in the hand and more than 3 honor-tricks.

2—West was exeremely fortunate in finding a partner having not only adequate support for his bid suit but also a trick and a half in addition.

3—With a passing partner South can not safely bid further. He may be compelled to lead both hearts and diamonds from his own hand, resulting in a penalty of from 2 to 3 tricks and it is by no means certain that West can score game.

4—Holding apparently 8 playing-tricks, West's bid of four spades is fully justified.

North opened the club Knave in response to his partner's bid. He did not heed the warning implied in South's play of the trey and continued the suit. This trick South won and led another round, the Declarer trumping with an honor. Two rounds of spades picked up the adverse trumps and then the Ace and King of diamonds were cashed. A small spade was then led to the Dummy and the last diamond led and trumped in the closed hand.

The stage was now set for the making of the contract, regardless of the lie of the heart suit. West now led a small heart and the eight spot was finessed in the Dummy. This trick was won by South but he was absolutely helpless. To lead a club permits the closed hand to discard his losing heart and trump in the Dummy. A heart lead must give the remaining tricks to the Declarer. Had this hand been played on the basis of the taking of finesses, the contract must be defeated one trick, and had not both clubs and diamonds been eliminated before the one needed finesse was taken, the same result would have followed.

The hand also contains a suggestion for accurate defensive play. Had North, after holding the first club trick with the Knave, shifted and led through Dummy's strength, as emphatically suggested by South, the contract could have been made. There was only one holding, namely, K J x, that would make the heart lead advantageous, and North should have visioned those cards in his partner's hand. The hope that he could cash one of his spades on the third round of clubs caused North to disregard the warning play of the small club and thus afforded West an opportunity to make his game.

TODAY'S POINTER.

In making a lead, remember that a single honor with one or more cards or a combination of honors not in sequence is said to be in tenace position. In such cases a waiting lead is made with a Doubleton, a Singleton or a trump. In order to preserve such tenace positions when the lead shows a short suit, partner must as a rule assume a Doubleton rather than a Singleton and abstain from returning the initial lead. With an Ace, a King or honors not in sequence in one or two suits and a worthless Doubleton or a Singleton in the third suit, lead the short suit.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF SEPTEMBER 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10:10 a. m., from 2:15 p. m. to 3:45 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 5:10 p. m. to 7:35 p. m.

Slightly favorable influences on September 7, according to astrological indications, make for a pleasant, although uneventful day. Not much will be gained in a material way and, so far as business is concerned, no startling developments can be expected. It should be, however, a time of quiet content and harmonious conditions.

A child born on this September 7 promises to be a very affectionate individual and, because of this, much will be forgiven it—and there will be a whole lot to forgive. It will shine more at sports and play than at study. It will prefer idleness to industry. Notwithstanding these serious drawbacks, its horoscope indicates ultimate success.

If you were born on September 7, "wanderlust" is one of your chief characteristics and, according to the stars, you are bound to travel far and wide. The more you travel the more you will want to travel, and all through your life the attractions of a permanency will never appeal to you, as there is some urging spirit within you that forces you to be forever on the go. Your horoscope seems to denote that, in some way or other you will be able to satisfy this craving and derive therefrom considerable material benefits.

You are very observant, and nothing of any importance ever escapes your attention. Aided by a retentive memory, this, of course, will be a great advantage from an educational standpoint. You are sensibly inquisitive, and never afraid of asking "the why and wherefore." Your instincts are cosmopolitan and you evince very little interest in local happenings.

Your disposition is kind and generous, and you are a "good mixer"—companionable and congenial. If a woman, you have strong intuitions and emotions, are very impressionable and inclined to take instant dislikes to people—"because."

Neither men nor women, if born on this date, should seek in marriage anything but a dependable mate, as home will mean little or nothing to them.

Successful people born September 7:
J. Pierpont Morgan, banker.
Queen Elizabeth.
Edmund M. Holland, actor.
Ferdinand V. Hayden, geologist.
Thomas A. Hendricks, lawyer and congressman.
Joseph S. Hubbard, astronomer.

Mystery Stories Held Fad, To Pass Within Fifty Years

Murder, Crime and Overemphasis on Sex Will Be Displaced by Interest in Beauty of Expression, Novelist Thinks.

San Francisco (U.P.).—If you plan on living for another 50 years or so, and like murder stories, it would be advisable to take advantage of the depression and buy a few hundred crime books, according to Gertrude Atherton, popular novelist.

For murder and crime clubs and mysterious deaths are going to cease to entertain readers, she believes. "People read for amusement, and sooner or later they will tire of this fad," she declared.

"It's always been stylish for professors and the 'intellectuals' to read mystery stories. They like them, I suppose, because there is so little in them requiring thought. They provide relaxation. But such stories are so childish, really. Surely we can invent something better during the next 50 years . . ." she said.

Sex, too, is destined to assume a minor role in the novel and short story of the future, Mrs. Atherton insists. Not that love interest will disappear; that can never come about, she stated.

Other and greater conflicts will take over the main development of character and plot. Sex and love will be relegated to their places in a world filled with greater, more significant conflicts, is her prediction.

To hope for any golden age among authors, a literature in which the mystery of human character, and the beauty of expression will replace the appeal of detective adventures and romantic lovers is rather futile, Mrs. Atherton declared.

If America does continue along its present line of development, greater color, verve, spirit, and dash may be expected in our books, with the probable scientific inventions of the future exercising tremendous influences on such creative work, she declared.

Foodstuffs Show 50 Per Cent Cut in Detroit

Detroit (U.P.).—Detroit housewives are jubilant these days over the reduced price of food.

The housewife who fed her family on an allowance of $14 a week here two years ago now finds she can set the same sort of table for $8.50.

The almost 50 per cent reduction in foodstuffs is reported by George V. Branch, director of the Municipal Bureau of Markets.

Ballston Church Club to Meet.

The Woman's Club of the Ballston Presbyterian Church will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday night at the church. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Irwin Quigg and Mrs. Curtis Harrison.

Clarendon Auxiliary Luncheon.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department will give a luncheon tomorrow at the firehouse from 12 to 2 o'clock. In the evening at 8 o'clock there will be a business meeting.

California Stenographer Turns Taxicab Driver

Chico, Calif (U.P.).—"Taxi, sir?" This, in a feminine voice, greets travelers arriving here, all because Miss Allie Kesselring, notary public and public stenographer, refused to be without a job when her former employer left town.

She surveyed the field of stenographic positions and finding none available, took over the taxi service at a local hotel. She also will be the hotel's public stenographer and is a notary public.

"Driving a taxi gives me a new slant on life," Miss Kesselring said. "It's great experience and I'm getting along fine."

Ashton Heights Club Resumes.

Meetings of the Ashton Heights Woman's Club, of Arlington County, canceled during the summer months, will be resumed tomorrow evening in the clubhouse. All members are requested to be present. Committees will be appointed and the year's work planned.

FALLS CHURCH AIDS BICENTENNIAL PLANS

County-Wide Beautification Campaign Is Planned; Assistants Chosen.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The subcommittee on planting and beautification of the Bicentennial Commission of the Town of Falls Church, Va., has made plans for cooperation with the Northern Virginia bicentennial coordinating committee. Chairman W. T. Westcott has appointed Dr. Henry Knowles, Carroll V. Shreves, William S. Brown and H. O. Bishop as a finance subcommittee. Each of the original members of the beautification committee has appointed four or more assistants in various sections of the county.

L. P. Daniels, Mayor of Falls Church, addressed a meeting of the committee Saturday at the home of Dr. Knowles. He said he believed the committee was the most important of the bicentennial committees of the town. Plans are being made to ask each property owner to cut weeds on vacant lots, to clean up and plant their own grounds and adjoining roadsides.

It was proposed that archways be constructed at entrances to the town next spring. The Rev. E. B. Wilcox of the Crossman Methodist Church was appointed to communicate with the officials of the Federal Bicentennial Commission in regard to pageants to be presented in the town during the celebration. Mrs. William S. Brown was named secretary to the committees.

Arlington Firemen Ready for Parade

County Groups Polish Up Equipment for Event in Capital Today.

With all the equipment of the Arlington County Fire Departments cleaned and polished, members of the various departments met in their respective firehouses last night, completing details incident to their participation in the firemen's parade in Washington today.

Every department in the county will be represented in the parade, headed by a special escort of three members of the county police department. The police who will lead the firemen, according to Sheriff Howard B. Fields, are officers James D. East, Raymond Crack and Vernon Wilt.

Twenty-five members of the Long Branch Fire Department, in charge of former Chiefs Garrett Bodine and Joseph Schwark, and fifteen members of Haden Heights, New Jersey, Fire Department arrived in Clarendon yesterday and will be the guests of the Clarendon Fire Department. They will be in line in the parade today.

Falls Church W.C.T.U. Selects New Officers

The Falls Church Chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union has elected Mrs. George W. Hawxhurst as president; Mrs. R. E. Ankers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Munson Lane, recording secretary, and Mrs. C. A. Berger, treasurer.

One vice president was elected from each of the four local churches cooperating with the local chapter as follows: Baptist, Miss Hattie Elgin; Southern Methodist, Mrs. J. C. Smith; Crossman Methodist Episcopal, Miss Sybil Abbott, and Presbyterian, Mrs. George H. Fadeley. Mrs. J. G. Smith was selected as chairman of the committee on Christian citizenship, and Mrs. C. H. Cannon was given charge of publicity. The chapter voted to invite E. J. Richardson, superintendent of the Virginia Antisaloon League, to speak at the next union church meeting in October.

Women Voters to Hear Candidates in Arlington

The Organized Women Voters of Arlington County will hold their first open meeting at which candidates for county offices will speak on Wednesday, September 16, at the Ashton Heights Woman's Club house, it was announced yesterday. Candidates for county sheriff and trial justice of the county court will be the speakers. The meeting will open with a luncheon at 12:30.

Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, organization president, stated that it is planned to invite all candidates to appear at later meetings.

Firemen to Meet at Cherrydale.

The Arlington-Fairfax Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow evening at the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall at 8 o'clock. All members are asked to attend as final plans for participation in the National Fire Prevention Week by the various departments will be made.

Alexandria's Legion Delegates.

Glenn W. Elliott, adjutant of the American Legion, Department of Virginia, has announced the list of delegates and alternates to the national convention in Detroit, September 21-24, with two Alexandrians in the number; Richard B. English as delegate at large, and George F. Downham an alternate.

Arlington Health Clinics To Begin September 24

Dr. P. M. Chichester, Arlington County health officer, announces that the first of the fall and winter tuberculosis clinics will be held at the Virginia Highlands Health Center Thursday, September 24, conducted by Dr. H. A. Latane.

A full schedule for the clinics in the various magisterial districts has not yet been completed, Dr. Chichester stated, but a similar clinic will be held in Waashington District in October and in Arlington District in November.

ALEXANDRIA CHURCH REPAIRS COMPLETED

$3,000 Expended on Building This Summer; Structure Fully Renovated.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Alexandria, has expended approximately $3,000 this summer in repairs, renovating and redecorating the church, under the direction of the pastor, the Rev. D. L. Snyder, and members of the congregation, who have been working for some time to raise the necessary funds for the work.

Services were resumed in the church proper yesterday morning, meetings during the summer having been held in the Sunday school rooms, under the main auditorium.

The interior walls of the church have been painted a deep ivory, and above each of the large stained glass windows the design of the cross and a garland have been painted, with striking effect. All of the paneling and other wood trim of the church has been thoroughly cleaned, and the freshness and luster of the natural wood restored.

The outside work will soon be completed, with the painting of all doorways, window frames and wood trim, including that of the church proper, the George R. Hill Memorial building, and the parsonage, adjoining. The slate roofs of all buildings have been repaired and new copper guttering and spouting added, and the windows all reputtied and reglazed.

The church property, which occupies half of the 100 block of South Washington street, facing the Mount Vernon boulevard, has taken on an attractive appearance as a result of the work of artisans, and the pastor and members of the congregation are highly pleased with the results attained.

ALEXANDRIA ZONING BODY MAY ASK PAY

Meeting Tomorrow Night to Discuss Billing City for Work, Is Report.

The mbembers of the Alexandria Zoning Board will hold a meeting tomorrow night, at which time it is reported plans will be considered for formally presenting a bill to the city council for the services of the members in connection with the recent zoning of the city.

It is stated the members of the board had an understanding with the city council that they would be compensated for their work. However, at the last meeting of the council, the matter was brought up and the councilmen present at the meeting stated they had made no promise to the zoning board. The city manager, however, had been instructed to communicate with other Virginia cities and obtain information as to their practice, and in every instance, where the cities had in effect a zoning ordinance, or had a zoning board, the members of these boards served without compensation. This information was ordered transmitted to the members of the zoning board.

It is understood the members of the board first intimated they would expect compensation of $500 each for their work, but later stated they would be satisfied with $300 each. There are five members of the board.

Appeal in Tax Suit Begun in Arlington

County's Attorney Takes Steps to Get Higher Court's Ruling.

Plans to appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court of Arlington County the case to collect delinquent real estate taxes have been started by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth.

Mr. Gloth has applied to the clerk of the circuit court for a transcript of the record in the case of the Commonwealth against Ashton C. Jones, of Clarendon, one of the property owners figuring in the suits entered in behalf of the Commonwealth by Mr. Gloth last fall.

The county board of supervisors has left the matter in the hands of Mr. Gloth.

According to Defense Attorneys Jesse, Phillips and Klings, costs and fees in the suits are estimated at $25,000, while the total amount of taxes sued for is approximately $70,000, much of which it is claimed has been paid.

HORTICULTURE SHOW TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

Thirteenth Annual Exhibit at Takoma Park Will Run for Two Days.

The thirteenth annual fruit, flower and vegetable show, held for residents of Takoma Park under the auspices of the Takoma Horticultural Club, will be held Wednesday and Thursday at the Takoma branch of the Public Library.

The show will be run in four main classes. No dahlias will be exhibited because a special show for these flowers will be held later. Members of the show committee are Mrs. John H. Groveton Club to Hold Carnival Event Today

The annual Labor Day picnic and carnival of the Groveton Community Club will be held this afternoon on the grounds adjoining the Groveton School on the Washington-Richmond highway, about three miles south of Alexandria. The program for the afternoon includes a baseball game, horseshoe pitching contest, athletic events, while in the evening there will be dancing in the schoolhouse.

Earl L. Popkins is general chairman, with the following assistants: Baseball, Arthur D. Kerby; horseshoe pitching, L. C. Painter; games, E. L. Popkins and Miss Mary Lewis Reid; refreshments, Pierce Reid and Lud A. Popkins; music and dancing, Mrs. W. F. P. Reid and Mrs. E. L. Popkins; amusements, A. R. Harrison and Herbert Blunt, and refreshment stand, Mrs. Irene Richardson and Mrs. J. G. Quinn.

Shenandoah Fair Opens This Week

Receivers Arrange to Hold Annual Event; Exhibits Reaching Grounds.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 6.—What may be the last of the agricultural fairs here will be held September 8-11 by the Shenandoah Valley Agricultural Society on the Winchester Fair Grounds, with Benjamin F. Arthur, jr., managing the exhibition for James P. Reardon and Burr P. Harrison, who were last week named receivers for the society by a court order on the petition of Julien W. Baker and other stockholders.

The manager was making last-minute preparations today for the sixty-second annual fair and announced that the exhibition would go forward as scheduled. A large number of carnival attractions, side shows with freaks and other novelties were arriving and pitching tents on the grounds. Troop E, Third United States Cavalry, had arrived from Fort Myer, Va., to give exhibition drills during the week. Sergt. H. T. Smith, U. S. A., in charge of athletic events, has arranged a boxing card for Wednesday and Thursday nights.

After the fair is over and accounts settled the receivers are directed to make a report to the court. It is expected steps then will be taken to arrange for a settlement of claims that have been pending for more than a year, as most of last year's premiums have not been paid, and numerous other debts are pressing.

Rev. HoraceR. Lequear Resigns Near Staunton

Staunton, Va., Sept. 6.—The Rev. Horace R. Lequear today informed his congregations at St. John's, Middlebrook, and St. Paul's, Newport, of his resignation. He has accepted a call to the Rockingham charge of the Reformed Church in the United States.

He has been pastor of these two congregations in this county since February 11, 1928. In going to Rockingham County, Mr. Lequear will serve Brown Memorial Church, McGaheysville, Friedens, east of Mount Crawford, and St. Michael, near Bridgewater.

Leesburg Garden Club Show to Aid Hospital

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 6.—The annual flower show of the Leesburg Garden Club will be held Thursday afternoon, September 24, in the Thomas Balch Library auditorium. Proceeds will be applied to the funds for the Loudoun County Hospital grounds and garden fund.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT was mostly the fault of Mrs. Joe E. Brown. By the first lucky break I have enjoyed since that wall almost hit me at the Chicago fire, back in '73, it was Mrs. Brown whom I had the pleasure of meeting for the first time almost at the door of the Earle Theater Saturday afternoon. It was with her that I was privileged to sit, ostensibly in a stage box, but actually plastered up against the wall back of one, during the first stage show at which her husband appeared. And it was she who graciously escorted me back stage and introduced me to friend husband as soon as he had come off, with the roar of the crowd still in his ears. So, you see.

Joe E. Brown

Mrs. Brown is a lady of infinite charm, with a tremendous enthusiasm for the theater and a keen sense of stage and screen values, and is her gifted spouse's confidante and adviser in all that he does. She even opens and reads his fan mail, which is seemingly a very tough order, one of Saturday's budget apparently having attained about the proportions of a Wickersham report!

Obviously, she also shares her husband's pride in their three fine children—two sons, Don Evan, 14, and Joe Leroy, 12, and one small daughter, Mary Ann Elizabeth, still a babe in arms—and handsome new home in Hollywood. How do I know? Because across the entire width of the broad dressing shelf in Joe E. Brown's dressing room stand a line of some six or eight 11 by 14 photographs, taken by the studio still photographer, off which the proud parents could no more keep their eyes than I could, and I was seated directly opposite them.

Seated there for the entire period between the first and second stage shows, as a matter of fact, enjoying an intimate close-up of one of the contemporary screen's most interesting figures—altogether too long a time to stay, of course, but there are times when tempus really does some high-power and strictly grade A fugitting.

Mrs. Brown, probably sensing by some infallible feminine intuition that that newspaper guy would be there from then on, departed shortly for the depressing spectacle of Washington's double defeat by the New York Yankees, leaving hubby, to whom escape was impossible, holding the bag!

SO while Joe peeled down to his lounging robe we talked. And if you think that Joe E. Brown doesn't know where he's going, now that he is up there in the big money, look out for that padded van that comes over now and again from the crest of the Anacostia hills!

Under his new starring contract with Warner Bros. he has a voice in the selection and treatment of the story material that is to go into his pictures. The absence of such a clause heretofore, he feels, has been one of his severest handicaps—as it is any star's. One of the cinema's chief transgressions, Mr. Brown believes, has been a too abject surrender to the fetish of the production schedule and too willing an indifference to the crying need of patient and painstaking preparation of scripts from the standpoint of the star's capability as well as the author's dramatic or comic intention. When production time has arrived, production has started, regardless of whether the script was half-baked or perfect. All that is going to be ended in Joe Brown's pictures. That is, it is going to be ended—or else!

Asked about the possibility of doing more musicals, Joe was further articulate and earnest. It is his view that musicals died an early death not so much because there were too many of them as that there were too many of them that were bad—not pictures at all, but merely photographed stage musical comedies and revues, devoid of every vestige of distinctive cinematographic treatment. That the public will respond to a good picture with music today just as spontaneously and just as profitably as it always has in the past is his perfectly sound contention. He was a dancing comedian—and a good one—before he ever went into pictures in 1928, and if a good musical vehicle comes along now, and he can get it, he in all probability will do it. Personally, I hope it comes along soon.

AT this juncture, Johnny Payette, zone manager for the Warner Bros.; Guy Wonders, production manager, and Frank La Falce, publicity director, came in, just ahead of "Doug," Mr. Brown's dresser, who was bearing the orange juice and ice cream.

None of the others of us having any bad habits, Joe was confronted with the gastronomical necessity of going it alone for a while, which gave Johnny Payette time to whisper why the Japanese valet they had planned to have for Mr. Brown's greater comfort and convenience wasn't on hand.

It seems the Jap was a trifle excited by the honor that had been so suddenly thrust upon him and was doing the wrong thing with astonishing efficiency immediately prior to Mr. Brown's arrival at the theater.

In the confusion some one asked him his name.

"My name," he replied, "my name, he called 'Joe'."

He didn't get the job.

IT CAME out as we went along that Joe Brown has never employed the services of a double in any picture he has ever made, no matter what the physical requirement or risk. This has necessitated his participating in all manner of athletics and taking all kinds of chances. It also has kept him in perfect condition.

He is 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighs 150 pounds and retains the wasp waist and the arm, shoulder and back development that he acquired when as a youngster he was an acrobat with the Five Marvelous Ashtons in the Ringling Brothers Circus.

The boxing bouts in which he has appeared in some of his films have been honest-to-goodness scraps and not synthetic studio imitations. The fight scenes in "Hold Everything," for example, were made when Joe and a former featherweight champion of the West Coast, whose name I can not at the moment recall, went the route as a featured event on a bona fide Los Angeles benefit fight card, patronized by a huge crowd of cash customers. The comedy bits were injected as they milled along and Joe happened to think of them while dodging straight lefts and slipping right hooks.

Down on the stage before his first entrance he is as nervous as a kitten—the unfailing sign of a good trouper.

Saturday afternoon one of the acts had temperamentalized itself off the bill and in the altercation that ensued a fist had been thrown, but missed. They were telling Joe about it to take his mind off his own fidgets.

"He missed?" said he. "That's too bad. Always get in that first sock in the jaw. Explode it right on the point of his chin—boom!—if you can. Then if he doesn't drop, turn around and run like hell!"

I noticed that he was looking directly at me, so I did.

CROWDER STOPS YANKEES AS NATS WIN FINAL, 4-1

Von Elm and Burke Win By 1 Up

3,000 Watch Hunter and Diffenbaugh Bow to Stars.

Local Pros Suffer First Defeat on Home Course.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

BILLY BURKE, national open champion, and George Von Elm, runner-up in the same event, losing by one stroke at the end of 144 holes, yesterday defeated J. Monro Hunter and George Diffenbaugh, professional and assistant professional of the Indian Spring Club, by the narrow margin of one up in an eighteen-hole best-ball match on the Indian Spring course. The contest attracted a gallery of between 2,500 and 3,000 golfers, who followed with intense interest every stroke of the round.

Burke scored the best medal card of the eighteen holes, with 34 on the outward nine and 35 for the inward journey, two under par. It is true that on the first hole, when he overapproached the green on his second shot, Von Elm, on the green in two, was able to secure a half with Hunter also on the green, Diffenbaugh having carried his shot over the green.

Burke Gets Birdie On Fourth Hole.

The second hole, however, was won by Diffenbaugh with a fine approach on his second shot and with one putt for a birdie three. The third hole squared the match, for both Hunter and Diffenbaugh were handicapped by trap shots from the tee, Hunter not being able to extricate his ball from the send even on the second shot. When Burke tapped his ball into the cup for a birdie three on the fourth hole the visitors were one up.

With the fifth hole halved in par 4s and with the sixth halved in par 3s, Diffenbaugh again saved his side by a fine second shot to the seventh green, holing out a birdie 4, which halved with Burke, Hunter having driven into the rough, with his second shot still in the rough and reaching the green in 3. Diffenbaugh with his second shot on the eighth hole, on the edge of a trap, was out of the picture, but Hunter secured a half with a par 4. With the ninth, 235 yards, halved in par 3s, after Diffenbaugh had played a fine recovery shot from the rough to the green, the visitors were 1 up at the turn.

On the tenth, Hunter's par 4 again secured a half, while on the eleventh Burke missed an 8-footer for a birdie 3 and the hole was halved in par 4s. Diffenbaugh, with a fine second shot to the green, won the long twelfth with a par 4, the other players being wild in their second shots, and thus squared the match. The thirteenth was spectacular, Burke running down a putt from the lower side of the green for an unexpected par 3, leaving Hunter a 6-footer to tie after a perfect approach. There was great applause as Hunter, under pressure, ran down his putt for a half. On the fourteenth, however, Hunter was far off-line to the left and Diffenbaugh was in the right-hand trap. Burke and Von Elm with par 3s, although Hunter hit the cup for his 3, the ball failing to drop. On the fifteenth hole Diffenbaugh again came to the rescue with a third shot so close to the cup that it nearly dropped in, enabling him to secure a half with a birdie 4 against his opponents. With the latter 1 up, all the remaining holes were halved, although Burke missed a comparatively easy putt on the sixteenth and Hunter almost chipped his ball into the cup for a birdie 3 on the final hole from some distance off the green, which, if it had dropped, would have evened the match.

Iron Shots of Winners Feature Match.

It will thus be seen that the match had enough thrills to satisfy the large gallery, although the spectacular shots were few and far between. The putting especially lacked in noteworthy features, although the greens were in perfect condition, for in the whole match there were only six one-put greens, while only two comparatively short putts were missed. The main features of the match were the fine iron work of Burke and Von Elm, their failures to reach the green on their second shots on the par 4 holes being few and far between; the fine assistance which Diffenbaugh gave to his partner and the long drives which characterized Hunter's play. Unfortunately, however, as the golfer knows, you do not pay off on the long drives and Hunter's in-between shots were not always marked by accuracy. The cards:

2,500 Greet Ouimet At Massachusetts Home

Newton, Mass., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Francis Ouimet received a boisterous homecoming welcome from more than 2,500 friends and admirers as the newly crowned national amateur golf champion arrived tonight from his conquests at Beverly Country Club, Chicago.

Included in the crowd that met Ouimet at the station were his wife, mother, two daughters, brother and sister. After greeting his family he ascended a stool and told the crowd that this was the happiest moment of his life.

Charley Burgess, Woodland Golf Club professional and Ouimet's greatest rooter, escorted the Ouimet car through the two miles from the station to the champion's home. Crowds lined along the streets broke through police guards to shake Ouimet's hand.

The Havemeyer Trophy, emblematic of the championship, was brought to Ouimet's home where about 200 of his friends were admitted and listened to Francis' story of his triumph.

CARDS WIN 2 AS GIANTS LOSE

Blank Reds, 3-0, 7-0, to Extend Lead to 7 Full Games.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals increased their lead in the National League pennant race to seven full games here today by defeating the Cincinnati Reds in both games of a double header, 3 to 0, and 7 to 0, while Ben Cantwell, of the Boston Braves, was shutting out the Giants, who gained five and a half games on the league leaders last week.

The Reds' whitewashing in the twin bill was due largely to a woeful lack of timely hits. Flint Rhem was on the hill for the Cards in the opener and he granted but three safeties, while fanning three and issuing no passes. He was never in trouble.

Johnson Scores Second Shutout.

In the second contest, Johnson's slants were touched by the Reds for nine hits, including doubles by Cuccinello and Sukeforth, but, when hits meant runs, Johnson always had enough in reserve to escape unscathed.

Bottomley, who went hitless in the first game, came back in the second with three hits, including a homer.

Braves Halt Giants' Streak; Win, 5 to 0

New York, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Ben Cantwell shut out the Giants with four hits today and gave the Boston Braves a 5-to-0 victory. Boston's triumph cut off New York's winning streak at eight games and ended the Braves' succession of defeats after nine games. The Giants won 16 of the 22 games between the teams this season.

Cantwell did not allow a Giant to reach third base and only Ethan Allen could make more than one hit off him. In addition to his fine pitching, he made two hits and drove in two runs. The Braves rapped Clarence Mitchell hard, batting around in the second inning to score four runs.

Hack Wilson Suspended By Cubs

"Infraction of Training Rules," Given as the Reason.

Pat Malone, Mound Star, Draws Heavy Fine From Club.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Hack Wilson today was suspended by President William L. Veeck of the Cubs, for the remainder of the National League season. The suspension was imposed at Manager Rogers Hornsby's request, and is without pay. "Infraction of training rules," was given as the reason.

Pat Malone, right handed pitching star, also was disciplined by President Veeck for "disorderly conduct and roistering." Malone was given a heavy fine but was not suspended. The disciplanary actions were said to have been the result of incidents which occurred while the Cubs were in Cincinnati last week.

Wilson Seen as Through With Cubs.

Veeck's action indicated that Wilson has worn Cub regimentals for the last time. Owner William Wrigley, jr., last week said he wanted Wilson sold or traded, adding that it was a "personal wish," and that Hornsby and Veeck would decide what to do with the pudgy outfielder who set a new National League record of 56 home runs last season.

Indication that Wilson was "all done" as far as Hornsby was concerned, was given at Cincinnati when Vince Barton, recruit outfielder, was forced to go to his home in Canada because of the serious illness of a member of his family. Instead of sending Wilson into action, Hornsby used Bud Teachout, southpaw pitcher, in the outfield.

It was revealed that the suspension would cost Wilson in excess of $6,000, making his annual salary around $35,000.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Mike Kreevich, star right fielder of the Des Moines Western League Club, will play in the Chicago Cub outfield tomorrow. Kreevich was purchased by the Cubs two weeks ago and was to have reported in the spring. The suspension of Hack Wilson today caused the Cubs to make arrangements for Kreevich's immediate delivery.

Al Wittmer, Princeton Coach, Seriously Ill

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Al Wittmer, head football coach at Princeton University, was brought to the Mary Hitchcock Hospital today, suffering from acute appendicitis. Physicians said his condition was serious, but he refused to undergo an operation.

Wittmer was hurried to the hospital here from North Pomfret, Vt., where he had been visiting Stan Keck, a star tackle at Princeton several years ago.

Phillies and Dodgers Split in Double Bill

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Jim Elliott, left-handed Brooklyn discard now with the Phillies, hurled his sixth victory of the year over the Dodgers today as Burt Shotton's men won the first game of a doubleheader by a score of 8 to 4. The Dodgers obtained an even break on the day by winning the second game, 7 to 2.

Elliott's victory was his sixteenth of the year. He kept ten hits well scattered and was never in serious danger after the second inning when the Phils knocked Joe Shaute out of the box with a six-run assault.

Hollis Thurston was the winning pitcher in the second game, although he needed the relief pitching of Jack Quinn. The Dodgers got off to a two-run jump off Bolen and were never headed.

The season series between the clubs ended with Brooklyn winning 13 of the 22 games.

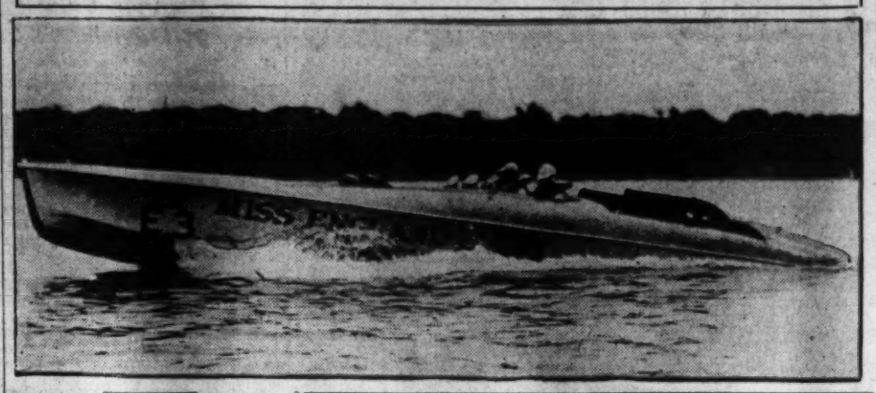
BRITISH SPEEDBOAT WINS IN FIRST HEAT



DON DEFEATS GAR WOOD BY MILE

Miss England II Sets Record; 500,000 See Contest.

Miss America IX averaged 87.027. The previous heat record was 77.390 miles an hour. Don's fastest lap was the second when he averaged 93.017 miles an hour. The previous lap record was 79.082, set by Wood in the ninth a year ago.

The Miss England's great speed was manifest from the first. Don beat Wood across the starting line and led him on the first lap by 100 yards. Wood jumped into the lead on the west turn, but only for a moment. It was the only time Miss England took the wash of the American boat.

As the boats roared out of the turn, Don's mechanics opened the throttles and the big six-ton hydroplane shot back into the lead. From then on Don gradually widened the gap between him and the trailing Miss Americas. It was on this second lap that he made his fastest time. On the final lap, with victory assured, he cut down the speed and still led Wood by more than a mile when he reached the finish line.

Pilots Pose and Talk Over Radio.

Don took the Miss England half way around the course after the finish and then cut across the river to the judges' stand, where the boat was tied up. Wood slid up in the Miss America IX a moment later and the two greatest speedboat pilots in the world shook hands. Later they posed for pictures standing on the deck of the English boat.

Both pilots spoke briefly over the radio. Don, his ears still ringing from the roar of the giant Rolls motors, was visibly confused. Later he told reporters he was well satisfied with the Miss England's performance.

"It was a great race and I enjoyed it immensely," he said. "Our boat behaved beautifully and I am more than happy that I may be able to take the trophy back home to England with me."

Wood, veteran of many races, was cool and collected as he stepped ashore.

"Well, I took the spray this afternoon and while it is a new experience for me, it may be a good one. "We've had the plaque over here a good while and perhaps it is a good idea for the game that it changed hands. However, there's another race tomorrow and we may do better."

Wood said the ninth gave him some trouble by jumping. There was reserve speed in the motors, he said, but because the boat was not planing evenly at all times he was unable to utilize it. The Miss England, on the other hand, planed evenly at all times, and also had the benefit in the lead with the water smooth.

George Wood drove the eighth. Orlin Johnson was at the throttles for Gar and Vance Smith rode with George.

Among the airplanes which circled above the river was an autogiro, in which one of the judges rode, watching for any accident or infraction of rules, such as "cutting" the buoy. This occurred in a previous race, but the infraction was not discovered until pictures of the incident were published. Sections of the course can not be seen from the judges' stand.

So he is damned if he does and damned if he doesn't, and the whole situation is such that it is likely to exert a certain influence on the young athlete's respect for authority and his devotion to fair play.

Almost any authority except that of the commission would be better than the authority of the boxing department of the metropolitan A. A. U. This is the authority which drove the New York-Chicago boxing tournament out of New York by insisting on the employment of local officials, although local referees and judges had shown themselves incapable of nonpartisan judgment in the past. In this case, involving the greatest amateur boxing meet ever conducted, the conduct of the A. A. U. was so similar to that of the prize fight commission in several notable affairs of the professional ring that one might have thought the prize fight commission was prompting the A. A. U. The best that can be said of the prize fight commission as a governing body in amateur boxing, however, is that it probably will be no worse than the A. A. U., which is flattering to both of them.

It is puzzling to find the prize fight commission so interested in the amateurs all of a sudden, and I wonder if perhaps there is not more money in amateur promotion just now than there is in the professional racket in the depressed condition of the prize

N. Y. Amateur Fighters In Bad Way Between Commission and A. A. U.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The New York prize fight commission has taken over control of amateur boxing throughout the State, and in the first demonstration of this new authority the police drove away 3,000 customers from an unauthorized meet, which was to have been conducted under a license of the A. A. U. The A. A. U. refused to recognize the authority of the prize fight commission and threatens to disqualify from the national amateur championship and the Olympic championship competitions of 1932 all amateur who fight in meets sanctioned by the commission but not approved by the A. A. U.

This puts the amateur fighters exactly in the middle of a political quarrel and, according to precedent, they can not hope to escape merely by going into temporary retirement. Both the commission and the A. A. U. in the past have assumed the right to command their subjects to perform whether they wished to or not, so a young man who announces he does not choose to fight will have to fight or lose his ticket.

He will then have to decide which ticket he does choose to lose. But if he decides to keep his A. A. U. ticket he will still not be allowed to fight, because the prize fight commission will not let him. In fact, the commission might even lock him up for attempting to fight contrary to law.

MACKS BEAT RED SOX BY 5-3 SCORE

Cochrane, Williams in Star Roles With Home Runs.

BOSTON, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—The Athletics made it four out of five from the Red Sox by taking the series finale today, 5 to 3. Outhit 10 to 8, the champions were kept in front by Mickey Cochrane's bat, the star catcher driving in four runs with a home run and a double. Dib Williams also hit for the circuit.

Earl Webb drove in two of Boston's runs with his fifty-seventh and fifty-eighth doubles.

Al Simmons was back in left field for the A's and went hitless against the offerings of Milt Gaston, who had one bad inning, the third, when Williams hit his homer, Rommel singled, and Cochrane hit for the circuit.

Browns Drop to Sixth As Indians Win Pair

St. Louis, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The Cleveland Indians took both ends of a double-header from the St. Louis Browns, winning the first 7 to 5 and the second 13 to 2.

Harder pitched the first game, keeping thirteen hits pretty well scattered, while Hudlin allowed the losers only nine hits in the nightcap.

The double defeat gave the Tigers undisputed possession of fifth place, dropping the Browns to sixth.

POLICE AND FIRE NINES IN ANNUAL GAME AT STADIUM TODAY

Smoke-Eaters Seek Fifth Straight

Battery of Hull and Burthe Makes Fire Nine Favorite.

Winters Police Hurler; 10,000 Crowd Looked For.

THE Fire Department Team reigns a slight favorite to win over the Police Department Nine in their ninth annual benefit game, to be played today at 3 p. m. in Griffith Stadium. The game will follow the parade of smoke eaters from this and visiting cities.

Manager Bus Hagar plans to send Calvin Hull after the Firemen's fifth consecutive victory, with Burthe doing the receiving. Hull and Burthe have been playing together on various sandlot combinations for a goodly number of years, and it will be a hard combination for the "hoop-rollers" to beat. Johnny Winters will serve them up for the Coppers, with Hoffman behind the plate.

Crowd of 10,000 Expected To See Game.

A crowd of at least 10,000 is expected to witness the fray. The Police triumphed in every game played during the four years of the series, and then the Firemen executed an about face and won during the next four. Today will start a new cycle, and although it is the Police Team's turn to win, it will have to play at a fast clip to snap the streak of their opponents.

The line-up of the Fire Department Team will be as follows: Walter, center field; Snow, third base; Hatcher, second base; Ritnour, shortstop; Gately, center field; Hass, first base; Watt, right field; Burthe, catcher, and Hull, pitcher. Beachum will be ready to go to the firing line should Hull find the going too rough, and Davis is available to relieve Burthe behind the plate. Jones and Galpin are the utility men of the squad.

The hook and ladder boys will miss the presence of Morris Clark in the line-up. Clark was hit in the head by a pitched ball in a game with the Lorton Reformatory Team, and has not fully recovered from his injury. Peterson, who played first last year, will also be missed. Peterson did not try out for the team this year.

Sine, Murray Pitching Reserves.

Sergt. J. E. Boyle, pilot of the Police Team, will send the following men into action: Wood, right field; Muzurski, first base; Hiser, second base; Campbell, left field; Dewey, center field; Grayson, shortstop; Hoffman, catcher; Weatherhead, third base, and Winters, pitcher. Sine and Murray are Boyle's reserve moundsmen. The sergeant is depending on his sluggers, especially Ernie Hiser, to make things hot for his opponents. Hiser is the only sandlotter who has ever knocked a ball over the right field wall at Griffith Stadium, and the big fellow has said something about duplicating this feat today.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

MOST of the daring humans who have ventured to go over mighty Niagara have been either seriously injured or killed, despite the fact that all of them were protected by huge padded rubber balls, barrels, &c. Yet "Red Hill," a police dog, took the leap without any protection whatsoever and came out without a scratch. Playing in the water near the brink of the falls on the American side, the dog was suddenly caught in the powerful current and in a instant was swept over the roaring brink before the eyes of sorrowful spectators. In a few minutes a rather surprised police dog emerged from the cloud of mist at the bottom of the great cataract and managed to gain the safety of one of the many giant rocks that tower above the whirling waters. The dog was rescued by a man who happened to be passing near the bottom of the falls, and was found not to be harmed in the least. "Red Hill" is owned by Andrew Terogsz, of Niagara.

William R. Eba was twice reported by the Government to have been killed in action during the World War. His first death was supposed to have occurred at Chateau Thierry and the second at St. Mihiel. Recently Eba applied for his war-time bonus loan and was informed by the Veterans' Bureau in San Antonio, Tex., that he died March 11, 1930. Now Eba has hired a lawyer to try to prove that he is still alive.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

LINCOLN FIELDS RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Sept. 6.—A well arranged program has been carded for the holiday patrons of Lincoln Fields tomorrow with the Joliet Handicap, a six-furlongs dash for two-year-olds as the feature attraction. The $5,000 added prize received a list of fifteen in the overnight entries, with several promising juveniles among the eligibles. Supporting the main event will be an allowance affair for three-year-olds and upward, third on the card. A field of nine sprinters will contest the purse over the six furlongs.

In the headliner, NEWGRO, winner of the Hawthorne Juvenile Handicap, handsome son of EPINARD, despite his impost of 120 pounds has shown several sensational efforts and appears a strong possibility for championship honors. The Nevada Stock Farm's juvenile, however, will encounter stern opposition from the fourteen named to start but figures to annex the major portion of the purse. BURNING BLAZE from the Valley Lake Stable, suffered interference in the Hawthorne feature, but with better racing luck will prove a dangerous contender. LIBERTY LIMITED, the pride of the Three D's string, is handicapped at 118 pounds and on his clever performances in previous races should share in the purse.

DOUBLE HEART, from the F. A. Carreaud string, has been training briskly and appears capable of taking the measure of his eight rivals in the 6-furlong dash of the Toilers, secondary feature. STREET SINGER ran far below his best form last start, and, in this class, will furnish the opposition. ESKIMO is rounding to form and should gain the show.

FIRST RACE—The usual limit field of juveniles will battle it out in the 6-furlongs of the opener. LEJOY, a recent winner at this track, is at the top of his form and should repeat against this field. PRINCE VOLTA finished second to Triassic last outing, and should go as well here. INDIAN DANCE will have SABINA H. to beat for the minor award.

SECOND RACE—ROYAL ROGUE and REVERBERATE are closely rated in the 6 furlongs of the second, which attracted another large field. The former has shown consistent form in sprints and figures to hold his opposition safe. REVERBERATE has been route racing, but should save the place with ANGRY, from the C. V. Whitney string, favorite for the short end of the purse.

FIFTH RACE—ISLAM is given the call over his seven rivals in the mile and a sixteenth of the fifth. The J. Howard racer stepped this route in 1:45 2-5 last start and if repeated here should return him the winner.

SIXTH RACE—In the mile and a quarter of the sixth, MADCAP MARVIN, a steady plater from the Valley Lake Stable is well suited by the conditions and should annex the purse. SANTA SOPHIA will favor the soft track and is given the place call.

SEVENTH RACE—The concluding number will be contested over the gruelling mile and a quarter route, with twelve named to start. WATER GAP should show improvement over his recent effort in which he finished third. The E. L. Snyder color bearer has only ARROWLIKE to beat for the honors.

FORT OFFERS DE ANGELO BOUT

Landers Challenges on Winner-Take-All Basis.

PATSY DONOVAN, who claims his boy, Frankie De Angelo, is being sidetracked by Fort Washington boxing authorities in favor of Midget Wolgast, flyweight luminary, for a bout with Sailor Billy Landers, received a counter-punch last night from an unexpected source which not only informed him that Landers would be willing to meet De Angelo again, but would do that little thing on a winner-take-all basis.

Tony Barbaria, manager of Landers, wrote the Fort officials that he would quickly forget about Wolgast if Donovan would put De Angelo in the ring with Landers with the stipulation that the loser receive not a penny for his services. The date in question is September 21.

Landers and De Angelo fought last month at the Fort with the former winning a referee's decision.

De Angelo Held Lightly By Landers' Pilot.

Barbaria's letter of yesterday, expressing, as it does, utter contempt for the prowess of De Angelo and the willingness of Landers to engage the Mohawk Club featherweight once more, reads, in part, as follows:

"I have been informed that Mr. Donovan was dissatisfied with the last meeting between the two boys and has claimed he has been 'sidetracked' for Midget Wolgast. * * * I'll put Landers in there with De Angelo on a winner-take-all basis. If Mr. Donovan thinks favorably of this idea then I am agreed to forget all about Midget Wolgast for the 21st of this month.

"* * * Mr. Donovan's statement that De Angelo is the big drawing card at Fort Washington hands me a laugh. * * * My personal belief is that Frankie De Angelo can't break an egg. I also believe De Angelo couldn't draw flies in a wind-up in your city without some on like Billy in there making him fight.

Mann to Book Bout if Donovan Is Willing.

"* * * In closing let me take the liberty of saying that it would be just like money from home if the Fort matched Landers with De Angelo. And if you ask me, the fight won't go three rounds."

Frankie Mann, Fort matchmaker, it was learned last night, is willing to substitute De Angelo for Wolgast if Donovan will accept Barbaria's terms.

Betty Robinson Home; 11 Weeks in Hospital

Chicago, Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Betty Robinson, who brought the Women's Olympic 100-Meter Championship to the United States in 1928, returned to her home today, just eleven weeks from the day she was taken to a hospital gravely injured in an airplane accident.

At first it was believed that her injuries, and they were numerous, would prove fatal, but today she had almost completely recovered.

Whether the 19-year-old girl will ever run again can not be determined until a cast is removed from her left leg, which was fractured in two places.

Eastern Coach Returns To Start Grid Drills

Coach Mike Kelley, of Eastern, who has been at Virginia Beach with the Marines for two weeks, returned to town last night, with plans well formulated for the opening of Eastern's preseason training beginning tomorrow.

That Kelley has a job on his hands this year can be seen from the fact that his 1930 team has been virtually wiped out by graduations. Wells, quarter back; Corridon, full back; McAboy, end; Chalkley, all-high tackle, are gone, among others. Maurice Wolf, whose work at guard and tackle last year was noteworthy, was injured during the summer and is not expected to appear for practice.

Woodmont and Manor Golfers in Tourneys

A kickers' handicap was staged yesterday on the course of the Woodmont Club. The lucky numbers were 71, 74 and 78, and Howard Nordlinger, with a score of 81—7—74, was declared the winner. There was a quintuple tie for second between Milton Harris, 91—16—75; Morris Goldstein, 90—15—75; Leo Schlosberg, 110—36—75; Jack Shulman, 100—27—75, and Morris Simon, 97—22—75. Albert E. Steinem followed with 92—5—77.

At the Manor Club yesterday the first round of the competition for the president's cup, 36 holes, medal play, gave C. D. Gibbons the lead with a score of 84—15—69. Col. G. F. Storm tied for second, 83—13—70, with D. N. Burnham, 82—12—70. The third was D. M. McPherson, with 91—19—72.

Central Grid Squad Reports Tomorrow

Bert Coggins, new Central High School football coach, last night issued a call to candidates for the Blue and White eleven to report for preliminary training tomorrow in the Mount Pleasant Stadium at 8:30 o'clock.

Coggins, whose duties heretofore at Central have embraced the coaching of the basketball team and direction of the school's entire athletic department, was appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Ty Rauber. Coggins, being unacquainted with the players who will come under his supervision this fall, hopes to make rapid strides in getting a line on his prospects before the academic term opens two weeks hence.

Quantico Poloists Beat Wash. Co. Four

Quantico, Va., Sept. 6.—With Lieut. Ferguson and Lieut. Stadler each scoring four goals in a fine exhibition of riding and shooting, the Quantico Marine Post Polo Team today overwhelmed the Washington County Polo Association four on the home field, 13 to 3. Two of the visitors' goals were made from handicap.

Capital Stars Meet Success In Morgantown Net Tourney

Mitchell Reaches Singles Semifinals, Defeating Welsh, as O'Neill Also Advances; Miss Rose Triumphs in Women's Play.

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 6. Maurice O'Neill, veteran left-handed player from Washington, D. C., proved the surprise of the heavy day's play here in the Morgantown Country Club invitation tennis tournament. Before a large gallery, O'Neill drowned John O'Loughlin, of Pittsburgh, in a third round match, 6—3 6—4, to enter the quarter-finals.

O'Loughlin was seeded No. 4, but he had no chance against the tricky game of the District of Columbia man.

Dooly Mitchell, of Washington, ran true to form and played the only quarter-final match of the afternoon, defeating lanky Barney Welsh, of Rockville, Md., 6—1, 11—9. Welsh played a great game in the final set and thrilled the fans with the closeness of a battle which found both men driving.

Alice Rose, of Washington, played against Miriam Sullivan, of Pittsburgh, seeded No. 1 in the women's singles, won the third set, 6—4, the match having been stopped last night on account of darkness, with both girls having a set each. Miss Rose was the steadier today.

Summaries of matches in which players of the Capital area took part follow:

MEN'S SINGLES.

FOURTH ROUND—Barney Welsh, Rockville, Md., defeated Edgar Alcorn, Pittsburgh, 6—6, 6—7; Frank Smith, Pittsburgh, defeated William Buchanan, Washington, 6—3, 6—2; Maurice O'Neill, Washington, defeated John O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, 6—3, 6—4; Alan Staubly, Washington, defeated John Purinton, Washington, 6—2, 6—2.

QUARTER-FINALS.

Dooley Mitchell, Washington, defeated Barney Welsh, Rockville, 6—1, 11-9.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

FIRST ROUND—Joseph Rutley, Washington, and William Seidel, Ardmore, Md., defeated Bob Biddle and Gene Devol, Parkersburg, W. Va., 6—3, 3—6, 6—4; Staubley and Latona, Washington, defeated Cochran and Boyd, Pittsburgh, 6—4, 6—4; Rumsey and Unger, Pittsburgh, defeated Welsh and Welsh, Rockville, Md., 7—5, 6—3; Purinton and O'Neill, Washington, defeated Smith and Bogeley, Pittsburgh, 6—1, 6—0.

SECOND ROUND.

Staubley and Latona defeated Broida and Maits, 6—3, 6—3; Mitchell and Buchanan defeated Moore and Burke, 8—2, 6—4.

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

SECOND ROUND.

Betty Cochran, Washington, defeated Martha Norvell, Huntington, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1; Sarah Wright, Frostburg, Md., defeated Aneta Highland, Clarksburg, W. Va., 6—1, 6—0; Marian Butler, Washington, defeated Catherine Cole, Greensburg, Pa., 6—1, 6—3.

QUARTER-FINALS.

Helen Carson, Greensburg, Pa., defeated Betty Cochran, Washington, 6—2, 6—4; Mary McDonnell, Falling Timber, Pa., defeated Sarah Wright, Frostburg, Md., 6—0, 6—0; Marian Butler, Washington, defeated Mary Eberling, Wheeling, 8—0, 7—5.

NEW YORK AMATEUR BOXERS IN SWITCHES

fight business. Possibly there are some deserving Democrats on the professional side who wish to organize amateur boxing clubs in order to inculcate chivalry, manly independence and a love of fair play in the young.

It may be that even Primo Carnera, who seems to enjoy good standing and extraordinary privileges as a local Democrat, wishes to turn amateur until such time as the racket picks up again. Primo was once disqualified permanently on the testimony of an opponent who said he had to lie down to avoid being shot, but I note that he is now eligible to fight under the auspices of one of the most deserving Democrats in town, James J. Johnston.

The prize fight commission has one advantage over the A. A. U. in that it is more flexible in its judgment. When the A. A. U. makes a wrong decision it sticks by the wrong decision and alters it only to make it wronger. But when the prize fight commission makes an occasional right one, it can usually be relied on to reverse itself abruptly.

Commission Makes Own Rules And Precedents.

The A. A. U., moreover, is badly hampered by a reactionary respect for old laws and traditions, whereas the prize fight commission makes its own precedents and rules at will and breaks them as rapidly as they are established. Thus, while the A. A. U. might find some insuperable objection to the amateurization of Primo Carnera or Jack Dempsey for the duration of the depression in the professional racket, the prize fight commission could make amateurs of them by the scratch of a pen or the bang of a rubber stamp, and that would be that.

The commission declared Harry Wills the logical contender for the heavyweight championship of the world at a time when a number of the most deserving Democrats in New York wished to conduct a Dempsey-Wills fight and ignored Gene Tunney's claims.

Therefore, when Tunney beat Dempsey, he was not the commission's heavyweight champion. On the contrary, Wills was champion by Dempsey's defaults. But after a time the commission quietly dechampionized its own heavyweight champion and recognized Tunney when he fought Thomas Heeney in New York.

Again, the commission made a champion of Max Schmeling and dechampionized its own champion when he politely, but firmly, refused to fight Painting Philip Scott under the auspices of the deserving Mr. Johnston.

To any governing body as nimble as the New York commission it would be no feat at all to amateurize all the boys in the starving professional ranks and recognize Mr. Johnston as an amateur promoter if he wished to give up his professional standing.

Amateurism begins to look very promising when 3,000 customers turn out for an amateur production which has received no publicity.

LANAHAN IN NO-HIT GAME AS OLMSTEDS WIN SENIOR TITLE

Roamers Bow In Series Final

Grillmen Score Two Runs on Five Hits Off Physioc.

Win Two Straight in Title Set and All League Games.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

WITH Dick Lanahan hurling a no-hit, no-run game, Olmsted Grill captured the senior championship of The Post's Capital City League by downing the Miller Roamers, 2 to 0, in a hotly contested game on the South Ellipse before a crowd of 3,500 fans yesterday. The game was twice interrupted by rain, but was nevertheless one of the fastest played on the sandlots this season.

By virtue of their victory, the members of the Olmsted Grill will be presented with gold baseballs by The Washington Post.

Only Five Roamers Reach First.

Lanahan was invincible, only five men reaching first base, three of these on walks and two on errors. The slim southpaw fanned six opponents. Steve Physioc, whose great pitching for the Roamers was overshadowed by Lanahan's feat, held his opponents to five well-scattered hits, all of which were of the scratch variety. In an ordinary ball game, Physioc's twirling would have gained the victory, but it just wasn't in the cards for the Millers to win yesterday.

The victory brought to twelve the number of championship teams "Snitz" Nau, Olmsted coach, has piloted. Referring to the club which played for him yesterday, Nau said, "It is the fastest and best team I have ever coached, and I am proud to be their coach."

Olmsted scored its first run in the opening round when Fisher scratched a hit to the infield, stole second and came home when Raedy missed Drissell's hit through shortstop. The second run came in the third when Lanahan walked, and after two batters had been retired, scored on successive drives by Fisher and Drissell, both of which should have been handled by the Roamers' infield. From this point on it was a mound battle between Lanahan and Physioc with honors about even.

Grillmen Set Record For Victories.

By its victory the winning team establishes a new record for play in the Capital City League. It is the first time in the league's history that a team has won all of the games on its regular schedule and then captured the title in two straight games. It also was the thirty-third win for the Grillmen in 35 games of both independent and league competition. The two games lost were to unlimited teams.

Lanahan's performance yesterday culminates a series of games in which he has almost gained admission to the hall of fame, but never quite made the grade. In the high school series Lanahan held Business hitless for seven innings before an enterprising batsman connected safely.

HURLS NO-HIT CONTEST

who set the Miller-Roamers down without a hit as the Olmsted Grill nine clinched the Capital City League senior title, winning, 2 to 0.

Capital City Midget Title Won by Spengler Post Nine

Legion Team Wins Second Straight Game in Series With Wonder Boys, 6 to 4, With 2,000 Crowd on Hand.

SPENGLER POST yesterday added the midget championship of The Post's Capital City League to its long list of achievements by making it two straight over the Wonder Boys in their titular series with a 6-4 victory on the North Ellipse before 2,000 fans. The game was devoid of the thrills that usually accompany a battle between the two teams.

Spengler uncorked its winning attack in the first inning, when it scored three runs. In this inning Hurley walked, and was sacrificed around to third by the two following batters. Gregorio walked, and Gormerley and Chaconas singled in order, the first two named scoring. The eventual winners followed this up with two additional runs in the second frame on hits by Ford and Meickeljohn sandwiched in between sacrifices by Hurley and Darmstead.

Wonders Fight Until Finish.

Although they trailed from the start the Wonders fought until the last man was retired in the ninth inning. McConnell counted for the Breadmen in the third inning, and was followed by Fred Miller in the fourth. In the seventh frame Johnson and Butcher singled in succession, sharply to left field, scoring Johnson, but an accurate peg by Dick Cullins caught Butcher at the plate. Another good throw from the outfield, this time by Bauer in the ninth inning, prevented Fred Miller from scoring and ended the game.

The work of Dick Cullins in left field featured the game. Cullins made shoestring catches of two drives that would have gone for triples or home runs had they bounded past him.

Meickeljohn was continually in trouble throughout the game because of his generosity with free passes. No less than five runners reached first base in this manner. Nichols settled down for the Wonders after the first two innings and held the Legionnaires safe over the remainder of the route, but the game was already in the bag.

By virtue of its victory the Spengler team will receive gold baseballs from The Post, emblematic of the city championship.

DEL RAY AND FIREMEN IN VICTORIES

Nation-Wide, Cardinal Nines Beaten in Alexandria Series.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 6.—Del Ray A. C. Baseball Team took a firm hold on second place when they defeated the Nation-Wide Tossers this afternoon on Edward Duncan Field by the score of 12 to 4, in a city series game. Scoring heavily in the fifth and again in the ninth the winners won in a romp.

Cannady, after walking five men in the first inning, recovered control and never permitted another free ticket. Gardiner, starting pitcher for the Nation-Wide nine, was forced to leave the game when struck by a bat which slipped from the hands of his teammate, Garvey. Von Deck and Yarter starred on the offense for the winners.

Behind the six-hit pitching of McMenamen, Columbia Engine Co. experienced little difficulty in defeating the Cardinal A. C. in a city series game on Haydon Field this afternoon by the score of 6 to 1. Travers, Darley, Cabell and Lee obtained ten hits for the winners. By winning this contest, Columbia held onto its half-game lead over the Del Ray Red Birds and remained in first place.

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 6.—The game scheduled between the Auth's nine, of Washington, and the St. Mary's Celtics at Baggett's Park tomorrow afternoon has been postponed by the management of the local club.

Charley Corbett, pilot of the Green and Gold, has decided to put off playing the Capital City tossers until three regulars, "Bill" Langford, "Doc" Dreifus and "Rip" Hicks, who are out of the city return to the line-up.

Iowa University Diver To Train for Olympics

Iowa City, Iowa, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—The University of Iowa hopes to have a fancy diver on the 1932 Olympic team.

Wentworth Lobdell, who has won the Big Ten fancy diving title twice, will train for the Olympic tryouts this year, his final year of university competition.

In 1930, when he was harassed most of the season by a leg injury, Lobdell was runner-up for the national collegiate title.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Landlords and Children.

There is a very irate lady from Chelsea, Mass., who thinks it is a crime the way landlords act about children. The lady states that a couple with children are expected around here to take to the woods or live in a tree or dig caves for the children, as no landlord wants children in his house. All of which sounds just too disgraceful for words until you stop to recall some of the children, and more especially the fond parents, who have enlivened your past! Is it really children in general that landlords dread? Or is it not the child whose parents regard it as the one outstanding achievement of an otherwise mediocre world? Little Freddie, who is allowed to prance through public halls knocking on strange doors to see who lives behind them, and dear little Jean, whose mother sees nothing wrong about her yelling from the sidewalk to the apartment five stories up to know whether she may go to see Mary Pickford at the Strand, and, if not why not, and wait till daddy comes home, &c.?

Motherhood may be a great experience, but it is often pretty hard on the neighbors. Especially those neighbors who have managed it without shouting, spanking, threatening or otherwise disturbing the peace. Most normal people like children. At the hotel where we have lived for more than fifteen years, children are an important feature of the atmosphere of home that softens the formality of hotel life. Babies are born and raised there. But even there when people arrive with a couple of young hopefuls who entertain themselves by ringing the elevator bell and climbing on the sofas, daddy is surprised to learn that the rates are very much higher than he had been led to believe by his friend who stayed there one winter! And daddy and mummy disentangle Willie and Junior from the portieres in which they have shrouded themselves, and disgustedly sally forth to find a home. If they knew the truth, that the rates had been doubled to keep them out they would charge it to hatred of children. It is hatred of bad manners and the confusion caused by bad manners. Children are invariably mirrors of their parents. Noisy children are the offspring of noisy parents. Yelling is an animal reaction. The more civilized the person the less noise. The child who screams at the table has a noisy, shrill mother. The child who disturbs strangers is the child of parents who believe he has a right to disturb strangers.

Landlords usually start out renting to families. It is bitter experience that leads them to protect their business by excluding all parents. They have learned that in nine cases out of ten parents are too lazy to teach their children to observe the rights of others, or else too ignorant to know that others have any rights. Chidren are permitted to deface property, play in halls, tamper with mail, and do as they please, and anyone who complains is, in the parents' opinion, a crank. The simplest procedure is to bar all parents. It sounds heartless but it is the only way to force parents to decently supervise their children and to realize that parenthood confers no special privileges to disturb the peace or make life uncomfortable for those who have managed to be parents without making the neighbors pay for the experience. So do not call the landlord a brute. He is just a victim of little Willie and Junior and all the rest of whose mammas are too lazy to train them.

The situation is excellent food for parental thought. For the child who starts out as unpopular with landlords ends up unpopular with employers and all the rest of the world, and for the same reason, lack of training at home, lack of needed discipline, lack of respect for the rights of others. And that is worse than having to live in a tree!

Texan Uses Ladder To Pick His Tomatoes

Austin, Tex., (U.P.).—When S. E Abernathy goes into his garden to gather tomatoes he calls for a stepladder. The prize tomato plant in his garden has grown 11 feet and is still growing.

The tall tomato plant, together with others which have reached the 6-foot level and his smaller garden truck, has meant a saving of $40 in Abernathy's grocery bill.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Paris Says "Contrast."

To be individual and smart, one's jacket and dress must agree to show a difference.

And today's model does it beautifully. The dress is brown and red plaided woolen; the jacket plain matching red shade woolen. The belt is plain brown woolen to match the neckline bindings. It's a most pleasing new color scheme, so delightfully youthful.

Style No. 315 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inch bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material for dress and 2⅛ yards of 39-inch material for jacket.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, New York City.

NEW ORLEANS HAILS SPANISH WAR HEROES

Veterans of 1898 Gather at Crescent City for Their Annual Sessions.

New Orleans, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—More than 15,000 veterans of the Spanish-American War, dressed in remnants of their military glory of 33 years ago, were warmly welcomed into this banner-bedecked city today for their five-day annual encampment.

Tunes by at least five bands including a United States Marine organization and cheers from the husky throats of the now-aging veterans greeted Commander in Chief Edward S. Matthias upon his arrival today for the opening sessions.

A concert by the Marine Band and a meeting of the national council of administration were the main events of the afternoon as the veterans registered and explored the neighborhood of the meeting.

A memorial service was under way tonight with ceremonies of the national women's auxiliary and an address by Col. William L. Grayson, of Savannah, past commander of the veterans, chief features.

Tomorrow's program will include an open session of the veterans, a concert by Capt. Taylor Branson and his Marine Band and a welcome to New Orleans by city officials. In the evening initiation ceremonies into the Military Order of the Serpent, fun-making organization and a "crawl" through the city streets.

Meeting simultaneously with the veterans is the women's auxiliary. All present officers and eleven past presidents are here. Edith H. Bird is national president.

A total membership of 121,754 was announced at the meeting of the council of administration, an increase of 4,303 over last year. The council will urge support of the bill now pending for assistance to all disabled veterans and will discuss the widows' pension bill.

Patrick County Planning To Have Record Apples

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 6.—Movement of the largest apple crop ever produced in Patrick County will begin next week, according to Walter J. O'Pry, superintendent of the Danville & Western Railway, who has estimated the yield this year at 80,000 barrels, against 25,000 barrels last year. The harvest is equivalent to 400 box car loads.

The bulk of the crop will be freighted to Koehler and Danville for cold storage facilities. One orchardist has a contract to deliver 20,000 barrels at New York and Norfolk for export purposes, the Patrick County "winesap" having gained of recent years an overseas reputation. It is a small apple but highly flavored.

Roosevelt Speech Breaks Precedent

Hailed as Next President, He Discusses Problems Nationally.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 6 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York broke a precedent by discussing common problems from a national standpoint at a Democratic gathering in Connecticut last night and capitol circles are much interested.

The governor, who has refused to notice mention of his name as a possible Democratic presidential nominee, heretofore had confined himself to treating problems from the State's standpoint.

The Connecticut gathering was at Kent, and Gov. Roosevelt was acclaimed as "the next President of the United States." He made a plea for a united front in the war he recently opened on organized crime; told his party colleagues that he believed the people preferred a rule of "Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen" to a rule of an autocracy, and predicted that the party that supported fair public utility regulation and strove for a lessening of the cost of local, State and Nation Governments (Democratic party platform planks) would succeed at the polls.

DAVIS AT CATHEDRAL ATTACKS WAGE CUTS AND PRICE-SLASHING

Scores Destruction of Food in Address at National Labor Service.

READJUSTMENT URGED IN ECONOMIC SYSTEM

Bulk of Talk Over as Rain Short-Circuits Radio Microphone.

Bare-headed in the face of a driving rain, Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, former Secretary of Labor, vigorously attacked wage cutting, price slashing and destruction of food, at the national labor Sunday service yesterday at the foot of the Peace Cross in Washington Cathedral Close before hundreds of labor leaders who heard the senator's strikingly message from his historic out-of-doors pulpit.

At 4:21 p. m. a heavy downfall of rain short circuited the microphone of the Columbia broadcasting service, which was sending the service and address over a Nation-wide network. By this time Senator Davis had concluded more than half of his address, "the bulk of it," as he said afterward. Bishop Freeman, on learning of the mishap to the broadcasting facilities, dismissed the congregation, which by this time had taken shelter under trees and the porches of St. Alban's Church, for the most part.

Senator Davis, undismayed by his experience, jumped into a waiting automobile and rushed to Bolling Field, where he embarked in an Army airplane for Pennsylvania, where he made another address on labor.

Downpour in March.

The first downpour came as the choir of men and boys in their purple and white vestments, headed by a crucifer bearing the Sinai cross and followed by the Cathedral clergy and the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, escorted Senator Davis to within sight of the Peace Cross at the beginning of the service. Bishop Freeman and the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of Washington, who was master of ceremonies, were unable then to transfer the service to Bethlehem Chapel because it would have kept the nation-wide hook up waiting at east fifteen minutes.

The service was conducted by Bishop Freeman asisted by Chancellor Peter and the Rev. Raymond L. Wolven, chaplain to Bishop Freeman and Canon of Washington Cathedral. In introducing Senator Davis Bishop Freeman declared, "The widespread unemployment is a common concern, in which all must share." Representatives of national labor organizations, delegates from local unions and Government officials were in the congregation.

Economic Readjustment.

Senator Davis was particularly emphatic in dealing with wage cutting policies. He warned his hearers that "every move made to curtail the buying power of our farmers and wage-earners further retards the sound revival of brisk business and industrial conditions." He advocated readjustment of the economic system and exclaimed that "unless drastic wage-cutting and reckless price slashing policies are checked, our Nation, in time, probably will cease to be a nation of freemen, becoming instead a country of serfs ruled by an aristocracy of business czars or communistic dictators."

Senator Davis placed himself squarely on record against proposals to remedy surplus crops by destroying one-third of farm products harvested this year. "It is difficult to believe," he continued, "that such a proposal will be indorsed, when it is recalled that we have millions in our own country urgently in need of such farm products."

He stated that some ways and means must be found for moving these vast volumes of agricultural and industrial commodities from the source of their production to the millions of consumers. He pointed out that the problem will be soundly solved when the producer and the consumer are brought into closer contact with each other and still leave a fair margin of profit for the middleman. "Yet," he warned, "cheapness either of labor or commodities never can make for prosperous economic conditions in this or any other country."

The senator claimed that despite widespread unemployment due to business and industrial "doldrums" this Nation had weathered the economic storm better than any other country, and that the United States is leading the world back to economic stabilization.

Far Products' Price.

The speaker blamed much of the cause of the economic depression on the fact that prices for farm products are far below the cost of articles the farmers must purchase in exchange for their products. "Such a situation," he maintained, "means that every strata of our industrial and business life, accordingly, feels the ill effect of this economic liability."

"Our economic system for the distribution of our national wealth should be revamped," Senator Davis said, "in compliance with the ethics of the 'Golden Rule,' so that our farmers and wage-earners can earn more, spend more, buy more and use more. Moreover, I believe that sound ways and means could be found for this revision of our economic system, entailing no real financial hardship upon the part of industry or its stockholders."

Warning of Communism.

In the press releases made public before the senator spoke it is shown that he had planned to warn his congregation that germs of communism and anarchy flourish when "too many wrinkles appear in the stomachs of men, their ears become deaf to law observance pleas, and their brains become numb to every other thought but that concerning the preservation of the lives of themselves, their children and their wives."

The senator also called attention to the fact that another need of today is the revival of the old-fashioned time-honored family circle gatherings in the home. In this connection it is interesting to note that one of the radio listeners to the senator yesterday was his father, 81 years old, who heard his son's Labor Day message in his home in Sharon, Pa.

Trees Along Streets Here Increased by 607 in Year

Superintendent Lanham, in Report, Says Problem of Care Is Being Simplified; Gives Reasons for Not Replacing Many Growths.

The popular impression that the number of shade trees along Washington streets is diminishing is incorrect, as the National Capital now has more than ever before, Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parkings, states in his annual report to the District Commissioners.

This policy of increasing the number of shade trees is followed despite admitted efforts to thin out trees along certain streets which are often made dark and damp by a superabundance of shade. In the past fiscal year the number of shade trees increased 607, as 3,456 were planted and 2,849 were removed.

Washington is "slowly but surely becoming tree conscious," Mr. Lanham declares in his report, and as a consequence problems of caring for shade trees are becoming relatively more simple. He then answers some criticisms directed at his department.

"Failure to replace trees on streets is not always due either to lack of funds or negligence," he asserts. "It is not clearly realized that the removal of a tree by reason of storm, accident or death gives rise to several professional questions regarding its replacement. * * * There are many streets whereon existing lines of trees are too closely spaced. This policy of close planting was inaugurated under a former regime and at that time was considered sound. As our knowledge of the city tree increased we found that this policy was not desirable."

The report explains that often young trees are unable to flourish when overwhelmed by the shade of older trees. Moreover, "highways are long in drying and private homes suffer from dampness" when the number of shade trees is excessive.

Of the 3,456 trees planted last year, 2,671 were placed along improved thoroughfares, 686 were planted in vacant spaces, and others for miscellaneous reasons. The northwest section received 1,862 of the new trees, while the northeast was given 716 and the southeast 93. The sum of $26,603.75 was spent for labor and material in tree planting.

Among the trees that were removed, decay accounted for the larger number, while other causes of destruction ranged from drought to sewer gas. Many were eliminated to make way for street improvements.

A total of 10,963 trees were trimment, and 52,354 trees were sprayed in the fiscal year.

The report outlines the difficulties that beset the growth of a city shade tree, which, Mr. Lapham said, never was intended to be planted in concrete. The superintendent, who has previously clashed with the sewer department over the matter of tree damage, says:

"Inestimable damage is wrought on some of our most beautiful trees through street improvements and through the installation of conduits, mains, &c., which in my opinion should be placed in the roadways if the trees are to be protected."

All of Washington's shade trees are raised in the two District nurseries from seed. Through experimentation the variety of trees has been altered during the last quarter of a century so that the kind best suited to this environment could be found.

In 1900 the silver maple and the Carolina poplar predominated, but these have since been discarded for Norway maple. The latter was found readily adaptable to city life, is "probably the most beautiful shade tree that grows," and is long-lived and generally dependable.

Commenting on the natural death of a certain number of trees every year despite the care given to them, Mr Lanham says: "The remarkable thing is not that some of them die, but that any live, fouled by gas, oil, grease, attacked by insects, scale and fungus, surrounded by concrete and hemmed in by all the subterranean utilities of modernity."

THRONG WELCOMES MARINE UNIT HOME

Capital's Sixth Brigade Back From Two Weeks Spent in Virginia Camp.

Hundreds of persons turned out last night to welcome home Washington's own marines—the Sixth Brigade of the United States Marine Corps Reserve—who arrived aboard the S. S. District of Columbia, following a two weeks' encampment at the State military reservation at Virginia Beach.

Long before the boat docked, crowds of relatives, friends and spectators gathered at Seventh and Water streets southwest to give a rousing welcome. After disembarking, the brigade formed in companies along Water street and marched to its armory on John Marshall place, near C street northwest, where members disbanded.

Closing exercises at the camp yesterday included a review and parade before Brig. Gen. Gardner Waller, adjutant general of Virginia. The Sixth Brigade Band will participate in the firemen's parade today.

Rev. P. J. Lawrence, 78, Is Buried in Virginia

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 6.—Funeral services were held today at Mount Hebron United Brethren Church, near Cross Junction, Va., for the Rev. Preston J. Lawrence, 78, one of the last of the old-time circuit rider preachers in northern Virginia, whose death at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Friday followed three years' illness.

Until overtaken by ill health, he had served four or five rural United Brethern churches more than 50 years, preaching usually three times each Sunday at widely separated appointments. During most of his pastorate he covered the territory on horseback. Surviving are a widow, and four sons.

New Catholic Buildings At Hopewell Dedicated

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 6.—A large assembly of Catholics today attended the dedication of the new convent and schoolhouse of the St. James Catholic Church at Hopewell. The dedication was by the Right Rev. Andrew J. Brennan, Bishop of Richmond, and was followed by high mass, with the bishop presiding, the celebrant being the Rev. James A. Breman, of Richmond. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. John A. Kellier, Ph. D., of Richmond.

NEW SOCIAL SLANT URGED BY MINISTER

Depression Is Warning That Civilization Has Reached Crisis, Dr. Brodie Says.

Turning his attention to the current unemployment situation rather than to a strictly religious topic, Dr. Andrew Melrose Brodie, associate minister of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, spoke yesterday morning on "The Church and the Unemployed."

There have been four great periods of depression, Dr. Brodie said, enumerating them as in Greece in 400 B. C., in the fourth century A. D. under the Roman Empire, the period preceding the French Revolution and the present period.

"The present restlessness of the world and the murmurings of the unemployed are ominous," he declared. "What a paradox! Plenty on every hand, yet unrest, discontent and hunger abound."

Interpreting the present situation in the light of the final results of the three preceding depressions, Dr. Brodie said: "Have we, too, reached the climax of our civilization? I think that we have come to the parting of the ways. We must serve and live or hoard and die.

Reaped As We Sowed.

"What is the trouble? We have invented and set in motion machinery which we do not know how to handle. Our scientists have liberated forces which we do not know how to control. We have had thousands of conferences and appointed scores of commissions to investigate, we have tons of reports and an abundance of facts, but no one knows what to do with them. But these do not provide for the idle, nor bread for the hungry. We have become a race of slaves to passion, pleasure and power. We are reaping what we have sown."

In pointing out the problem that lies ahead the minister said: "There are two imperatives. First, we must all work to alleviate the sufferings of the needy.

"Let us have a political moratorium, to help us accomplish this. Let us forget for the time our party and our personal interests."

In speaking of the second imperative, Dr. Brodie said, "In order to prevent the recurrence of such times of depression we must adopt some industrial and economic system more in accord with the law of the Eternal God who created us. When we learn to live in right relations no one will be in want. Right relations will solve all our problems, industrial, economic and international. There will be no war.

Few Could Not Exploit Many.

"This God-given economical plan of right relations will teach men to drop competition and adopt the eternal law of cooperation. Such a system will provide an adequate return on capital invested, it will richly reward men of brains and will afford labor ample wages.

"This system," Dr. Brodie went on, "will not permit the few to exploit the many, nor permit the few to appropriate without an adequate return our God-given natural resources intended for the use of all. Any scheme that permits 10 per cent of the people to acquire and hold 90 per cent of the wealth of the Nation is not only unbrotherly and inhuman, but unjust and cruel, and carries in itself the seeds of decay and slow but certain destruction."

In explaining the part the church must play in the plan, Dr. Brodie said: "To this end the church must lend itself. The church is, and must ever be, a teaching force. The church is not a legislative or judicial organization. God has made its laws. When the church heartily resumes its high task of declaring fearlessly the law and the whole council of God, it will do much toward ushering in that day when 'men to men shall brothers be.'"

Ice Pick Used in Quarrel.

During an altercation early yesterday morning at 310 Florida avenue northwest, Harry Repley, colored, 35, it is charged, was stabbed in the chest with an ice pick by his wife, Florence Repley. Repley was treated at Providence Hospital. His condition was critical at an early hour last night.

EPIPHANY CHURCH SERMON EXPLAINS HARD LIFE'S PERILS

Religion Supplies Power for Attainment of Ideals, Says Rev. A. L. Wills.

FIVE DANGERS PICTURED AS HARDENING HEART

Indifference Is Described as Being Hardest Crust of All to Break.

"The Perils of the Hard Life" was the topic of a sermon delivered by the Rev. Alvin Lamar Wills, assistant rector, last night at the evening service of the Church of the Epiphany.

Dr. Wills chose as his text the fourth verse of the thirteenth chapter of Matthew, "And when he sowed, some seeds fell by the wayside, and the fowls came and devoured them up."

Explaining that the world is so constituted that "life is set amidst many and grevious perils," Dr. Wills said, "religion not only elevates our moral ideals, but reinforces life. It gives power for the attainment of our ideals."

The perils of the hard life were explained as being common perils to all people. In enumerating the ways that the human heart becomes hardened to resist the appeals of truth, thus constituting the perils of life, Dr. Wills spoke of five—by sin, materialism, prejudice, self-righteousness and indifference.

Sin Is Discussed.

Sin as an influence separating man from God was discussed. Dr. Wills pointed out the fact that many men come to church to pray, but their past lives have been lived in a manner that does not give them an even speaking vocabulary of religion to use in their worship.

The story of the young rich man who came to Christ and asked how he might be sure of entering the Kingdom of Heaven, was given as an example of the dangers of materialism. The young man, who had lived to the letter of the Ten Commandments, was told to go and sell his worldly goods. He was not strong enough to do this.

Turning his attention to the constructive side of his sermon, Dr. Wills pointed out the ways that the hard life may become softened. "These are three in number," he said. "The first is by humility, the second by analytical thinking, and the third by Divine guidance."

Dr. Wills said, "Beware then of these perils of the hard life. If you find yourself becoming encased against the higher truth, take yourself in hand at once. Exercise all the will power you possess. Although the case is desperate it is not hopeless. Seek the larger will of God as you have never done before. And do not cease until you have found it. The hard life has its perils, real perils, deadly perils, but they can be withstood and conquered by humility, analytical reasoning and Divine guidance."

'Sorry, Pal,' Bandit Says, Stealing Cab

Driver Loses His Car and $13 to Three Fares on Magazine Road.

Bruce B. Hatfield, City Cab driver, of 115 R street northeast, was held up and robbed of $13 and his taxicab late last night by three white men at Nichols avenue and Magazine road northeast.

Hatfield told police that he picked up his fares at Eighth street and New York avenue northwest about 10 p. m., and was instructed to drive to the Research Laboratory, on Magazine road, where the men left the cab for a few minutes. Upon returning, they told him to drive on down Magazine road, and at the intersection of Nichols avenue, Hatfield said, two of the men pulled guns, ordered him out of the machine and took his $13, which included his day's earnings.

The men then got into the cab and said they were leaving town, but would leave the machine somewhere in the city before they left. When he asked them not to take his cab, Hatfield said, one of the bandits replied, "Sorry, pal. You're a pretty nice feller," and then all three disappeared down the road.

Cell Hardly Holds Lively Police Guest

Excitement prevailed at the Fourth Precinct Station last night, but the prisoner was subdued without recourse to "brutal" methods—you can take the word of two privates, one a little the worse for wear, and Lieut. Sidney J. Marks.

The alleged offender was Samuel Joseph Stansburg, 32 years old, of 1366 C street southeast, according to police. He was docketed on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, by Private Edward W. Daniels, who has figured in the current "third degree" investigation, as the man sent by Inspector Louis Stoll to examine the alleged injuries of Henry Harker.

After Stansburg was placed in a cell, police say he pulled some of the plumbing from the wall and started smashing it. Private George H. Redligh went back to quiet him. The prisoner, according to police, threatened Private Redligh with a hunk of plumbing, but the policeman, undaunted, entered the cell, only to be kicked on the shins and in the groin. Redligh momentarily was repulsed, but bravely returned. Stansburg then is alleged to have tossed his supper, a steaming bowl of stew and a ration of hot coffee over Redligh.

Redligh rushed the prisoner and held him quiet. Stansburg then complained that he had been injured. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital, but the hospital refused to admit him on the ground that physicians could find no injuries.

After Stansburg was returned from the hospital, Lieut. Marks called his family physician and requested that an examination be made of Stansburg. The physician declined on the ground that he didn't think it was necessary."

The prisoner was then docketed on additional charges of destroying District property and assault.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

OLD IRONSIDES—A STUDY.

O H, once you were the terror of the seas;
No stranger dared lay foot upon you then;
A ship that scudded fast before the breeze,
Your deeds were those to stir the hearts of men.
Once feared by mighty ships around the world,
To board you meant to battle and to die—
And now you chafe a dock with ensign furl'd,
The gaping, staring mob to satisfy.

Where brave men fell in running streams of blood
And clash of cutlass fighting filled the air—
Where gunners through the heat of battle stood,
Their sweating bodies to the fire bared,
Now giggling flappers stop beside a gun
And chortle to their boy friends, "Oh, how cute"—
"I wonder if they ever fired one?"
And "Did these funny cannon ever shoot?"

Now men of all extractions roam thy decks,
Moved by the urge of curosity;
How must their stares your noble spirit vex!
Such is an oldtime fighter's infamy.
"The ship that was a navy"—that was you;
The frigate fast that never lost a fight,
Most famed of all the valiants of the blue,
You now are but a side show, day and night.

YOUR body knew the touch of Paul Revere—
His forge produced the bolts that made you strong;
Today you feel a contact strange and queer
As hordes of strangers through your body squirm.
'Twas Betsy Ross whose fingers made the flags
That first so proudly from your topmasts flew—
Now placards, signs and little printed cards
Are needed to acquaint the crowd with you.

You were brave Preble's flagship in the days
When all the country was a wilderness;
When British frigates lurked in many bays
To cause our seamen worry and distress;
You cleared the seas of foes in action fierce
And never left the outcome long in doubt;
Your guns the hulls of valiant ships did pierce—
The whole world marveled at your strength so stout.

Today you're but a ghost, a specter, wraith—
A ship that folks recall from picture books;
Those wond'rous years in which you kept the faith
Are not made much more vivid from your looks;
Odd faces and strange figures mark you now—
There's something queer about you, something wrong;
The people who now fill you, stern to bow,
And roam your decks, just somehow don't belong.

THE swarthy kids much "hot dogs" on the deck
Where Nicholson and Hull directed fire;
There by the rail a girl and boy friend neck,
And on the dock a taxi blows a tire!

Where many lay and let their life's blood flow
As raged historic battles to a close,
Two lovers whisper secrets soft and low,
And Broadway sportsmen talk of "dese" and "dose;"
To starboard where your guns poured forth such death
In eighteen-twelve beside the Guerriere,
There lolls a well-boiled tourist with a breath
That makes a staid old lady turn and stare.

Up in the bow that pirates feared to sight—
The bow that to all foemen spelled distress—
A muddled visitor who's not quite bright
Exclaims, "She's just a picture stunt, I guess."
Over thy fighting tops a motor hums,
Its pilot viewing you as but a ghost,
And from the pier below there strangely comes
A cry of "Jumbo peanuts! Fresha roast!

You would be happier indeed,
Old Ironsides, to close the epic tale,
Had Uncle Sam of Holmes but taken heed,
Consigning you "to lightning and the gale."

ACCUSING OF PASTOR BRANDED AS SCHEME TO FORCE DISMISSAL

Member of Congregation of the Rev. William Shelton Scents Church Plot.

TRIAL WILL BE PUSHED ON WOMAN'C CHARGES

Close Silence Is Maintained on Their Nature After Committee Inquiry.

Charges of an unrevealed nature by a former young woman secretary against the Rev. William A. Shelton, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South, are the result of a scheme by a few members of the church to remove yhim from the local pulpit, in the opinion of a prominent member of the church.

The former secretary, Miss Carrie A. Williams, of 5322 Forty-first street northwest, who is understood to have made the charges, said last night that she had served as secretary to two pastors at the Mount Vernon Church prior to the coming of Dr. Shelton. She began her work there in November, 1921, while the Rev. C. G. Chappell was pastor.

After Dr. Chappell left for another pastorate in January, 1924, she continued as secretary to the Rev. W. A. Lambeth, Dr. Chappell's successor. Dr. Shelton became pastor last October and Miss Williams acted as his secretary until May of this year, when she resigned, she said.

Beyond this, Miss Williams would not discuss the case, explaining that she did not care to say anything "at this time."

Salary Dispute Hinted.

The church member who spoke in defense of Dr. Shelton last night said that he understood Miss Williams' salary was reduced after Dr. Shelton came to the church and that she was indignant because her original remuneration was not restored.

Dr. Shelton, unperturbed by the charges made against him, said he preferred not to discuss the case.

It was learned that the charges had been previously investigated by a church committee which satisfied itself that Dr. Shelton was innocent. However, a further investigation was asked by Bishop E. D. Mouzon, of Charlotte, N. C., when he was recently appointed bishop of the Baltimore district and after pressure had been brought to bear by "certain members" of the congregation, it was learned.

Trial to Be This Month.

Bishop Mouzon satisfied himself that the complaint against Dr. Shelton was strong enough to warrant further investigation, and he appointed a committee of five preachers last week to conduct this investigation. After the vestigation the committee recommended that a church trial be held, "in fairness to all parties." The trial will be held this month.

The Rev. Dr. J. H. Balthis, presiding elder of the Washington District, Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, spokesman for the investigating committee, announced the church trial.

Dr. Balthis, through an understanding between the church officials and the investigating preachers, is the only one authorized to speak officially on the case. Interviewed by a Post reporter in Frederick, Md., last night where he was preaching, Dr. Balthis refused to amplify his original statement announcing the charges. As all others connected with the church are preserving a tight lipped silence, the nature of the charges is not expected to be known until the time of the trial. Dr. Balthis said that a date for the trial has not yet been set.

Dr. Shelton, formerly a professor at Emory University in Atlanta, was a member of the church court which tried Bishop James Cannon in Dallas, Tex., two years ago. The second trial of Bishop Cannon last spring was held in the church of which Dr. Shelton is now pastor.

Various members of the Mount Vernon Church, interviewed by representatives of The Post yesterday, unanimously expressed the opinion that the minister was innocent of any wrongdoing and confidently predicted his exoneration.

Man Held on Car Crash In Auto Believed Stolen

Nathaniel H. Pinkney, of 1015 New York avenue northwest, was arrested last night by Park Policeman S. B. Collins, after he is alleged to have abandoned an automobile which was said to have been stolen, after having collided with a tree box, following an automobile chase by Collins.

The policeman observed Pinkney on Constitution avenue, allegedly driving without lights. At Twentieth and Constitution avenue, the car struck a tree box and he fled. He is charged with unlawful use of an automobile, reckless driving no lights, and driving without a permit.

Model of La Pinta Loaned for Parade

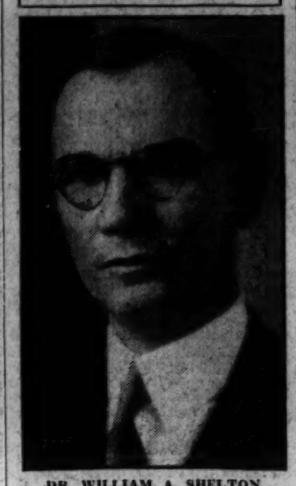
Galleon Replica Was Carved by Prisoner; Worked 35 Years.

A 4-foot, hand-carved model of the Spannish galleon, La Pinta, will be one of the many unique attractions in this morning's Labor Day parade.

The model, which was lent to No. 13 Engine Co. for the occasion, was built 75 years ago in the Pennsylvania State prison by one of the inmates. The prisoner carved the entire model with a penknife. He was 35 years old when he first started work on the model and had reached his seventieth year when he put the finishing touches on it.

The galleon will sit on the forward part of 13 Engine Co.'s flowered float, which is called "Progress."

ACCUSED



DR. WILLIAM A. SHELTON.

GROUP WILL INSPECT INDUSTRY RESEARCH

Washington Men to Be With Party Touring Laboratories in October.

A number of Washington residents will accompany a party of businesss men and bankers from various sections of the country on a tour of research laboratories from October 5 to 15, it was announced yesterday by the engineering and industrial research division of the National Research Council, who will be hosts on the tour.

An object of the tour is to show industrial and banking executives how many of the country's industries, small and large, are applying scientific research to major problems in an effort to combat depression and bring about business recovery. The trip will be made by boat from New York to Boston and by special train to other cities.

This is the second tour of its kind to be sponsored by the National Research Council. The first was held last October when nine laboratories in seven cities were visited. Washington was on the itinerary of last year's tour. Two research organizations were visited—the United States Bureau of Standards and the National Canners Association laboratory.

Vanished Baltimorean And Two Boys Sought

Washington police were asked yesterday to aid Baltimore authorities in a search for two young boys and a 56-year-old man, all three of whom disappeared from their homes on September 2.

They are Eli Joseph Snyder, 9, who was reported missing from his home, 519 Quail street, and was last seen wearing khaki overalls and dark tan shoes; David Millburn, 11, who disappeared from his summer home at Mount Pleasant Beach, Md., and was last seen wearing a blue shirt and overalls and riding a bicycle; and Charles Nickolson, 56, who has been missing from his home at 2421 Llewellyn avenue, and was last seen dressed in dark gray pants, white shirt, black hat and shoes.

Park Sleeper Is Robbed At Gun Point of $1.50

While asleep in the park on the south side of Missouri avenue northwest, between Four-and-a-half and Sixth streets, early yesterday morning, James M. Farmer, of Knoxville, Tenn., was rudely awakened, held up at the point of a pistol and robbed of $1.50 by a light-skinned colored man.

Farmer, who gave his local address as 636 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, told police that he could positively identify the man despite the fact that he was half asleep when the holdup occurred.

Couple to Mark Golden Wedding

Entertainment for Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Is Planned.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Elwood, of 635 F street northeast, will honor them today at a series of entertainments in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Elwood were married September 7, 1881, in Utica, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood will first attend the Labor Day parade and then will be guests of friends and relatives at a luncheon party to be held at the Hay-Adams House. Miss Esther Spier and Howard Moore, radio artists, will entertain. Following the luncheon, the couple will attend the baseball game, for Mr. Elwood has been an ardent follower of the Washington team for years.

Mr. Elwood, who has retired, was employed at the Government Printing Office for 21 years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Elwood are active in the work of the Ninth Street Christian Church, and Mr. Elwood is a member of the Stanton Park Citizens Association. The couple has three children, Miss Leah E. Elwood, Mrs. Esther Elwood Wight and Ernest J. Elwood, jr., all of Washington.

Napping Kids Kidnaped; Mother Vanishes Also

A triple kidnaping case has police of the Eleventh Precinct perplexed.

A couple of kids, 6 months old, and their mother, missing since yesterday afternoon, were snatched from a lot near 16 Fendall avenue southeast. No sounds of alarm were heard. Mother and her offspring just vanished.

The goat and the two kids are owned by Harry B. Bartsch, of 1642 W street southeast.

ELEVEN ARE INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS; TWO ARE CHILDREN

Capital and Vicinity Scene of Several Mishaps Among Sunday Motorists.

HURTS OF MAJORITY OF MINOR CHARACTER

Pair in Serious Condition at Hospitals; Elderly Man Is Felled by Car.

Eleven persons, including two six-year-old children, were injured yesterday in automobile accidents in Washington and nearby points. Two of those hurt were reported to be in a serious condition.

Two men are in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital as a result of an accident about 14 miles east of Marlboro on the Chesapeake Beach road, early yesterday morning, when the machine in which they were riding skidded and overturned.

David E. Weaver, 58, of 268 Fifteenth street southeast, is suffering from severe lacerations of the head and a possible fractured mandible. Charles J. Denzer, 41, of 721 Virginia avenue southeast, is under observation pending the results of X-rays for possible fractured ribs on the right side and possible internal injuries.

Frank Waacs, 40, of 262 Fifteenth street southeast, was driving the machine when it overturned. He was also taken to the hospital but his condition was said to be not serious and he was released.

Child Felled by Auto.

Knocked down by an automobile yesterday afternoon as he attempted to cross the road near his home, Morris McGwiggin, 6 years old, of Hughsville, Md., was brought to Emergency Hospital, where he is said to be in an undetermined condition suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and severe lacerations to the face.

According to witnesses, the boy ran directly in the path of a machine driven by Harry O. Dodson, of 5302 Eighth street northwest. Dodson is said to be a former Washington policeman. The accident was termed unavoidable.

Melvin Bowie, 6 years old, colored, of 606 K street northwest, received a fracture of the left leg yesterday when struck while in front of his home by an automobile driven by Edward J. Brosnan, 36 years old, of 610 Seventh street southwest. After treatment at Emergency Hospital, he was removed to the Children's Hospital.

New York Woman Hurt.

Mrs. Marguerette Wilson, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., was slightly injured in an accident on the Baltimore boulevard near Riverdale, Md. She was treated at Sibley Hospital for lacerations to both legs. Police were unable to learn details of the accident.

Mrs. Ruth Meries, 19 years old, of Baltimore, was treated at Sibley Hospital for slight abrasions to her head, received when the automobile in which she was a passenger was in collision with another machine at Rhode Island and North Dakota avenues northeast.

According to police, the car in which Mrs. Meries was riding, operated by Carrol Shiflet, 32 years old, also of Baltimore, had stopped at the intersection for a traffic light. It was struck from behind by a machine driven by Ben Ludenback, 40 years old, of Stanley, Va. Both drivers escaped injury.

Two Men Are Injured.

Two men were injured yesterday in an automobile accident at the entrance to the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club, in Arlington County.

Robert Wells, 24 years old, of 1013 M street northwest, received a fractured ankle and Harry Rawson, 24 years old, of Vienna, Va., received a fractured ankle and internal injuries. They were treated at Georgetown Hospital.

William W. Waddy, 74 years old, was slightly injured last night when he was struck by an automobile, driven, police say, by Robert Dunigan, 18 years old, of 1417 Thirty-fourth street northwest. Dunigan took Mr. Waddy to Georgetown Hospital, where it was found the elderly man had suffered a strained ligament in his leg. After treatment Mr. Waddy returned to his home at 3128 Dumbarton street northwest.

The accident happened at the intersection of Wisconsin avenue and M street northwest.

Two Hurt in Mishap.

A man and a woman were injured when an automobile ran into the rear of another machine on the Colesville pike last night, sending the second vehicle off the road into a ditch.

John J. Murray, 65 years old, of 918 Maryland avenue northeast, driver of the car that was struck, suffered a strained neck. His companion, Mrs. Pearl Tancre, 36 years old, of 104 Indiana avenue northwest, suffered a strained back and neck. Cleil Keller, 19 years old, of 317 Aspen street northwest, driver of the other car, police said, was not hurt.

Two Men Are Seized After Holdup in Park

Francis F. Cole, of 722 F street northeast, last night was held up and robbed of a small amount of cash and a $28.95 check by three men, while walking on Constitution avenue in Potomac Park. A few minutes later United States Park Police arrested two suspects in Lafayette Park.

Those arrested are Roy S. Byrd, 24 years old, of Roanoke, Va., and Horace G. Walker, 23 years old, of Ninth street near I street northwest. They are being held for investigation.

Taxicab Driver Robbed By Armed Passengers

Two armed colored men last night held up Neal H. Williams, 23 years old, a taxicab driver, who gave his address as the Navy Yard, and robbed him of $2.90 at Stevens road and Siegel street southeast.

Williams said the men hired him at Eighth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast and ordered him to drive to Wade street southeast. On the way to the destination they pointed a gun at him and took his money. They then fled.
